18-Month Draft Limit Beaten, 2-Yr. Plan Offered

Burton's Proposal Delays Senate Action; Bill to Defer Men Above 28 Approved

THE DRAFT PROPERTY BILL, modified, was passed by the House, 241 to 136. Page 5.

Confusion in Ranks

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

A compromise proposal to place a 24-month limit on service of selectees, National Guardsmen and reservists delayed Senate action on the draft extension bill yesterday after a decisive defeat of the Taft amendment for an 18-month limit.

Introduction of the 24-month amendment by Senator Burton (Republican), of Ohio, appeared to spread confusion in the majority ranks.

Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, ranking majority member of the Military Affairs Committee and floor manager for the service extension resolution, indicated on the floor he would not fight the Burton amendment and other committee members said privately they had expected to support it as a method of rolling up an overwhelming majority for the bill.

Taft Plan Defeated 50 to 27

Majority Leader Barkley, however, took the floor immediately after the Thomas statement to make an impassioned appeal for defeat of the Burton amendment and approval for a 30-month limit.

Barkley said last night he expected the Senate to reject the 24-month proposal but conceded that the amendment was likely to attract "a few more votes" than the Taft amendment, which was defeated, 50 to 27.

Administration leaders were unable during yesterday's turbulent session to obtain an agreement setting the hour for a vote on the Burton amendment and it seemed uncertain whether passage of the bill would come today. In the House Majority Leader McCormack announced that the bill would not be taken up until the Senate has completed action.

Release When Practicable

Meanwhile both House and Senate gave swift approval to legislation deferring men of 28 and over from the draft.

The bill, stripped of the controversial section authorizing the President to take over strike-bound

2d D. C. Man Shot By Policeman In Fight Dies

Edward Cobb, 28, Negro, of 1404 Belmont Street Northwest, died in Freedmen's Hospital late yesterday from wounds of a bullet fired by a Washington policeman Monday night during a fight in which Cobb's brother, Jasper, 34, was slain.

The policeman, Donald R. Webber, 26, attached to Thirteenth Precinct, is under technical arrest pending a coroner's inquest tentatively scheduled for Friday morning at District Morgue.

According to Webber, when he attempted to arrest Jasper Cobb, who he said was intoxicated, a fight ensued, with the brothers trying to wrest his service revolver from him. In the fight the patrolman fired six times, he reported.

Doctors at Garfield Hospital said Jasper Cobb had been shot three times, twice in the chest and once in the abdomen. Edward was shot once through the abdomen.

Second Rescue in 2 Years

Margie, Twice a Heroine at 7, Pulls Chum Out of Truck's Path

'I Jumped Off Bike, And Pulled Loretta Out of Way,' She Says

All the kids in the 4000 block of Twelfth Street Northeast always thought that Margaret O'Brien, 7, of 4014 Twelfth Street, was "a swell kid." But last night she became even more than that. She became a heroine.

Margie was riding on a tricycle with her friend, Loretta Marie Parlon, 5, of 4006 Twelfth Street Northeast. As they came rolling down the sidewalk on Twelfth Street near Shepherd Street, Margy heard a screeching of brakes, a terrific bang, and then saw a truck careen over the sidewalk toward her and Loretta.

"I was too scared to holler," Margie said. "I jumped off the bike and pulled Loretta out of the way. The truck just missed us. It went over the sidewalk and through the front yard of the house in front."

Margie, who is going into the third grade of St. Anthony's School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George O'Brien. Her parents are very proud of her, because this is the second time that she has saved someone's life.

Two years ago, when her infant sister, Kathleen, stepped out in front of an onrushing car, Margie darted into the street and pulled her out of the way. Coincidentally, that rescue was almost in the same spot as last night's accident.

Five-year-old Loretta, who was saved last night, said through her tears: "If it wasn't for Margie, I'd have been runned over. She's my very best friend."

Loretta is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Parlon, and they don't have words enough to praise her rescuer.

HEROINE—Margie O'Brien, 7 (right), last night saved her playmate, Loretta Parlon, 5, from possible death under the wheels of a truck

Last night's accident occurred when a southbound truck, driven by Leonard Cleveland, 24, Negro, 765 Gresham Place Northwest, collided with the westbound auto of Maurice R. Crimson, 26, 3980 Tenth Street Northeast. Both drivers were treated for lacerations to the face.

Nip Inflation By Acting Now, Congress Told

Rising Living Costs Point to Disaster, Henderson Warns

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Price Administrator Leon Henderson warned Congress yesterday it must move quickly to avert inflation and that even prompt enactment of controls will not halt "a tremendous increase in the cost of living."

"I say to you in all seriousness that we stand now on the brink of inflation," Henderson told the House Banking Committee. "Facts are the factor now."

The chunky statistician, who makes figures talk, used charts and statistics to hammer home his conclusions that retail prices are racing to catch up with climbing wholesale costs and that Congress must act now to avert inflation and postwar collapse.

Most Dynamic Factor

Opening the case for the Administration's price-control bill introduced last week, Henderson said inflation comes when purchasing power moves at a faster rate than production. Purchasing power advances, pushed by large employment and larger pay roll increases, he called the "most dynamic and volatile" factor in the present situation.

Henderson said American payrolls are 125 per cent of normal, employment has risen to 125 while cost of living is still 90 but rising fast.

One chart he called "the shape of things to come" graphically illustrated the initial wholesale price advance, not yet reflected in retail the consumer.

"No matter what we do, prices are going up," said the man who prices but ultimately slated to hit once marshaled figures for NRA,

Maj. Brown Serves Notice Of Retiring

District to Have New Director of Police After August 21

Washington will have a new superintendent of police some time after August 21, and it appeared last night that the job would go to one of three veteran inspectors—with Edward J. Kelly top choice at the District Building.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown yesterday officially notified Commissioner John Russell Young he would apply for retirement "late this month" and at the same time asked permission to take 67 days accumulated leave from August 15 to October 31.

Young said both the leave and retirement applications would be approved and an acting superintendent would be named today.

Brown confirmed long-standing rumors of his retirement by announcing he would step out of the local police post immediately after his term as president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police expires August 21.

It is expected that the Commissioners today will name Inspector Kelly acting superintendent and there were strong indications that the job would be his permanently.

Kelly is outranked in seniority by Inspector James F. Beckett, who recently served as acting superintendent while Brown was laid up with an injured ankle. It was strongly hinted at the District Building yesterday that Beckett is not held in high favor by the Commissioners in view of criticism of his testimony before the Congressional police investigating committee which completed hearings recently.

The Congressional committee indicated in its report that it felt Beckett was not the man to take over command of the metropolitan force.

Brown said last night he felt his successor should be appointed from

Darden Wins Nomination For Governor in Va. Primary

Colgate W. Darden, jr., 44, of Norfolk, a World War aviator and former member of Congress, yesterday was nominated for Governor by the Democratic voters of Virginia. His running mate on the State organization supported ticket, William M. Tuck, of South Boston, won the nomination for lieutenant governor.

With complete returns from 1,365 of the State's 1,716 voting precincts, Darden was ahead with a vote of landslide proportions. Darden had 97,343 votes to 17,976 for State Senator Vivian L. Page, of Norfolk, and 11,971 for Hundson Cary, of Henrico County.

In the race for the nomination for Lieutenant Governor, Tuck, a State Senator, was leading Moss A. Plunkett by a vote of 23,601 to 23,718 with 1,347 precincts reported.

In Virginia nomination by the Democrats is tantamount to election.

At 9:10 p. m. Darden issued the following statement shortly after mounting election returns indicated he would be nominated.

"I cannot adequately express my appreciation of the overwhelming vote given me here in the Second Congressional District, and the great majorities that are apparently being run up in all sections of the State.

"I realize the responsibility which rests upon me as a result of this expression of confidence. I shall do my best to merit it. I want to ask all the citizens of Virginia to join

British Poised to Occupy Siam; U.S. to Aid Far East Red Army; Nazis Race Weather in Ukraine

Greatest Move Of Encirclement In War Is Tried In South Russia

By the Associated Press

The German command apparently subordinating for the time being its long and costly effort to break the Red defenses on the Moscow approaches, appeared last night to have turned part of its main army of the center sharply southward to add to the enormous pressure being put upon the Ukraine by the southern Nazi wing.

This suggested the development of the most grandiose maneuver for encirclement attempted since the beginning of the invasion, if not in history.

Too, it supported earlier indications that the Germans were preparing a supreme effort at whatever cost to conquer the Ukraine before the approach of bad weather.

Moscow Report

Moscow's regular communique early this morning merely reported continuing fighting in the Ukraine—about Bel Tserkov to the southwest of Kiev and Korosten to the northwest—about Smolensk at the center and in the Estonian sector. The implication was that Soviet positions had not materially changed.

News of the surprising defection of the central German thrust on the Russian front came in the claim of the Nazi command that its forces had made a widening break-through to a point 62 miles southeast of Smolensk, the heart of the Soviet center, and in the process had "partly annihilated and partly encircled" a Russian body of unstated size.

This was accomplished by the claim that German shock troops advancing far to the south below Kiev had overrun strong Soviet field positions, taking 43 bunkers and at least 6,000 prisoners, and killing twice that many Red soldiers.

Claim Two Towns

In this area, it was said in Berlin, the apparent assignment of the Nazis was to smash through for an eventual swing northwest to meet the erstwhile German forces of the center, which now are moving southeast. The grand purpose would be not only to isolate Kiev itself, but the Ukraine hinterland from the Black Sea.

The Germans specifically asserted that Bel Tserkov, a major Soviet defensive area some 50 miles southwest of Kiev, was in German hands. In the north it was claimed that Kholm, which lies 250 miles northwest of Moscow, likewise had been occupied.

Far-spread and savage Red counterattacks were reported in Moscow. In some of these the biggest Soviet tanks were in action. Two such land battleships were claimed to have routed an entire German column, including a battalion of motorized infantry, a company of light tanks and 20 armored cars.

Deal Will Free European-Made War Equipment For West Front

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

The United States, as an outstanding feature of its program to aid Russia, will be a major source of supplies for the Soviet Far Eastern army, it was learned yesterday.

American and Russian officials conferring here have decided that, in order to save freight car space on the Trans-Siberian Railroad, the United States will be assigned an important role in maintaining the Red army that is poised along Japan's Manchukuoan frontier, so that equipment and supplies manufactured in European Russia may be put to maximum use in the struggle against German invasion.

This decision to help preserve the fighting strength of the Soviet Far Eastern army was expected to help restrain Japan's ardor for conquest.

Meanwhile, in another clear warning to Nippon, two American heavy cruisers arrived in Australian waters as Great Britain continued reenforcing her Far Eastern fleet against any Japanese southward thrust.

Russia Will Pay

The Navy Department, which usually endeavors to screen ship movements, issued a terse announcement that the American battle craft had arrived at Brisbane, Australia, on what was described as a "training cruise."

Officials also disclosed that, though "the sky is the limit" on Russian needs, items actually under discussion for shipment to the Soviets include fats and oils, wheat, clothing and fabrics, leather and hides, artillery, small arms, special lubricating oils and rifles.

Russia plans to pay for all these supplies with gold and critical raw materials, such as manganese. There has been no consideration yet of lend-lease aid for the Soviets.

Negotiations for the military supplies are under the supervision of Col. Philip B. Faymonville, who is on special duty in the Office of Defense Aid Reports. The State Department handles the negotiations for nonmilitary items, such as food and clothing.

Army Not Self-Supporting

These facts were learned following disclosure Monday of an American pledge to grant Russia priorities on arms orders, unlimited export licenses and favorable consideration for assignment of ships to make the run across the Pacific to Vladivostok. The promise of "all practicable economic aid" was made in a letter from Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, to the Russian Ambassador, Constantine Oumansky.

The Red army in the Far East is not self-supporting as regards supplies, officials said. Its needs are filled from European Russia and the Caucasus, which entails a long

Mystery on the High Seas

Churchill Flying to Meet Roosevelt, London Hears

Rendezvous Rumored On President's Yacht; Hopkins Included

By International News Service

London, Aug. 5.—Mystery tonight cloaked the whereabouts of Prime Minister Churchill and Harry L. Hopkins amid rumors that the Premier, accompanied by the lease-lend coordinator, may possibly have flown secretly to a dramatic meeting with President Roosevelt somewhere in the North Atlantic.

This intriguing report found no authoritative substantiation, but it gained considerable currency by virtue of an announcement in the House of Commons today that Churchill would refrain—for the first time since he assumed the premiership—from participating in an important debate on progress of the war.

In making this announcement, Lord Privy Seal Maj. Clement R. Attlee offered no explanation, save that it would be "inconvenient" for the Prime Minister to appear in Commons at this time.

Churchill's mysterious absence from the parliamentary proceedings, coupled with the fact that Hopkins was stated to be "incommunicado" at some undisclosed place, stirred London deeply.

It contributed fresh fuel to a wave of speculation already unleashed by a Washington dispatch appearing in the London Daily Mail which said that, according to "official circles" in the United States Capital, the Duke of Kent, now in Canada, and "another very high British personage" were expected to fly to a meeting with Mr. Roose-

French, Nazis At Impasse On Colonies

Vichy Holding Firm As German-Directed Press Denounces U. S.

By the Associated Press

Vichy, Aug. 5.—French-German collaboration talks, involving defense of French colonies and the attitude of the United States, have reached a difficult point at which "delicate problems" must be settled, Fernard de Brinon, representative of the Vichy government in German-occupied Paris, declared today.

The Vichy regime has been reported holding out against strong German pressure for closer collaboration which would include a joint German-French defense of French African possessions, among them Dakar.

At the same time, a government decree ordered Gen. Maxine Weygand to submit all questions of general policy in his North African administration to Vice Premier Admiral Darlan, who will then issue instructions.

For the application of specific measures, the decree directed Gen. Weygand to apply to the respective departments of state concerned at Vichy.

As De Brinon made his statement the campaign of the Paris press for military collaboration to defend French colonies was softpedaled suddenly, although the Paris newspapers continued to accuse the United States of desiring to "steal" the colonies in Africa.

In a statement asserting that the Vichy regime would not break the policy of collaboration previously agreed upon, De Brinon said:

"This policy has its difficulties. Numerous and delicate problems are

15 Republicans Demand End To War Steps

Hoover and Landon Call Entry in Strife Peril to Democracy

By the Associated Press

Alexandria Bay, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Fifteen persons, mostly Republican leaders, including Alf M. Landon and former President Herbert Hoover, joined today in an appeal "that Congress put a stop to step-by-step projection of the United States into undeclared war."

A statement, declaring that "naval action," and "military occupation of bases outside the Western Hemisphere," conflicts with principles of democratic government," was made public by Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois.

Threat to Democracy Seen

"Recent events raise doubts that this is a clearcut issue of liberty and democracy," the statement said. "It is not purely a world conflict between tyranny and freedom. The Anglo-Russian alliance has dissipated that illusion."

Others who signed the statement, released at Lowden's summer camp on an island in the St. Lawrence River, are:

Former Vice President Charles E. Dawes, Irvin S. Cobb and Clarence Budington Kelland, writers; John L. Lewis, former C. I. O. head; Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago; Geraldine Farrar, opera singer; Reuben Clark, former United States Ambassador to Mexico; Henry P. Troops Massed At Singapore Ready to Head Off Japanese

Showdown Near

By the Associated Press

Manila, Aug. 5.—Formidable land, air and naval reinforcements reached the mighty British base of Singapore today and belief spread in the Far East that Britain might be preparing a swift occupation of key points in Thailand to head off the Japanese.

Dispatches from Thailand—which adjoins French Indo-China, scene of the recent diplomatic victory that gave Japan bases within relatively easy striking distance of Singapore, Hongkong and Manila—said plainly the government was conscious that a grave decision must be made as to relations with Japan on the one hand and Britain and the United States on the other.

Japan's Demands Admitted

A possible indication that this decision might be to resist any Japanese invasion was given in an official announcement at Bangkok that a tank headquarters for Thailand's eastern forces had been established at Battambang, Cambodia, 35 miles from Siemreap, Indo-China, which the Japanese occupied yesterday.

Contingents of mechanized troops were dispatched to Battambang along with large numbers of police and civil officers. The town is in the area recently ceded to Thailand from French Indo-China.

That Japan was pressing certain demands was in effect acknowledged by Thai officials.

Some Came From Britain

Broadcast Japanese reports that Thailand had recognized the Japanese puppet government of Manchukuo were confirmed tonight by the Bangkok government. While the Japanese appeared to see a certain complaisance in such recognition, it appeared that whatever concession Thailand had in fact made was offset by creation of the Battambang base.

Air Raid Alarms Heard in Iceland But No Bombs Fall

Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 5 (U.P.)—An air raid alarm sounded here at 4:30 a. m. today, continuing until 5:10 a. m., but no attack developed.

An alarm also sounded at Akureyri, in northern Iceland, during last night, but no enemy planes were sighted.

[The dispatch from Reykjavik did not state whether the alarm, believed to be the first experienced by American troops on active duty in this war, was a practice alarm ordered by American or British authorities, or whether it followed the suspected approach of enemy aircraft.]

$72 Contributed For Widow, 74, Robbed of Savings

Generous Washingtonians yesterday came to the aid of Mrs. Rose Fones, 74, of 418 Third Street Northwest, whose life savings of $1,167 were stolen from her room Sunday. Last night her finances had risen from zero to $72, most of it the contributions of Post readers.

Their sympathies stirred by the misfortune of the elderly widow, the readers gave in various amounts throughout the day.

Two of the donations, one for $25 and one for $3, were anonymous. Mrs. W. Crozier, 1735 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, sent in $25, and Mrs. L. E. Cleek, 6041 Ridge Drive, Brookmont, Md., and M. L. Genning, 2316 F Street Northwest, each gave $1.

Monday a man stopped and gave Mrs. Fones $5 and a woman neighbor handed her $2.

Police, meanwhile, were bringing back from Bristol, Tenn., a man suspected of the theft. Only $18 was found on him.

Broadway's Big Signs Blink Out In Strikers' Stunt

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Times Square's mammoth electric advertising signs, source of entertainment to blase New Yorkers and tourists, blinked out one by one tonight in a demonstration by the striking Brotherhood of Electric Workers (A. F. L.).

Beginning at 7:55 p. m., the huge spectaculars and theater, night club, restaurant and hotel signs went out, one at a time, as a small week night crowd gaped. At 8:20 all the signs were turned on progressively.

Union officials estimated 300,000 mazda lamps, averaging 25 watts each, were affected, in addition to 200,000 feet of neon tubing. Street lights and store windows were not darkened.

Michael Siegel, business representative of the union, which is engaged in a jurisdictional dispute with the Consolidated Edison Co., said 100 nonstriking maintenance men pulled the switches.

Tokyo Wants Ecuador Apology For Anti-Japanese Incidents

(Copyright by New York Times)

Tokyo, Aug. 5.—The foreign office announced today that the Japanese government has protested to Ecuador against rumors that were incorporated in the latter's official announcements, to the effect that Japanese joined Peruvians in border clashes and killed and wounded Ecuadoreans, as well as against incidents growing out of such reports.

Through Tsuneo Yanai, the Japanese Minister accredited to Ecuador, the Japanese government has demanded the cancellation of the above-mentioned announcements and an investigation of the incidents.

It likewise has reserved all rights for demanding indemnity, punishment of those guilty, and an expression of regret on the part of the Ecuadorean government, together with a guarantee against the occurrence of further incidents.

The foreign office announcement adds "there is reason to believe that the fabricated information originated in the information machinery of a certain third power with headquarters at Guayaquil."

According to the foreign office statement, the incidents consisted in the search and delay in the sailing of the Japanese liner Kiyokawa Maru from Guayaquil, in the dismissal and attempt to expel a Japanese technician employed by the Ecuadorean company, and a mob assault on a Japanese quinine factory at Guayaquil.

Nazi Losses Heavy in Ukraine, Reds Say; Berlin Claims Successes in Thrust South

Soviet Lines Hold On Central, North Fronts, They Assert

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Wednesday), Aug. 6.—A bloody German bid to encircle the Ukraine capital of Kiev from the north and south met furious resistance by Soviet troops for the fourth straight day yesterday and the Nazis lost heavily in men and material, the Russian communique reported today.

At the same time, Red army lines held firmly in the central Smolensk sector before Moscow and along the Estonian border below Leningrad, the Soviets indicated.

A Red counter-attack at Korosten, 80 miles northwest of Kiev, was said to have smashed a German infantry regiment. More than 300 Germans were reported killed and wounded and many prisoners were taken.

Cadets Thrown Into Battle

Heavy fighting also was in progress in the Bel Tserkov area, 50 miles south of the Ukraine capital.

The Russians declared officially that the Germans, sustaining heavy losses among their regulars, are throwing 16-year-old cadets and old-class reservists into the battle in many sectors.

On the Leningrad front, the Russians said, repeated attacks by the German Sixteenth Motorized Division were hurled back with German losses running to at least 1,500 dead and wounded.

Sixty machine guns, and scores of other guns and mine throwers were reported seized by the Russians.

The Red air force said 53 German planes were destroyed Monday with a loss of only 21 Soviet craft.

Morale Broken, Says Lozovsky

"The process of distintegration of the German army has begun," said S. A. Lozovsky, vice foreign commissar and government spokesman. "The magnificent German technique has been ruined by bad Hitler politics."

Lozovsky told a press conference last night that the German attack on the Soviet Union was the "first crack in the German army" and said the second crack appeared when "the period of easy victories ended and the period of heavy losses began."

He declared that "the morale of the German army is broken and this is the surest sign that it is nearing ruin and rout."

The Russians were employing a variety of stubborn tactics to hold back the invaders. These ranging from stalking in American Indian fashion to more orthodox maneuvers such as the one by which the army newspaper Red Star reported the Soviet "N" Division was holding a river bank, unnamed.

A dispatch from the front said that a strong German force of infantry, supported by artillery and planes, launched an attack, August 2, attempting to cross the river and reach a highway junction and railroad station controling the approach to a city.

The Russian division permitted advanced German units to cross and then counterattacked, crushing them, the dispatch reported.

A front-line dispatch to the official newspaper Pravda reported that one Russian company had slipped through a forest fire which the Germans had started to protect their flank and that the Reds succeeded in a surprise attack carried out with tactics like those of the old American Indian campaigns.

The dispatch said that the company after passing through the fire zone crept through the fields and stalked the German company on the road and destroyed it by sudden assault.

The Red army's heaviest tanks also played an important part in Russian counterattacks. The army organ, Red Star, reported that two of these mammoth land battleships met and routed an entire German column, including a battalion of motorized infantry, a company of light tanks and 20 armored cars.

The Soviet tanks, the dispatch added, without firing—simply by running down enemy machines—crushed 15 German light tanks and 10 armored cars.

Reviewing last month's aerial warfare Pravda quoted Soviet Hero N. Antonov, who declared that his fighter squadron held superiority in sector "B" during more than 2,000 flights because of the superiority of Soviet pursuit planes and the greater initiative of Russian pilots.

Antonev said German bombers were flown in circles, nose-to-tail, as a defense tactic when attacked by Russian fighters. The device has failed, the Soviet flier said, because the Russians have been diving into the circle, dispersing the planes and picking them off one by one.

Surprise Attack Is Annihilating Foes, Reich Reports

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 5.—German armies have turned suddenly southeastward from the direct road to Moscow and have made a major break-through 62 miles below Smolensk, the German high command announced today, and thus tonight there appeared prospects of a vast attempt at encirclement of Kiev and the upper Ukraine.

While the surprise attack southeast of Smolensk was succeeding in annihilating some powerful Russian units and encircling others, according to the official German account, other German shock troops south of Kiev were reported to have smashed into strong Soviet field positions, seizing 43 bunkers, taking at least 6,000 prisoners and killing twice as many as were captured.

D. N. B., official news agency, said the Germans have captured Bel Tserkov, 50 miles south of Kiev, where the Ruussians were making their stoutest stand to defend the Ukraine capital.

The agency further declared that Kholm, 250 miles northwest of Moscow, had been captured. This indicated the Germans had made an advance of about 70 miles in the sector midway between Smolensk and Leningrad.

Large Force Attacking

The southern advance, as reported by D. N. B., indicated an effort was being made to throw a giant arm around Kiev.

In this area—extending some 155 miles south of Kiev—the Russian defenses were reported fighting in a major battle against a large attacking force. Neutral observers said the engagement was a vital one for the Red army, for—if the German offensive should succeed—the Wehrmacht in this area would swing northwest, into position to make contact with the German contingents which so surprisingly turned up southeast of Smolensk today.

This strategy would serve the dual purpose of a wide encirclement of Kiev and severance of connections between the Ukrainian Hinterland and the Russian Black Sea port of Odessa.

Apparently there is at least one smaller encirclement movement within this larger one. The high command today said Red army units trying to break out of a limited area of entrapment near Kiev had been repulsed and in part destroyed. D. N. B. told of the derailment of a large Red army transport train which was trying to move defeated troops and equipment eastward on the same front.

Estonian Town Taken

In the north, German Messerschmitts were credited with wrecking three heavily-laden Russian munitions trains near Lake Peipus; almost complete occupation of Estonia, last of the Soviet Baltic buffer states, was indicated with official announcement of the capture of Tapa, railway town 45 miles southeast of Tallinn.

In spite of these announcements or forecasts of German successes, there were recurrent reports that the Russians are fighting to the bitter end.

In one overrun position a German division reported finding 450 Russians dead, including many officers and commissars; in the central area, German accounts told how a Soviet division composed of untrained men, unfamiliar with their weapons, was wiped out.

Belgians Forged Instruments For Escape Plane by Hand

(This is the third of a series of interviews in which two Belgian fliers, using the pseudonyms of "Jean Qevers" and "Jacques Dubois" to protect their loved ones still in Belgium, tell the inside story of their thrilling escape to England in a stolen plane.)

By Merrill Mueller,

International News Services War Correspondent

London, Aug. 5.—How these two Belgian air force pilots over a period of three months finally repaired an ancient training plane and successfully escaped to England from Antwerp under the very eyes of German sentries is a story of sheer courage and determination.

Ten different nights during the course of three months they crept into a barn practically alongside a German officers' mess and worked on their winged liberator. They wanted freedom and they wanted to fight. They had everything but gasoline and instruments. Jean explained:

"We tried distilling automobile gasoline—there was an explosion (a little one in a friend's garage) and that ended that. We wanted aviation fuel — the Germans wanted money. We got the gasoline ostensibly for a friend's automobile, since regular petrol is almost unobtainable."

Friends were most helpful. To make a level flight indicator, and a climb and dive indicator, the boys wanted glass tubing and red ink. Friends knew why these instruments were wanted but they did not know where the boys planned on getting an airplane. No questions were asked—Belgians aid any who are willing to risk an escape attempt. They await liberation while going through a long period of sometime painful passive resistance to the occupation.

A thorough campaign of friends in Ghent, Brussels, Namur, and Antwerp resulted in the collection of necessary materials, Jacques explained. He continued:

"Then I had to design and make the instruments. I used a glass ball from a chemistry laboratory for a level flight indicator. From the ball two glass tube lines, held together with rubber hosing, carried a supply of red ink to and from the level-mounted reservoir on the back of the instrument panel we cut from the end of a barrel. This reservoir supplied ink to the ball in the panel and when the nose of the plane went down, the ball filled; when the nose came up, it emptied correspondingly.

"A ball bearing mounted in castor oil and sealed in a half-bent glass tube made the equivalent of a carpenter's level and gave us an indicator for, banking and turning. Then I made another simple level indicator, and finally Jean and I puzzled on how to make an air speed indicator. We had to know the danger of stalling speed.

"Jean devised this. He took a bed spring, stretched one length of its coil and fitted to the end a small flat piece of tin. Then he mounted this on a flat board so that the tin presented a broad surface at right angles to the board. We tried it out on a friend's car and as the wind pressure from speed forced the spring back we marked out 50, 55, 60, 65 miles per hour and painted these markings."

Jean cut in again at this point:

"We made two trips to the barn to fit these instruments and our panel to the airplane. We had to jack the tail of the plane up on a wooden horse to get the right settings; and then tilt the wings to check everything. We had tried to distill the plane's oil but couldn't, so determined to use it as it was and take our chances.

"I had a friend who worked as a roving laborer for the Germans (many Belgians do, he said, to support their families) and he was working on a German airfield where there were several bombers which had been damaged and crashed after returning from England. Through this friend I managed to steal not one but two compasses, and a simple altimeter.

"More visits to the barn—each time creeping by sentries and carefully working in the semidarkness as silently as possible. Several times we thought we were ready to try our take-off and each time we carted the gasoline to the spot—always on the darkest nights. But each time there was something else to be done—clean spark plugs, check the ignition, etc.

"At last we had everything ready, we thought, and again, for the ninth time, made our way to the barn. Luckily we left the gasoline at our bicycles as usual and crept to the door. I heard Jacques swear almost in tearful rage.

"Our friendly lock had been changed!"

Queen Will Broadcast Thanks to U. S. Sunday

London, Aug. 5 (INS).—Queen Elizabeth, it was announced tonight, will broadcast to America Sunday a message of thanks for work done by wartime relief organizations.

(In New York, C. B. S. said the broadcast would be heard over its network at 4 p. m. E. S. T.)

Iron Cross Is Given To Max Schmeling

Berlin, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Max Schmeling, former world heavyweight boxing champion and now Nazi parachute infantryman, was decorated today with the iron cross of the first and second class for his part in the battle of Crete.

Schmeling, who injured a knee in the Crete fighting, is resting at his country estate after weeks in a hospital where he lost 30 pounds.

Roosevelt And Churchill May Confer

Official sources in Washington could neither confirm nor deny last night insistent rumors that President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain, Prime Minister MacKenzie King of Canada and Harry L. Hopkins, lease-lend supervisor, were about to stage a history-making conference, possibly in Canada or somewhere on the Atlantic Ocean.

Mr. Roosevelt radioed to shore through an aide early yesterday from his yacht Potomac that he was cruising in "Northern waters" to an undisclosed destination and had spent some time conferring with Admiral E. J. King, commander of the Atlantic fleet.

The message to the Navy Department from the Potomac said that the President had told members of his party he had no definite schedule and that weather and angling prospects would determine each day's movements on his "fisherman's vacation."

Officials were intrigued by the rumors of the meeting with Churchill, but apparently had no information on whether or not the reports were true.

Stephen Early, White House secretary, said he knew nothing about the matter and referred inquiries to the State Department, noting in addition that the Navy Department was handling messages from the Potomac.

At the State Department, Secretary Hull confined himself to telling reporters that he had spoken to the President by telephone Saturday and that the President at that time had made no mention of a meeting with Churchill. Pressed for a more categorical answer, Hull merely repeated that the President had not mentioned the matter Saturday.

British Embassy officials said that they would be likely to know beforehand if such a momentous meeting were contemplated and they said they had had no word to that effect.

The only official statement released by the Navy Department was the text of the scheduled daily release from the Potomac.

The message said:

"After a night of restful sleep President continuing cruise in northern waters to undisclosed destination. Attired in sport shirt and slacks, President enjoying sea air from fantail. In response to questions from members of party as to scope of cruise, President announced no definite schedule or localities and that weather and angling prospects would determine each day movements.

Sidelights of the War

British Bag U-Boat With Old U. S. Destroyer

Copyright by New York Times

London, Aug. 5.—The former U. S. S. Hunt, now H. M. S. Broadway, took part in an action that destroyed a German U-boat, the admiralty has announced.

She is one of the 50 American destroyers which arrived in British waters last October and are now assigned to the duty of protecting North Atlantic convoys.

Creeping in toward a line of merchantmen, the enemy submarine was first detected by the Corvette Aubretia. This vessel laid down depth charges. The destroyers H. M. S. Bulldog and H. M. S. Broadway then raced in to join in the hunt.

When the U-boat came to the surface, H. M. S. Broadway immmediately opened an accurate gunfire while preparing to ram the enemy. The German crew came tumbling out from the U-boat's conning tower with their hands upheld in surrender before the warship reached them.

Lieut. Comdr. Taylor, of H. M. S. Broadway, has received the D. S. O. and Chief Stoker Capelin got the D. S. M.

Czars' Jewels in U. S.?

Rome, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Italian newspapers claimed today that the crown jewels of the Russian Czars were secretly shipped to San Francisco as a Soviet guarantee of future payment for American war materials.

The Popolo Di Roma said: "The Romanoff jewels carry an evil eye. The White House was forced to accept these jewels to demonstrate that aid to Russia was a good business deal for America."

Italians on Own Feet

Rome, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Italian cafe goers may have to drink their synthetic coffee standing up.

Benito Mussolini's newspaper Popolo D'Italia today began a campaign to requisition cafe chairs and tables for conversion into armaments, claiming that their metal parts are more valuable on the battlefield than supporting cafe frequenters who "talk too much."

King's Mail Uncensored

London, Aug. 5 (INS).—Unlike that of other Britons, the mail of King George is not censored, it was learned tonight.

It was pointed out that the King's letters abroad are dispatched via diplomatic pouches and immune to censorship.

To View 'Bombed' Plant

Moscow, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Soviet Information Bureau invited foreign correspondents today to a tour of the Stalin automobile plant in Moscow tomorrow. German reports have pictured it as wrecked by bombing but it was said here to be working normally.

To Pay for Church Damage

Berlin, Aug. 5 (AP).—German authorities have advised Roman Catholic bishops they will compensate fully for air raid damage to churches roughly estimated at 200,000 marks, D. N. B. said tonight.

Mosquitoes (Bugs Not Boats) Irk Midshipmen

Calling reported lack of screen protection against mosquitoes at the Naval Academy a "disgrace," the Rev. Robert S. Lloyd, S. J., spiritual director of the Manresa (Catholic) Retreat House near Annapolis, wants "something done about it."

"Air-conditioned offices at Washington for many an old fogey," he wrote in the current issue of the Manresan monthly which he edits, "but just a hell-hole at Annapolis in the hot summer time for our very best American boys."

"Why doesn't Uncle Sam spend a few dollars in a worthwhile cause and protect these wonderful kids by putting up screens?" he asked. He pointed out that two midshipmen he recently picked up in his car said their only complaint was that "the mosquitoes were awful, and interfere with our sleep and study."

Fairfax Woman's Death by Rifle Ruled Suicide

Dr. T. B. McCord, Fairfax County coroner, yesterday issued a certificate of suicide in the death of Mrs. Evelyn C. Green, 20, in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Campbell, near Vienna Monday afternoon.

Police said she was found by her mother with a .22 caliber rifle beside her body in the bedroom.

The coroner said the young woman left a note saying she was unhappy.

Japanese Reach Border of Thailand

Siamese Troops Said to Be Lined Up Along Other Side of Frontier

By Otto D. Tolischus
Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, Aug. 5.—Japanese troops, marching across the plains of Cambodia, reached the new frontier between French Indo-China and Thailand at noon today, according to press reports.

At the same time Thai troops were said to be lining up on the other side of the border and armored British troops were reported taking up positions along the Malay-Thai border in the south.

Therewith, the question of whether Japan will halt her southward advance or go on, whatever the risk is rapidly approaching its answer.

Rumors about a British fleet being in the Gulf of Siam together with reports that the American Navy is getting ships ready to evacuate Americans from Japan added to the tension.

Invasion Disclaimed

The official Japanese standpoint was explained today by Koh Ishii, cabinet spokesman, who disclaimed any Japanese desire for a "joint defense" agreement with Thailand analogous to that reached with Vichy regarding French Indo-China. All Japan wanted, he said, was close economic cooperation with Thailand. As for Japanese troop movements, he explained, they were designed to occupy strong points for adequate defense—nothing more.

The Japanese press, however, with which government spokesmen do not identify themselves but which have often charted the future course of the Japanese policy, makes no secret of its desires. The newspaper Kokumin reiterates today in line with the general trend of the press that the creation of a greater East Asia co-prosperity sphere into which it counts both the Netherlands East Indies and Thailand, is Japan's immutable policy, on which hinges her rise or fall. Kokumin then adds, in much the same tenor of the press campaign preceding the occupation of French Indo-China:

"Our people are greatly concerned over Thailand because, like French Indo-China, she is placed under a merciless pressure by Great Britain, the United States and Chungking, so much so that her national security is threatened."

Thailand's formal statement that she is "not oppressed either economically or militarily by any country" is explained by the paper as the result of the country's sorry plight which calls for Japanese sympathy but no credence in her protestations. French Indo-China's sovereignty and security, the Kokumin declares, is guaranteed by the advance of the Japanese army and navy; therefore, it urges that "Thailand should draw a moral from this development."

Thailand has reacted to the new situation by advancing Japan a credit of ten million bahts and recognizing Manchukuo; and she is expected to recognize Nanking soon. In doing so, says the Kokumin, Thailand "admitted that she was a member of the coprosperity sphere."

Meanwhile official reports from the Japanese consul at Batavia indicated that the operation of the freezing decrees might be relaxed and that neither Japan nor the Netherlands East Indies desire to stop trade entirely. Negotiations for a new monetary agreement to open up trade channels are now going on at Batavia, the Japanese press believes that some kind of understanding has been already reached.

Flood Damages Crops

However, all authorities, including the cabinet, are making strenuous efforts not only to complete national mobilization, but at the same time to adjust the nation's economy to the new freezing and other restrictions which have been aggravated by extensive flood damage to Japan's crop.

The cabinet today raised the compensation fund for export losses from 20 million to 70 million yen to buy up goods which have become inexportable especially textiles, machines, chemical products, and some 30 other classifications. According to the newspaper Nichi Nichi government and industry are working out a scheme to make inexportable goods, including silk, available for domestic consumption and to increase the production of all materials which are difficult to import, including oil.

For the moment, however, the commerce ministry is drafting a measure to curtail further oil consumption, ration kerosene, light oils and machine oils, as well as to compel a higher mixture of alcohol to gasoline, while at the same time expanding synthetic oil production, and rationalizing the refining industry for more efficient production.

Emperor Hears of Flood

The extent of the flood damage to crops was reported to Emperor Hirohito today by the Agriculture Minister Hiroyasu Ino, and Home Minister Harumichi Tanabe who has just completed an inspection tour. They told the cabinet that rains have damaged rice and vegetable fields in large areas and have washed out many to such an extent that it is impossible to replant them. Also, that insect plague is presenting a problem.

George T. Leech, 94 Civil War Vet, Dies in Maryland

Baltimore, Aug. 5 (AP).—George T. Leech, a drummer boy of the Civil War who enlisted three times before his twenty-first birthday to serve in battle, died today at 94.

In ill health several weeks, a Methodist Episcopal minister, he died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Blanche Yeatman, of Morris Hill, Anne Arundel County.

Leech first joined the Fifth New York Infantry, known as Duryea's Zouaves, but his father obtained his release because of his age. At 16, with his father's consent, he joined the Ninth Maryland Volunteer Infantry.

Wounded and captured at the Charles Town, W. Va., courthouse, Leech was exchanged for another prisoner and later enlisted again to serve with the Eleventh Maryland Infantry until the war's end.

Funeral services will be held here Thursday at 2 p. m.

Fredericksburg Hosiery Plant Expands Work

Special Dispatch to The Post

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 5.—Albert Staudte, president of the Kenmore Hosiery Co., said yesterday that he did not believe the employes of the company's mill here or the people of Fredericksburg have "anything to worry about" as the result of the Federal Government's order curtailing the use of silk.

On the contrary, Mr. Staudte said, the Kenmore hosiery mill is expanding operations. The plant went on a three-shift, 24-hour-a-day, five-day-a-week basis today. It has been operating two shifts a day for five days a week for some time.

Mr. Staudte pointed out that the Kenmore mill has been gradually changing to the use of rayon and nylon and is not dependent upon silk.

Many Must Forego Comforts to Meet Taxes, Economist Says

With the average American household facing the combined pinch of higher taxes and rising prices in the months ahead, Merryle Stanley Rukeyser, noted writer on economics and economic commentator, presents a number of valuable tips about family budgets in a series of three articles of which this is the first.

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser,
Written for International News Service

New York, Aug. 5.—As Congress works on a bill to increase the tax load, it becomes obvious that the entire population will be called upon to make sacrifices to finance America's colossal program of national defense.

When the civilian gives up a lucrative and promising job to enter the Army at $21 a month, he is making a patriotic contribution. By relinquishing claims to goods, which their untaxed income otherwise would buy, those who remain in civilian life are backing up and supporting the objectives of soldiers in the training camps.

Although the willingness of the American people to support patriotic objectives may be taken for granted, the ability to pay taxes on a rising crescendo necessitates the formulation of technical aides. Before the show is over, it has been computed that those remaining outside of Government service may be called upon to contribute in direct and indirect taxes up to 40 per cent of their income for the support of the sundry activities of Government, National, State and local.

In order to be ready to pay on the barrel head when the tax collector comes around, it will be necessary for almost all of the 30 million American families to rearrange their way of life. Most families will have to cut some comforts out of their budgets in order to provide funds for additional taxes. For the duration at least, we are drifting from rugged individualism, in which each family decides in its own way how to spend its income, to a type of emergency regimentation, in which governmental compulsion limits personal liberty at the marketplace.

The tax weapon is a double edged tool. In the first place, it provides part of the wherewithal for getting ships, tanks, guns, and planes, and, in the second place, it eliminates civilian buying power as a competitor for scarce and strategic materials at the marketplace.

In other words the tax technique is a hidden method of rationing—automatically cutting down the effective civilian demand for products wrought by human muscle, tools and raw materials, which are increasingly needed for mobilization for defense.

Thus the expanding armament boom is different in kind from national prosperity, which results in the distribution of more and better goods to typical American families.

Peacetime prosperity has a sociological biproduct in raising the living standards of the people. On the other hand, armament building creates products which are not directly related to improving the physical well-being of the people.

As individuals in this emergency, we are not called upon to debate the wisdom of policies or the causes of our wartime economic crisis, but rather to dig down into our jeans to get the tax money needed to keep the program going. In the succeeding articles in this series, I shall suggest specific steps which will help the average citizen to meet his obligation to the taxing authorities.

Germans Join Manhunt for De Gaullist

By the Associated Press

Vichy, Aug. 5.—German police joined a French search today for a man described as "one of the most active De Gaullist agents" in Caen, Normany.

He was said to have placed a wreath on a monument to French war dead last July 14, despite a ban on celebration of France's Bastille Day, then shot his way out of police traps and escaped. A chief of police was wounded fatally.

The Paris newspaper Paris Soir reported the man actually was English. The newspaper said he was Pean Hopper, born in Kings Lynn, Norfolk, and used false identification papers in France.

The incident of the war monument wreath became known for the first time today as the hunt for the man was intensified.

It was said the man drove to the monument wearing the uniform of a French officer, placed the wreath and got away. A policeman at Caen was shot July 27 when he stopped a car of the same description and questioned its occupants.

Police said they located the same car in a small garage and laid a trap August 1, but that a man who came to the garage shot his way free, wounding the Caen police chief fatally.

The Paris Soir said an Englishman named Jean Hopper had a mother, wife and daughter who were in a concentration camp.

Saboteurs were reported today to have cut railway telephone and signal lines during the night at Lyon, one of the most important railway junctions in Frnace.

Police have been seeking persons who cut telephone lines near two Lyon freight stations several days ago.

Desert Heat Kills Six; One Thwarts Thirst by Suicide

Yuma, Ariz., Aug. 5 (AP).—A desert short cut over "the Highway of the Devil" took the lives of seven members in a party of nine—one by suicide induced by watching his companions suffer the tortures of thirst and 100-degree heat.

Francisco Arvallo, produce peddler, came upon the victims today as he drove over the Sondra Desert road. Two survivors were brought to a hospital here. The condition of one was critical.

Sheriff T. H. Newman said the party's truck became stalled in sand probably five days ago on the return trip to Brawley, Calif., from a visit in Santa Ana, Sonora.

The dead were identified as German Cornejo, 52; Elias Cornejo, 25; Rafael Cornejo, 17, Elisa Francisco, 4, and Domingo Rocha, 26, all members of the same Brawley, Calif., family; Tomas Ponce and a man identified only as Yocupicio, believed to be of Santa Ana, Sonora.

Francisco Flores, 23, and Socorro Cornejo, 19, were found alive. The Cornejo girl was expected to live.

Elias Cornejo had gone for help. His naked body was found five miles away.

Rafael Cornejo, despairing of his life and unwilling to suffer longer, wrote a note of identification, then slashed his throat.

The car's radiator was empty. The water either had boiled out or had been drained to drink.

British Destroyers Attack Sardinia

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, Aug. 5.—British destroyers executed a daring dawn "sneak raid" on the Italian bases of Porto Conte and Alghero on the northwest coast of Sardinia, Friday, severely damaging hangars and airdromes. The two bases, about three miles apart, are considered "obviously important" because of their nearness to Gibraltar and the western approaches generally.

The seaplane slipway and hangars at Porto Conte were "severely damaged by gunfire," an admiralty communique said, and the airdrome at Alghero was bombarded by the destroyers. Later an attack by naval aircraft of the Ark Royal was made which set alight buildings and hangars.

British Poised At Frontiers to Occupy Siam

day in Singapore, which already had been heavily strengthened, was, of course, not disclosed.

However, the contingent included both British and Indian troops and skilled engineers and technicians, said the official announcement, and arrived in a big convoy which had put out originally from a northwestern port in the United Kingdom, picking up large numbers of Indian troops at Bombay.

The vessels were piped alongside the docks by the bands of Highland and Hyderabad regiments. Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, general officer commanding the British forces in the Far East, and Lieut. Gen. A. E. Percival, commander of the British army in Malaya, greeted the men.

On one troopship was the Maharaja of Patiala, one of India's ranking state potentates and leader of the Indian Sikh sect, who has come to inspect his coreligionists who are serving here with the army.

Regarding a reported British decision to move ahead of any Japanese encroachment in Thailand, informed persons declared Britain's emergency plans were for the seizure of Bangkok and the ports of the Kra Isthmus, which in Japanese hands would cut Singapore off from the Asiatic mainland.

Such a British advance probably would come from the western Burma border, where British air bases have been reinforced. Imperial troops already have been moved by the thousands to Thailand's border with British Malaya and are equipped with tanks, artillery and special weapons for jungle warfare.

These additional reports, all pointing to a crisis in the Orient, were distributed through the Far East:

That a big Chinese army is concentrated on the China border with British Burma, ready to aid the British in defense of the Burma military supply road.

That Thailand armies were standing on the country's southern borders with British Malaya.

That Japanese troops were arriving in large numbers in Dairen, the port of entry to Manchukuo, presumably to reinforce Japanese forces standing along the Siberian border with Russia.

(A Chinese diplomatic informant in London declared that events in Thailand were moving toward "a swift and terrible climax.")

Allegany Lacks Teachers for Five Vocational Classes

Special Dispatch to The Post

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 5.—Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of Allegany County public schools, has a job on his hands. He is faced with the task of finding replacements for five industrial arts teachers, three of whom have resigned to accept other positions, one having accepted the call to military service and another having been promoted to supervisor.

Those who have resigned to accept other positions are Paul E. Horn, Allegany High School, who is now with the Glenn Martin aircraft plant in Baltimore; Norman Greene, Bruce High, Westernport, and Owen L. Fahling, Beall High, Frostburg.

Ralph Pasley, of Allegany, has been drafted for military service. One of the two openings at Fort Hill High here came about with the advancement of Julius D. Lonnholm to a supervisory capacity in the place formerly held by Herschel James, now supervisor of defense training in the State of Maryland with headquarters in Baltimore.

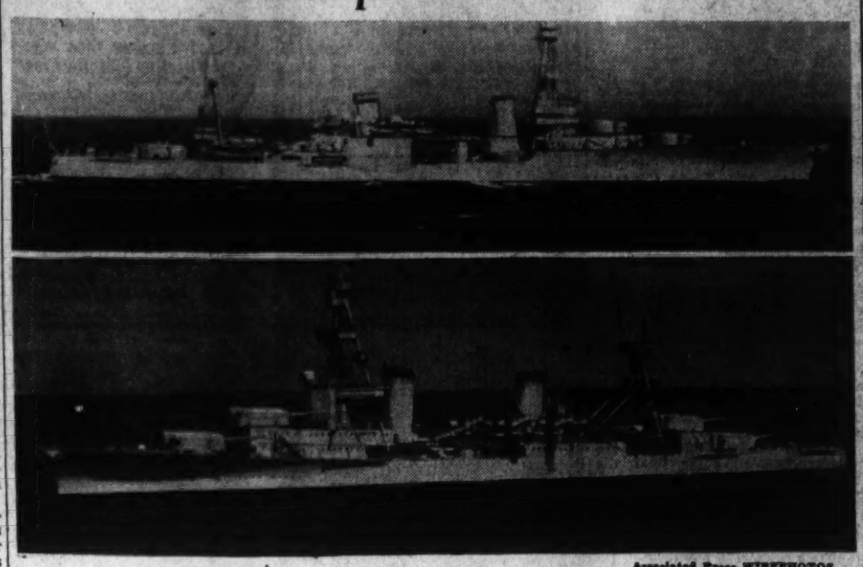
U. S. Warships Arrive in Australia



Associated Press WIREPHOTOS

ON "TRAINING CRUISE"—The Navy Department announced yesterday that the United States cruisers Northampton (top) and Salt Lake City (lower) had arrived in Brisbane, Australia. Their movement was described as a training cruise overland rail trip for every item of equipment sent to the Far Eastern forces. Since the capacity of the Trans-Siberian Railroad is so limited, it was explained, much valuable shipping space will be saved if the United States takes over part of the task of maintaining the Far Eastern army.

Maintenance of this force of 52 divisions is considered to be a vital necessity in stabilizing the Far Eastern situation and keeping a restraining influence over Japan. Military authorities understand that Japan has only 11 divisions in Manchukuo. Existence of a formidable Soviet force in that sector, it was said, discourages Japan from attempting to seize Russian maritime provinces along the Pacific.

Officials do not expect the flow of supplies to Russia to be very large for these reasons:

1. The front of the Russian-German War is so vast and Russia's own store of military equipment is so large that the amount of supplies that could be delivered by the United States would not be enough to affect the outcome of the war decisively. Russia plans to rely upon the United States, it was said, for critical items of equipment that are of extreme importance but are not large in bulk or numbers.

Railroad Bottleneck

2. Limited facilities at the port of Vladivostok and the bottleneck of the Trans-Siberian Railroad restrict the quantity of equipment that can be sent to the European front. One official compared the capacity of the harbor of Vladivostok with the port of Charleston, S. C.

Oumansky made an unannounced call at the White House yesterday, in the absence of the President. The Soviet envoy conferred for a few minutes with Rudolph Forster, chief clerk, and drove quickly away.

There is ample precedent for shipment of wheat to Soviet Siberia. In past years the Russians often have sold their surplus wheat in Europe, using the proceeds to buy American and Canadian grain for the Far Eastern provinces.

Russia's need for American fats and oils is likely to become acute, officials said. They explained that German occupation of a large share of the richest Soviet farmland will have a drastic effect on the normal Russian supply of these products.

It was pointed out by the New York Times that arrival of American equipment in Vladivostok might force Japan to take military action to prevent the Vladivostok and Amur River armies of the Soviet from becoming strengthened.

Outbreak of warfare in eastern Siberia, either as an ally of Hitler might be of benefit to Japan, it was said, since the Neutrality Act might be invoked, thus closing those waters to American ships and cutting down on the supplies Russia could import from the United States.

The dispatch reported that it is believed that Japan is getting ready to try to seize parts of Russian Siberia, either as an all of Hitler or in the role of jackal, as Mussolini fell upon fallen France.

It was also mentioned that the approach of winter may reduce American shipments through Vladivostok. That port freezes up by early November and access is possible only with the help of icebreakers, it was said.

Familiar Pattern

Dispatch of the cruisers to Australia, in the wake of Japan's occupation of Indo-China, followed the pattern that became familiar last March, during another tense period of American-Japanese relations. At that time, an American naval squadron consisting of two cruisers and five destroyers was sent to Australia, while a smaller force of destroyers went to New Zealand. The operation was described as a training cruise.

The Navy's brief announcement yesterday of the latest move to give Japan pause read:

"The Navy Department announced today that two heavy cruisers, the Northampton and the Salt Lake City, Rear Admiral S. A. Taffinder, U. S. Navy, commanding the detachment, while on a training cruise to the South Pacific Ocean, have put into Brisbane, Australia, for refueling and several days recreation for the personnel of the ships' companies."

U. S. to Ship East Canadian-Built Planes

Ottawa, Aug. 5 (AP).—Several hundred Canadian-built Hurricane fighter planes are being equipped by the United States for lease-lend shipment to China, the Netherlands East Indies, and possibly Russia, it was reported in informed quarters here today.

Financial angles of the deal are said to be covered by the Hyde Park agreement whereby the United States furnished airplane engines and other materials to Canadian factories producing war equipment for Britain or other countries eligible for lease-lend aid, and bought from Canadian factories articles needed to fulfill the lease-lend program.

The arrangement is reported to provide for delivery of between 400 and 500 Hurricanes from the Fort William, Ontario, plant of the National Steel Car Co.

Other Canadian war materials, including guns, also will go to Chungking, Batavia and possibly Vladivostok via the United States under a similar arrangement.

Shakespeare Play Set for Tonight

A 90-minute performance of Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream" will be presented by the Washington Players tonight at 8:15 at the Sylvan Theater on the Washington Monument Grounds. It will be the final summer festival for 1941, and in case of rain will be presented tomorrow night instead.

This streamlined version of the Shakespeare play is under the direction of Denis E. Connell, assisted by Jerry Dabney. Parts of the Mendelssohn score, composed for "Midsummer Night's Dream" will be played by the Washington Civic Orchestra.

Tickets can be obtained at the Willard Hotel news stand, the American Automobile Association Ticket Bureau, and the recreation office at 1740 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest. Tickets also will be on sale at the Sylvan Theater tonight.

Republicans Ask End to War Steps good, Philadelphia businessman.

The complete statement:

"The American people should insistently demand that Congress put a stop to step-by-step projection of the United States into undeclared war. Congress has not only the sole power to declared war but also the power and responsibility to keep the country out of war unless and until both houses have otherwise decided. Exceeding its expressed purpose, the lend-lease bill has ben followd by naval action, by military occupation fo bases outside the Western Hemisphere, by promise of unauthorized aid to Russia and by other belligerent moves.

"Such warlike steps, in no case sanctioned by Congress, undermines its constitutional powers and the fundamental principles of democratic government. The Representatives of the people, in passing the lease-lend bill, expressed the national conviction that preservation of the British empire and China is desirable for us and for civilization. We hold that view but the intent of Congress was that lease-lend material should be transferred to belligerent ownership in the United States and utilized only to protect the independence of democracies.

"We hold that in giving generous aid to these democracies at our seaboard we have gone as far as is consistent either with law, with sentiment or with security. Recent events raise doubts that this war is a clear-cut issue of liberty and democracy. It is not purely a world conflict between tyranny and freedom. The Anglo-Russian alliance has dissipated that illusion.

"Insofar as this is a war of power-politics, the American people want no part in it. American participation is far more likely to destroy democracy in this country and thus in the Western Hemisphere than to establish it in Europe. The hope of civilization now rests primarily upon the preservation of freedom and decocracy in the United States.

"That will be lost for a generation if we join in this war. We maintain that American lives should be sacrificed only for American independence or to prevent the invasion of the Western Hemisphere.

"Few people honestly believe that the Axis is now, or will in the future, be in a position to threaten the independence of any part of this hemisphere if our defenses are properly prepared.

"Energies of this country should be concentrated on the defense of our own liberties. Freedom in America does not depend on the outcome of struggles for material power between other nations."

raised. We are at a time when the most delicate of these problems must be settled.

"I am persuaded that the negotiations will succeed and that we will get out of the present impasse."

The Paris press turned loose both barrels against the United States for Undersecretary of State Welles' statement Saturday declaring that the United States attitude toward Vichy would be governed hereafter by the "effectiveness with which France defends its territories against the Axis powers' aggression."

Not Mentioned in Free Zone

The mildest expression used by the Paris press was "unjustified attack" in describing the Welles statement, which was published in full in the occupied zone, although not a line has appeared concerning it in the unoccupied territory.

La France au Travail declared the United States was "seeking a quarrel" while other papers listed wrongs they said France had received at the hands of the United States.

Congress Warned To Nip Inflation

later shared direction of the Administration's monopoly inquiry, was SEC commissioner, became a member of the President's Defense Advisory Commission and now heads the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply.

This chart showed the wholesale price of butter in June had risen 50 per cent since the war started, and the retail price 36 per cent. Lard had gone up 68 per cent wholesale and 30 per cent retail. Wholesale coffee prices had spiraled 52 per cent though still only 2.7 per cent retail. It showed a 64 per cent wholesale advance in the price of dried beans, against 25 per cent retail price increases—a sugar wholesale price rise of 13.7 per cent with the retail price catching up at 11.6 per cent.

In all price movements wholesale prices move first, he warned.

"We are now knocking at the door of the price level of 1929, which I consider was too high," he said.

He said America dare not "take the chance" of recurrence of the collapse that followed the first World War.

The price control bill does not include ceilings on wages, nor did Henderson propose direct wage controls, but he said that unless prices are regulated wages may get out of hand.

Prices remained fairly steady in the early months after the war's outbreak, his charts showed, but turned sharply upward last February, leveling off some when OPACS went to work.

Revealed as Key

"That February turn is the key," he said. "Without more authority, we will not again be able to control the tendency."

The general price rise since the European war broke, Henderson said, had been 20 per cent, but among the 28 basic commodities, all vital to defense, there were some increases of 50 per cent.

Henderson will return today for direct testimony on the bill and questioning by members.

Representative Wolcott (Republican), of Michigan, head of a special Republican study group framing a substitute bill, said it would attempt to reach the price problem through "orthodox" controls on credit at its source, with this implemented by price fixing. The group will recommend repeal of the President's unused powers to further devalue the dollar, he indicated.

"I think the snow will be flying before we get around to final action on the price bill," Wolcott said.

House leaders may ask three-day recesses of the House next week, leaving the Banking Committee at work on the price bill, but one member said the committee would "recess too, if the House does."

'Ceiling' of 12 Cents To Be Put on Copper

A ceiling price of 12 cents a pound on copper, "the price at which the bulk of the domestic output has sold for nearly a year," and a schedule setting maximum prices on copper scrap will be issued this week by the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply, Leon Henderson, administrator, announced last night.

At the same time, in a move to provide that the relatively small proportion of copper costing more than 12 cents a pound to produce shall continue to flow into defense and civilian consuming channels, Henderson is recommending that the Metals Reserve Co., an agency of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, purchase such high-cost copper at prices in excess of 12 cents.

The statement said that imposition of a ceiling on copper prices is made necessary by the issuance of a general preference order by the OPM placing copper under 100 per cent priority control. Uniform ceiling of 12 cents a pound will prevent the sale of copper allocated under this order to different consumers at different prices.

The third inspector in line for the superintendency is Maurice Collins, also a veteran policeman. Kelly outranks Collins in seniority by exactly a year.

During his interview with Commissioner Young yesterday, Brown presented three recommendations for improvement of efficiency. They were:

A modernized and intensified course of training for young recruits entering the Police School.

Additional personnel for the police Women's Bureau.

Five Detectives Promoted

The Commissioners yesterday promoted five precinct detectives to detective sergeants and named 26 rookies to the force.

The new detective sergeants are Elwood S. Groves, Irving Lubore, Frank M. White, George M. Cook and Reuben Nichols.

OPM Hit for 'Thrusts' at Labor, Industry as U. A. W. Convenes

2 Representatives Of Agency Declared At Convention

By the Associated Press

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 5.—A. C. I. O.-United Automobile Workers Union official asserted tonight it was time for the Office of Production Management "to devote more effort to long-range defense production and less to uncalled for interference with the affairs of organized labor."

Assailing what he termed "the presence at our convention of two representatives of the OPM," George F. Addes, U. A. W. secretary-treasurer, said in a statement that their attendance "calls attention again to the deadly thrusts planned by that Government agency against the business of the employers and the jobs of the workers in the auto industry." He did not identify the two OPM men.

Addes' statement came after the first heated factional dispute of the U. A. W.-C. I. O. Sixth National Convention in which delegates unofficially refused representation to a local accused of Communistic leadership.

"It is the No. 1 task of our convention to lay the basis for an effective campaign against the unnecessary and brutal slashes to be imposed by the OPM and OPACS (Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply)," Addes asserted.

"Had OPM planned intelligently when it was first set up, instead of listening to the self-interested advice of its corporation consultants, our industry would not now be threatened with temporary destruction."

Defense officials have indicated 1942 automobile production will be reduced 20 per cent.

By a standing vote and a roll call poll unofficially set at 1,700 to 1,200, the convention refused to seat ten delegates of the local at the Milwaukee Allis-Chalmers plant, where a 79-day strike was staged this year. The local claims to represent 8,000 workers.

Richard T. Frankensteen, U. A. W.-C. I. O. international executive board member and leader of a faction urging the convention to bar Communists from holding office, interpreted the vote as a "good kick in the teeth for Communism" and predicted adoption of his resolution to ban Communists.

"This unofficial vote is a clear indication," he told reporters, "of the trend the convention will take." He said that "in the main the Allis-Chalmers union is dominated by Communism."

'The Squid' Floats; Inventor Sees Hitler 50% Nearer Doom

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

HITS THE WATER—A. J. Haskin's "Squid" is launched in the Blue River at Kansas City. The inventor is hugging its sides

By the Associated Press

Kansas City, Aug. 5.—The 22-ton cigar-shaped Squid today removed 50 per cent of the "if" from its designer's promise:

"Hitler's dead as a dodo if it works."

It floated.

Few of the river folk who watched the 50-foot concrete craft that resembled a silo had any idea it would float. But it did—and drew only 25 inches of water.

That's why they're wondering about the painting contractor's theory of propulsion, which he says will give 2,000-ton models of the Squid a speed of 50 knots.

Two 250-horsepower Diesel engines, soon to be installed, will pump water in at the front, expel it at the rear, to give the Squid locomotion, the former San Francisco shipyard worker says.

"When I get her going I want the Federal Government and England to see her. If the darned thing does as well as its model, Hitler's a dead dodo. You could turn these ships out so fast, and they would go so fast, that there never would be anything such as the Battle of the Atlantic."

The speed he anticipates would make them invaluable blockade runners, and he believes that loaded they would ride so low in the water that they would be hard to spot.

Exactly 48 persons, including a couple of chamber of commerce representatives, witnessed the launching, successful after three flops, but Mrs. Ruby Spiker, who's never seen such goin's on since she moved on Blue River 22 years ago, didn't budge from her porch. Said Mrs. Spiker:

"Do all those people have to get in my corn?"

House Passes Draft Property Bill, 241-136

The Administration's modified draft property bill, empowering the President to requisition certain articles needed for defense, yesterday was approved by the House, 241 to 136.

Despite limiting changes inserted in the Senate and the House, a sharp fight on the legislation was waged by Republicans who charged foods and materials of all type could be seized.

The bill was sent back to the Senate and thence to conference with an amendment by Representative Taber (Republican), of New York, prohibiting the President from taking over from a private factory any machinery or equipment necessary to its operation. The amendment was adopted by a voice vote.

As approved, the bill authorizes the President to take over for defense on "fair and reasonable" terms any military or naval equipment, supplies, munitions or machinery, or articles needed in their servicing and operation. The materials could be requisitioned after other means of obtaining them have been exhausted. As submitted by the War Department it originally authorized requisitioning of "any property." The approved measure limits powers to July 1, 1943.

Managing the bill to passage, Chairman May of the House Military Committee said he did not see how members could oppose taking over "some little machine from the junkyard" needed for defense, after drafting men for service.

Army officials have charged that second-hand dealers in particular have boosted prices on needed articles.

Two minor amendments attached to the bill by May provide that the "fair market value," without allowance for prospective profits, shall be paid for requisitional material. Another prevents seizure of firearms needed for personal protection or sport, citing the constitutional right to keep and bear arms.

Some Republicans during debate attacked the bill as "socialism" and Representative Short (Republican), of Missouri, declared it was "loaded with dynamite" and headed toward "tyranny and bureaucratic control." Representative Edwin Hall (Republican), of New York, charged an attempt to "Sovietize" the Government.

19 Rail Unions Authorize Strike Votes

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Representatives of 19 railroad labor organizations decided late today to take immediate strike votes among approximately 1,200,000 members after the carriers had rejected their demands for higher wages.

Union spokesmen reported that the ballots would be sent out at once and predicted that the results would be known in a week.

Leaders of the two groups of brotherhoods—the five operating unions and the 14 nonoperating unions—stated that they would not ask the National Railway Mediation Board to intervene, but added that they would accept the board's services if it elected to step into the dispute.

Earlier, representatives of 125 rail lines, embracing 99.1 per cent of the Nation's mileage, informed the labor leaders that they were unable to meet requests for pay rises which the owners calculated would add 900 millions dollars a year to their operating expenses.

The operating unions announced they would poll their members on what action they wanted to take on the pay increases they seek and the changes in working rules proposed by the railroads.

The nonoperating unions reported they would solicit their members' stand on those two issues and also on the workers' demands for vacation with pay.

Union chiefs said that, if the members elected to strike, a date for the walkout would be set quickly.

The carriers' conference committee, which had been discussing the dispute with the labor organizations since July 24, declined comment after negotiations collapsed.

The five operating unions—made up of locomotive engineers, firemen and enginemen, conductors, trainmen and switchmen—had sought a 30 per cent increase in the pay scales of about 350,000 members. The rates vary according to unions, rules and classifications but the lowest wage was listed as $5.06 a day for switch tenders.

The 14 nonoperating unions—composed of approximately 850,000 clerks, telegraphers, machinists and similar personnel—asked raises of 30 to 34 cents an hour. Their average wage was listed as 67.4 cents an hour.

'Homecoming' Set For 'Kids' Today At Garfield Park

Today will be "Homecoming Day" for all the "kids" who used to play at the Garfield Park Playground, Second and F Streets Southeast. Every man, woman and child who has played at the playground is invited to come back and play all the old games with the old gang.

Miss "Suzy" Sheridan, as she is called by all the playground kids, first went to Garfield 20 years ago and on this, the sixth annual homecoming, is looking forward to greeting many of her "kids" who have become outstanding citizens in the community. Bottle Cox, a colorful figure on the Washington sports front, has announced his intention of coming back to "call 'em" at the softball game which will feature the "Old Timers" and the "Middle Aged."

The program will begin at 3 p. m. and calls for softball, horseshoes, tennis and just plain reminiscing about the "good old days" at Garfield Park. In case of rain, the event is scheduled to take place Monday.

Hopkins Can't Be Located in London

It was considered a possibility that the reported rendezvous between Mr. Roosevelt and Churchill may take place—if it has not already begun—aboard the President's yacht, Potomac, off the northern coast of the United States or Canada. The coast of Iceland also was mentioned as a possible site.

It was pointed out that Iceland, which American forces recently began occupying under Roosevelt's orders, lies only about 500 air miles northwest of the British isles and is on the direct route over which American-made bombers are being regularly flown to Britain.

Also strengthening the rumor of a possible meeting between Roosevelt and Churchill—their first in their capacities as heads of state—was the circumstance that the President is now on a secret cruise aboard the Potomac somewhere in the North Atlantic.

The Daily Mail in its article said the "very high British personage" meeting Roosevelt might be either Churchill or Supply Minister Lord Beaverbrook, the premier's right-hand man in the war cabinet.

The object of the personal interview, the paper said, would be to achieve "closer Anglo-American collaboration" in the struggle to defeat Germany.

Commenting on the Mail's dispatch, one British source observed: "When Washington gets such a report, it is sometimes true."

Scottish Town Bombed by Nazis; R.A.F. Hits Ship

London (Wednesday), Aug. 5 (1941).—German raiders bombed a northeast coastal town in Scotland early today on the heels of a new series of forays across the English Channel and the North Sea.

No damage or casualties were reported as a result of the latest Nazi aerial assault. An air ministry communique tonight said a formation of Bristol-Blenheim bombers attacked a Nazi convoy off the Dutch coast this morning, registering a direct hit on a 2,000-ton freighter. Other Blenheims were said to have struck at German patrol vessels off the German coast this afternoon, hitting three boats.

R. A. F. fighters meanwhile carried out offensive patrols over the Channel and the occupied northern French coast, staging low-level cannon and machine-gun assaults on the airdrome near Cherbourg where several German planes on the ground were said to have been crippled.

George Predicts Reduced Tax Exemptions

Individual income surtaxes may be raised and personal exemptions reduced to recover the 300-million-dollar revenue lost by House defeat of joint return provisions of the House tax bill.

This was predicted yesterday by Chairman George of the Senate Finance Committee as he received the House-approved $3,229,200,000 defense tax bill and scheduled for a hearing on it today.

George said he thought the joint return revenue loss could be overcome by adopting the President's suggestions for lowering individual single person exemptions to $750 and exceptions of married couples to $1,500.

Coupled with that, he said, may be needed some further upward adjustments in individual surtaxes, which the House proposed to start at 5 per cent on the first dollar of taxable income.

Would Boost Beer Tax

The Senate Finance Committee chairman, who expects to follow the "framework" of the bill enacted by the House, also thought it likely his group might consider further increases in tobacco and beer excises, proposed by the Treasury but rejected by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The Treasury had estimated 52 million dollars could be raised from hiking the beer tax and another 178 million dollars from increasing the tax on tobacco.

George told reporters it was not likely that his committee would turn this session to independent proposals for a 5 per cent withholding tax on salaries. Estimated in some quarters to yield four billion dollars, this would be substituted for income taxes. The finance chairman said eventually, if revenue needs continue, Congress might have to come to that.

Joint Returns Out

George indicated there would be no attempt by his committee to revive the joint return provision, since the House is on record against it.

One plan expected to be advanced in the Senate committee might accomplish the same general aim. This proposal would permit all husbands and wives to file separate returns, and possibly split their income two ways for tax purposes as they can in the eight community property States. But those who took advantage of this would be required to pay higher rates. The proposal, in effect, would put married taxpayers in 40 States on the same split income tax footing as those in community property States, but charge taxpayers in all the States for the privilege.

Congress Library Lists Donations

On February 28, 1941, endowments to the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board totaled $1,638,501.28, according to a pamphlet issued by the Library yesterday. Special legislation was enacted in 1925 enabling the Library to accept through the board bequests from private citizens to develop its collections or to promote cultural activities not within the scope of Congressional appropriations.

The Library's new publication lists 16 different endowments which have been presented to the trust fund board since its creation in 1925, 6 of which have total face values of more than $100,000 each. The largest bequest handled by the board was that of Joseph Pennell, totaling $321,865, for purchasing additions to the Pennell collection of fine prints.

The present members of the trust fund board are Henry Morgenthau, jr., Senator Alben W. Barkley, Archibald MacLeish, Adolph C. Miller and Mrs. Eugene Meyer. Mr. Miller and Mrs. Meyer were appointed by the President for five-year terms.

Arms Factory Is 50% Tied Up By 'Holiday'

By the Associated Press

Defense officials yesterday were concerned over a 50 per cent tieup of construction at the 40 million dollar Plum Brook ordnance plant in Sandusky, Ohio, where more than half of the 3,100 construction workers there were made idle when 658 A. F. L. carpenters continued a holiday in connection with a wage dispute. (Holiday, rather than strike, was the union's term for the situation.)

The carpenters seek a 25-cent increase in their pay of $1.12 an hour. Negotiations have been at a standstill since the walkout Saturday.

Alcoa Plant Blockaded

Another development was a blockade by 200 C. I. O. pickets at two entrances to the Aluminum Co. of America plant at Cleveland. The blockade was aimed at 400 A. F. L. and nonunion workers. The pickets required all workers who sought to enter to show a C. I. O. card or else to pay $2 initiation fee and $1 for a month's dues to their Die Casting Workers Union, which recently won a bargaining election there. Company officials said that "a few men are out" but that production was not seriously hampered.

A C. I. O. strike at the Heller Brothers Co. tool plant in Newcomerstown, Ohio, over bargaining rights and a pay increase moved toward settlement when the C. I. O. won a bargaining election over the A. F. L. Negotiations are to start promptly. A union spokesman said the men would not return to work, however, until a contract was signed. The union seeks a 10-cent-an-hour increase. The present minimum is 45 cents with the average 55 to 60 cents.

Knitting Strike

David Dubinsky, president of the A. F. L. International Ladies Garment Workers Union, scheduled a conference at Knoxville, Tenn., Thursday in an effort to settle a strike at two knitting mills over alleged contract violations. The union also seeks reinstatement of discharged employes and a 10 per cent increase in the 36 and 38-cent hourly wage of garment and textile workers, respectively.

In San Francisco, a dispute over efforts of an A. F. L. union to organize dairies caused an estimated 20 per cent of the city's milk supply to be cut off.

Use of Power Faces 33% Cut, Olds Testifies

Congress was told yesterday that the electrical demands of defense production might necessitate curtailed use of air conditioning, street lighting and electrical signs.

Testifying before the House Interstate Commerce Committee, Leland Olds, Federal Power Commission chairman, said private industry in some cases might be called upon to reduce power consumption by one-third if the present shortage continued.

Olds went before the committee to indorse legislation authorizing President Roosevelt to order daylight-saving time for all or parts of the Nation.

"Daylight-saving time," the witness said, "offers one form of emergency curtailment of power. We have to have the power of curtailment to fall back on to take up the slack. If we don't have that, then when an emergency comes along we will have no cushion to fall back upon."

The power official added that the defense program as a whole would require diversion from normal uses of 55,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of the estimated 145,000,000,000 hours of energy now available.

Meanwhile, Harold Ickes, the defense petroleum coordinator, announced that a proposed oil pipeline from Portland, Me., to Montreal, Canada, had been given a preferred rating by the Office of Production Management in an effort to assure completion of the 260-mile project before snow flies.

Ickes said that no other pipe line project was more urgent, since this one would speed up the delivery of oil to Canada and "the flow of munitions from there to Britain."

Norfolk to Test Trolly Showdown To Save Power

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 5 (AP).—An experiment to determine how much power can be saved in streetcar operation by slower speed will be conducted by the Virginia Electric & Power Co. tomorrow morning from 10 to 12 o'clock, when cars will move at half speed.

The announcement was made by Raymond G. Carroll, manager of the transportation department. The company wishes to determine the minimum amount of electric power necessary to operate cars and other electrical equipment.

No early shortage of power is anticipated here, Carroll said, the experiment having been planned merely as a preparedness measure to determine measurs which may have to be taken should any emergency arise later in connection with national defense.

Va. Democrats Name Darden for Governor

with me and help me to deal effectively with the tremendous problems which must confront us in the months which lie ahead."

State Senator Page conceded the nomination of Darden at 10:40 p. m. In a telegram sent to the former Representative, Page said:

"Congratulations. I assure you of my utmost cooperation to make your administration a successful one. Sincerely and cordially, Viv."

Darden Carries Arlington

Arlington County, the first to compile complete returns, gave Darden, 1,028; Page, 110, and Cary, 82. In the contest for nomination as Lieutenant Governor, Tuck received 1,000 votes to 191 for Plunkett. The vote was the lightest in the history of the county. Only 1,2[illegible] out of 15,000 exercised their franchise.

The first precinct in the State to report was Wash Woods, Princess Anne County, where Darden and Tuck carried the votes of all seven qualified voters.

Darden represented the Second District of Virginia in Congress until March, when he resigned to seek his party's nomination for Governor.

Darden has been in Virginia public life since 1929 when he was elected to the House of Delegates. He was reelected in 1931 but resigned before the expiration of his term and was elected to the Seventy-third Congress. As in the case of the House of Delegates, Darden won reelection to Congress, but was defeated for the Seventy-fifth session by Norman R. Hamilton, of Portsmouth, whom Darden came back to defeat last November.

Born in Southampton County February 11, 1897, Darden spent most of his boyhood on the farm of his parents, Colgate Whitehad Darden and the late Katharine Pretlow Darden. He attended grammar and high school in Franklin, Va., and entered the University of Virginia before he was 17.

Darden interrupted his education in 1916 to volunteer for service with an ambulance unit of the French army. He suffered exposure and was in a French hospital for several months.

With America's entry in the war, he returned to this country and joined the aviation branch of the Navy. Later he transferred to the Marine Corps and served as a second lieutenant with a bombing group in the Dunkerque area. His services were ended at 19 when he was severely injured in a plane crash.

On his return to this country, Darden resumed his studies at the University of Virginia, earning a bachelor of arts degree. He obtained a law degree from Columbia University, and while there was awarded a Carnegie fellowship in international law to Christ Church College, Oxford, where he studied a year.

Darden holds a doctor of laws degree from Elon College in North Carolina, and a Phi Beta Kappa key award from the College of William and Mary.

The Democratic nominee became interested in politics in 1924, soon after his return to Norfolk to practice law. In 1925 he campaigned for Senator Byrd in the latter's successful bid for the governorship.

In 1927, Darden married Miss Constance duPont, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irenee duPont, of Wilmington, Del. They have three children.

Tuck has been a member of the State Senate since 1932 and chairman of its general laws committee since 1936. He was born in Halifax County September 28, 1896. His wife is the former Miss Eva Loveiace Dillard, of South Boston.

Two Delegates Defeated For Renomination

Richmond, Aug. 5 (AP).—At least two members of the House of Delegates lost their bids for renomination in today's Democratic primary.

Lloyd W. Hopkins defeated C. L. Spangler, the Patrick County incumbent, and William J. Gibson upset Dr. W. A. Harris, delegate from Spotsylvania and Fredericksburg.

Among incumbents successful in contests for renomination were M. Hill Abernethy, of Brunswick, who won over former Delegate Emory P. Barrow and H. C. Wesson; T. Elliott Campbell, who defeated Richard T. Pratt in Caroline and King George; E. W. Sanford, who defeated W. A. Watson, jr., in Cumberland and Prince George; Francis Pickens Miller, of Fairfax, who won over Charles Pickett; Howard C. Rogers, who defeated former Delegate H. C. Thompson in Loudoun; H. P. Spotswood in Orange and Madison, and Preston Moses and W. C. Clark in Pittsylvania.

Japanese Believed Turning Back Ship With 140 Americans

Almost within sight of their homeland, 140 American evacuees from Japan were believed last night to be facing the prospect of being returned to the Orient in the Japanese liner Asama Maru, which, according to a Japanese source here, was reported to have been ordered to turn about in the Pacific and head for Yokohama.

The Asama Maru, which left Honolulu last Friday for San Francisco with a large list of passengers and a cargo of raw silk valued at three million dollars, was scheduled to arrive in San Francisco some time today. No word has been received from the ship, but the source here indicated it may have headed home in pursuance of the general order issued Monday by the Japanese government, suspending all sailings to the United States.

Advisory Board Will Hold Hearing In Prince Georges

A public hearing on all projects being considered by the advisory board to the Prince Georges County commissioners will be held Saturday, August 16, at 9 a. m., in the County Service Building, Hyattsville, it was announced yesterday by E. Murray Gover, secretary to the advisory board.

Topics include the system of alternate highways in the county proposed recently by Milton A. Pyle, engineer to the board, a sidewalk construction program announced last week, and a number of miscellaneous projects.

The advisory board was recently created by the State Legislature to administer an $800,000 improvement program in the county. Airfields at Gazala and Martuba also were attacked.

Wool-Cotton Trade Rises

The Agriculture Department reported yesterday July trading in wool-cotton futures in the New York Wool-Cotton Exchange aggregated 5,565,000 pounds, an increase of 26 per cent, compared with June, but a drop of 44 per cent from July, 1940.

117 Reported Put to Death In Yugoslavia

Copyright by New York Times

Bern, Switzerland, Aug. 5.—From all parts of Yugoslavia there continue to come reports of the undercover war of Serbian Chetnik guerrillas against German occupational forces and the Croat Quislings, and of the ruthless punishment meted out against the insurrectionists.

Yesterday again, according to reports from Zagreb and Budapest, no less than 117 persons are known to have been put to death in various parts of Croatia, while most of a group of 42 Serbs sentenced for murder added an unknown number to this total. It is reported that there have been more than 350 executions in Yugoslavia since July 28.

There is every indication now that Serbian guerrilla bands are beginning to com eout into the open and operate in force. Reports from Croatia state that the forests of Bosnia are being systematically combed out in the hunt for Chetnik bands, and the Serbians whenever captured are being almost immediately executed.

It appears from further Croat reports that two major actions were planned for July 14, the Serbian Patriot Day, and for August 2. Neither of these actions fully materialized, Croat statements claim, but the number of single cases of bomb throwing, shooting, sabotage and the like reported in the last two weeks by official news agencies seems proof that the guerrillas were after all, out in force.

It is significant in itself that reports of such mass executions as have taken place during the past week are allowed to come out of the occupied country. This is taken as an indication that guerrilla activities are increasing, as was indeed pointed out last week by authoritative quarters in Berlin.

Gasch's $800 Pay Boost Approved

An $800 annual salary increase for Assistant Corporation Counsel Oliver Gasch yesterday was approved by the Commissioners upon the recommendation of Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech.

The action was taken under authority of the 1942 Appropriation Act. Keech told the Commissioners Gasch "is handling important trial work and doing an excellent job."

He said the importance of Gasch's work warranted the increase. The salary jump will be from $3,800 to $4,800.

Nazi Prestige On the Wane, Travelers Say

By Sonia Tomara
Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Great Britain has won a year in her war against Germany and this year is likely to be the decisive one in the conflict, according to persons who arrived here recently from the European continent. Germany can not be expected to invade the British Isles before 1942, they explain, and the coming winter is likely to weaken rather than to strengthen the German war machine and the German people.

Reports from Berlin and the occupied countries maintain that the German high command had intended to begin the Russian campaign in the spring and to complete it in August. It was planned to have the Balkans under control by April 10 at the latest and to send troops into Russia in May. The coup d'etat in Belgrade and the landing of British troops in Greece changed the schedule. Crete was occupied only by the end of May.

It was Germany's plan, an observer from Berlin said, to reap the Ukraine harvest and ship it through the Black Sea and via the Danube and the Mediterranean to Trieste. This plan has been shattered by the Russian resistance.

Railroads Are Weak

Even in case of a German military victory in Russia, this observer explained, Berlin feels it will not be possible for the Germans to transport any food or raw materials before the spring of 1942. Transportation by rail is Germany's weakest point. There is a shortage of trucks and locomotives, many bridges have not been repaired yet and the rails are overtaxed by the heavy traffic. The Serbs did a thorough job of blowing up bridges, persons arrived from Yugoslavia indicate. The bridge over the Danube at Novy Sad has not been rebuilt. The railroad between Athens and Salonika cannot be used.

The only bridge over the Dniester between the Soviet Union and Rumania no longer exists and the railway lines from the Russian into the Polish Ukraine are thoroughly disrupted.

Persons who left the occupied countries a short time ago are unanimous in saying that the morale of the subjugated people has been lifted by the slow progress of the German campaign in Russia. German prestige reached its peak late in April, in the eyes of the people living in Europe.

French Attitude Changed

The Balkan campaign was thought to prove the invincibility of German arms and the futility of resistance, reports from Europe say. Persons from Paris tell that the French people were once resigned to collaboration with Germany but that the feeling changed in France during July. The French now say that cooperation with Germany has led them nowhere, in that occupied France is still combed by the Germans for food, the demarkation line has not been moved and the Germans have sent home only a few tens of thousands of French war prisoners. These returned prisoners, it is said, are all veterans of the other war. They have returned in pitiful condition, weakened and sick. They can do no work in the fields or in factories. They are a liability rather than an asset to France.

The return of these men is believed to have made a deep impression on Marshal Petain, who met some of the incoming trains, and to have influenced his recent reported decision to resist the German demands for French naval bases in North Africa. It is also reported here that the French public is discontented by the virtual cession of Indo-China to the Japanese and that word of this discontent has reached the marshal.

A traveler from northern Italy said that the textile industry around Milan, normally employing some four million workers, was almost at a standstill for lack of cotton and rayon. The war industry near Turin, he indicated, was not doing too well because of shortage of steel and coal. There is widespread unemployment and the anxiety for the future is growing in Italy because the harvest is substantially below normal this summer. The traveler confirmed previous reports of scattered riots in Italy but he said these were of no real importance.

Italians Feel Let Down

Most of the German troops that were in Libya in the spring have been withdrawn, according to persons arrived from Rome. The Italians feel disappointed that the Germans left them without support and failed to clean North Africa and Abyssinia of British troops.

The general economic organization of the European continent has made no progress since last year, returned persons say. Germany is unable to manufacture goods for civilian consumption or to transport them.

The current of goods is in one direction only, from the occupied and controlled countries into Germany, and the payment for goods is made in German marks. Thus the European continent continues to be poorer and the hatred against the German masters grows.

Coast Guard Plane Crash Kills Three

San Francisco, Aug. 5 (AP).—Three Coast Guardsmen were killed today as their amphibian plane, skimming close to the ocean on patrol duty, struck a jutting rock and exploded near the Farallon Islands, 25 miles off San Francisco.

Aboard were Leonard L. Stonerock, 33, pilot; Fleet D. Hancock, 40, mechanic, and John C. Gill, 31, radioman. All were first-class petty officers. Gill's body, the only one recovered, showed signs of burns.

Japanese Admit Clash With Reds Two Weeks Ago

Shanghai, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Japanese and Russian border forces clashed two weeks ago near Manchuo, on the Manchukuo-Siberian frontier, it was revealed officially today.

Col. Kunio Akiyama, Japanese army spokesman said "a few shots were exchanged" when Soviet guards crossed the border. He said one Japanese soldier was wounded, but did not know whether there were any Soviet casualties.

"Only four or five men were involved on each side," he said.

A navy spokesman said rumors of Russo-Japanese fighting along the border were being "maliciously inspired for the purpose of stirring up trouble."

Montgomery Revamps Liquor Board

By Phillip J. Austensen
A Staff Correspondent

Sweeping changes in the administrative and financial setup of the Montgomery County Liquor Control Board were ordered yesterday by the Montgomery County commissioners at their meeting in Rockville, Md. Commissioner John Oxley did not vote on the resolution.

First change was formation of a committee on purchase and management of the dispensary system to be composed of the county comptroller, the attorney to the liquor board, and the general manager of the dispensary system with primary jurisdiction over the operation of the county dispensary systems. The resolution directs that the attorney to the liquor board receive $1,200 a year for his legal services.

The revolving fund of the liquor board was ordered abolished and all disbursements of the board to be made from the county treasurer's office. The county comptroller, Alex K. Hancock, was directed to return to the general county fund the $50,000 revolving fund and also a $25,000 revolving fund which had been set up for the beer dispensary system.

Funds to Be Set Up

The county comptroller was authorized to set up a petty cash fund not to exceed $2,500 for the dispensary system and $2,500 for the system of wholesale distribution of beer, from which freight charges may be paid in case of emergency.

The manager of the beer warehouse is directed to establish a procedure of taking orders for the following day's delivery until 9 p. m. and to arrange to have these orders tabulated by routes the same evening so that delivery trucks may be loaded promptly at 7:30 a. m.

The general manager of the dispensary system was directed to take an inventory of the stock on hand in each of the three county dispensary stores once each business day. The new system became effective last midnight.

The following reassignments and appointments were ordered:

Ralph H. Chase to be general manager of the dispensary system at a salary of $3,600 a year.

Charles B. Buscher be continued as acting manager of the wholesale distribution of beer and of the beer warehouse at his present salary until he joins the armed forces.

Bowman Transferred

S. Edward Bowman be transferred from his present position as manager of the Silver Spring dispensary to assistant manager of the wholesale distribution of beer and of the beer warehouse at a monthly salary of $300.

Arthur Hile be transferred from his present position as route manager in the beer department and assigned as manager and salesman at the Silver Spring dispensary at his present salary, less his allowance for transportation, and that the position of route manager be abolished.

Bernard W. Fling, now assistant manager or service manager in the beer warehouse, be transferred to the Silver Spring dispensary as a salesman at his present salary and that his present post be abolished.

Roy P. Moore, bookkeeper in the county dispensary system, transferred as salesman at the Silver Spring dispensary at his present salary.

R. Glenn Silver, now stock clerk in the Silver Spring dispensary warehouse, be assigned as bookkeeper to replace Moore.

Clifford Morrison, now manager of the Bethesda dispensary, be transferred to clerical work at the beer warehouse.

Ira E. Lewis, Silver Spring dispensary, be transferred to Bethesda dispensary as manager with an increase in salary of $30 a month, making his salary $180 monthly.

Samuel R. Robertson, Bethesda dispensary salesman, be given an increase of $15 a month, or a total salary of $136.

Leroy Lochte, Bethesda dispensary clerk, be assigned as assistant building inspector for the Western Suburban District at his present salary.

Johnson to Be Shifted

Calvin Johnson be transferred from his present position as police desk clerk at Bethesda to the Bethesda dispensary as salesman at a monthly salary of $136.

William Jones, sr., of Bethesda, be appointed desk clerk at Bethesda police station.

William Thompson, clerk in Silver Spring dispensary, be transferred to duty as special clerk to the county commissioners at the Rockville courthouse.

Ray Smith, now employed in beer warehouse, be continued at a salary of $150 a month.

Frank J. Pelker, of Four Corners, appointed daily closing auditor and night order clerk at the beer warehouse, a part-time position, for which he will be paid a salary of $100 a month.

The commissioners further ordered that William E. And, John T. Oliver and Robert A. Billhimer be designated as deputy assessors and that Billhimer be assigned as deputy assessor in charge of motor vehicle assessment.

The following increases were ordered:

Kenneth Waters, an increase of $300 a year; S. R. Maddox, John Markland and Francis Day, increased $25 a month; Charles Fawcett and James Canterbury, increased $15 a month; Earl Griffith, increased $400 a year; George Menke, increased $25 a month; Marbury Gater, increased $25 a month; Mrs. Dorothy Bliss, increased $15 a month, and that Clarence Gray be employed at $100 a month to replace E. Melvin Athey, resigned.

Rep. Rutherford 'Holding His Own'

Representative Albert G. Rutherford (Republican), of Pennsylvania, who is suffering from a heart ailment, was holding his own, though in serious condition, at George Washington Hospital last night, according to his physician, Dr. Paul Dekens.

The legislator was stricken about a month ago and entered the hospital July 27. Earlier yesterday he had been placed under an oxygen tent. Dr. Dekens said this was merely to make the patient more comfortable in the heat.

Capital Is Called Upon for 573 Army Selects During September

First 21-Year-Old Registrant to Be Sworn In Tomorrow

Washington Selective Service boards must furnish the Army 573 men in September, Capital selection headquarters announced yesterday.

STANSBURY

Meanwhile, the first of the 21-year-old registrants to be inducted is scheduled for swearing in tomorrow. He is Joseph Francis Stansbury, of 1109 O Street Southeast, who gave up a $35-a-week job to volunteer.

The September requisition, calling for 330 white and 243 Negro recruits, was broken down as follows: September 8, 60 Negroes; September 9, 183 Negroes and 163 white; September 10, 165 white.

Officials expected completion soon of statistics showing the number of Class 1-A registrants available in each local board as well as a breakdown of the September call by local boards.

Lack of Equipment Denied

At the same time, Camp Lee, Va., officials denied there was any contingent of men 28 and over there who were not being equipped or trained. This had been charged on the basis they soon will be discharged because of the age policy change of the selection organization.

Officers said a group of 30 selectees above the new 27-year age limit, now awaiting Congressional approval, had arrived at Camp Lee around July 1. They had been classified and equipped as other selectees but had been sent for training to camps near their homes to facilitate their shipment home in case they are discharged.

Young Stansbury, who has been employed as driver of a cement mixing truck, volunteered because he didn't "want to be drafted" and because he thought he ought "to do something" for his country, he said.

Enthusiastic about the prospect of Army service, Stansbury yesterday played a last round of golf in the morning and spent the rest of the day settling his affairs against his induction tomorrow.

To Be Inducted Today

29th Division To Face First Tests Today

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Fort Meade, Md., Aug. 5.—Tomorrow at 10 a. m., the Twenty-ninth Infantry Division will face the first official test of its efficiency since it was inducted last February. At that time, its command and staff will begin a command post exercise under control of Second Army Corps and under personal supervision of Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding the First Army.

How the division, composed of former National Guardsmen and selectees from the District, Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, meets this first field trial will be veiled under strict censorship. Reports will be relayed to the public by corps staff officers on those phases of the exercise it is deemed proper to let the public know.

Red Force Attacked

Under a corps order, handed to Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commanding the Twenty-ninth, at 2 p. m. today a Red force attacked the United States while the First Army was in the South on maneuvers. Rushing northward to attack the invader, the Second Corps is on the right of the line, with the Twenty-ninth on the corps' right flank. The 104th Cavalry, attached to the division, is screening its right and the 103d Observation Squadron is watching from the skies. All combat aviation and armored forces are already fighting with the main Army toward the west.

Outposts Stationed

Last night the Twenty-ninth was assumed to be in bivouac between Bowie and Ammendale, Md., with one battalion each of the 115th and 116th Infantry flung forward as outposts. The 104th Cavalry has run into Red mechanized Cavalry patrols between the Patapsco River and Dayton.

By 10 a. m. tomorrow, the Twenty-ninth must have command posts in position for all units through battalions to carry the problem on from there. Changes in the situation will be handed from time to time to Gen. Reckord, who will meet them by issuing orders to lower commanders. Gen. Drum, who arrived by plane tonight from Governors Island, N. Y., will bivouac in the field with the Twenty-ninth tomorrow night. Maj. Gen. Henry C. Pratt, commanding the Second Corps, also arrived tonight from Wilmington, Del., and will observe the exercise.

Variety Show Tonight

The Women's Society of Christian Service of Walkers Chapel Methodist Church, North Glebe and Ottmar Roads, Arlington County, will sponsor a variety show and mock wedding in the church basement tonight at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Herbert Todd is general chairman in charge of the arrangements.

South Carolina's New Senator

Harris & Ewing.

ROGER C. PEACE, Greenville newspaper publisher, was appointed yesterday to succeed the late Alva Lumpkin as Senator from South Carolina. Peace, 42, was appointed by Gov. Burnet R. Maybank to serve until October 15, when the elected successor will take over to serve the remainder of the term of Supreme Court Justice James F. Byrnes, expiring in 1943

Montgomery Nurse Is Granted Leave

The Montgomery County, Md., Commissioners yesterday granted leave of absence to the following:

Miss Adelaide Horner, public health nurse, from September 1 to January 1, 1943, to attend University of Pennsylvania for her master's degree, the leave to be without pay. Mrs. Florence Garrett, 4303 Montgomery Lane, Bethesda, was appointed to replace Miss Horner.

Miss Clara M. Campbell, of Bergenfield, N. J., also was appointed a public health nurse at $1,500 a year salary and Mrs. Margaret Coleman Penn, of Redland, was appointed county health laboratory assistant at $900 a year. Resignation of County Policeman Robert L. Dutrow to become a member of the Washington Fire Department was accepted with regret.

James Roosevelt Leaves West Coast for Capital

San Francisco, Aug. 5 (AP).—Capt. James Roosevelt left by plane tonight for Washington after a brief stop in San Francisco. He was accompanied by his wife. The President's son said his visit was a routine Marine Corps mission.

School Leaders Of Adventists Holding Parley

Leaders of Seventh Day Adventist educational institutions in this country are meeting at the general conference headquarters in Takoma Park for their fourth annual council.

Round-table discussions and research work are opened daily with devotional services led by the Rev. Harvey A. Morrison, head of the conference's department of education. The meeting, which began last week, will continue through August 24.

Delegates at the convention include heads of the music, economics and commerce and home economics departments of various colleges and junior colleges.

The chairmen include Prof. J. W. Osborn of the music department of Pacific Union College at Angwin, Calif.; Prof. F. W. Tymeson, of the department of commerce and economics at Washington Missionary College, Takoma Park, Md., and Miss May Stanley, of the home economics department at Union College, Lincoln, Nebr.

Other schools represented are Atlantic Union College, South Lancaster, Mass.; Emanuel Missionary College, Berrien Springs, Mich.; Walla Walla College, College Place, Wash.; LaSierra College, Arlington, Calif.; Southwestern Junior College, Keene, Tex., and Southern Junior College, Collegedale, Tenn.

—And Enough Smoke To Blackout All U. S.

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—If all the cigars manufactured in this country during the year ended June 30 were laid end to end, they could encircle the earth about 14 times, the Cigar Institute of America estimated today.

The 12-month total was 5,527,821,292 cigars, an increase of 234,201,918 over the previous 12 months. Figuring smokers average 20 minutes to a cigar, the institute decided the output equaled 1,842,607,000 smoking hours.

Studebaker and Son Form New Company

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 5 (AP).—J. M. Studebaker and his son, J. Studebaker 3d, members of one of the automobile industry's pioneer families, entered the industrial manfacturing field today with the formation of the Studebaker Machine Co.

The elder Studebaker will be vice president and his on president of the new firm, which will have executive offices here and sales offices in Chicago. It will manufacture and market various hydraulic machines for industrial use.

Al Smith, Jr., in Army

Fort Dix, N. J., Aug. 5 (AP).—Capt. Alfred E. Smith, jr., New York City councilman and son of the former Governor of New York, checked in at this Army post tonight for service with the Forty-fourth Division.

Falls Church Benefit

The Women's Society of Christian Service of the Crossman Methodist Church, all of Falls Church, Va., is sponsoring a benefit lawn party tomorrow evening on the church grounds, beginning at 7 o'clock.

The Bovine Box-Office Yields Handsome Returns

Cowshed Circuits Turn Up Talent and Cash; Scripts Wanted for Army Camp Productions; Bits of News and Gossip About the Theater

ALTHOUGH WASHINGTON'S "STRAW HAT" theaters are doing what might be termed back-to-the-landoffice business, they afford only a fragmentary idea of the scope to which this hot weather phase of theatricals has grown. We should, by rights, be up in New England to edge into a corner of the main picture. However, we probably are close enough to be included in the total of 125 summer stock theaters operating in the United States this year, 82 of them under supervision of the Actors Equity Association.

MARGARET WYCHERLY

Out of this welter of humid and perspiring enterprise have come 40 new plays and 70 of the tried-and-true—35 of them already picturized by Hollywood, with 11 more to follow—to say nothing of predictions that the summer's grand box-office gross will amount to some such trifling sum as $1,500,000.

Popular impression to the contrary notwithstanding, Broadway and Hollywood talent scouts will tell you that out of all this cowbarn activity there does emerge a reasonable percentage of talent—acting, writing and directing—usable on the winter "big time" circuits and in the West Coast studios.

The Capital, at least, gets in on this aspect of the business. The acing group of Father Gilbert V. Hartke's speech and drama department of Catholic University is under the constant surveillance of the "brass hats" of both Coasts, who switch to straw in the summer.

Those long-suffering cows seem to have surrendered their sheds to a good and growing cause, after all.

Ending their current season with this week's extraordinarily able production of Philip Barry's "Hotel Universe," Father Hartke and his players are charting a "Season Americana" for next year. This, tentatively, will include a list of plays typical of the history of the theater in this country and a new musical biography, based on the life of Eddie Dowling, American actor, author and producer. Following "Yankee Doodle Boy," dedicated to George M. Cohan, and "Cook Book," celebrating Joe Cook, the Dowling musical should come closer to Washington's intimate interest than either of its predecessors.

It's Reveille You Hear, Not Taps

Those auditions you've been hearing about only started the activities of the subcommittee on entertainment of the District Council of Defense. A committee on scripts now has been formed, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Maude Howell Smith, to provide sketches, skits and "smart sayings" for the entertainment of the trainees in nearby Army camps. Those written, or to be written, should be bright, breezy and brief, running from three to eight minutes, and should be submitted to the District of Columbia Council of Defense, Room 500, District Building. Benefit preview performances of camp shows will be given in local high school auditoriums, receipts to go to the Defense Council entertainment fund for the purchase of costumes, props, etc., and, if necessary, the payment of royalties. And another thing. An all-Negro unit is in the making and there is talk of an aquacade unit before the snow flies—and maybe an all-girl unit.

Theater managers of the Warner Brothers' circuit in the Washington territory are getting their annual tan today at Bauer's Beach, on Chesapeake Bay, following their annual convention in the Mayflower Hotel yistiddy . . . They were addressed by Zone Manager John J. Payette and his associate executives at the business conclave . . . Today, they are addressing golf balls and undressing for a bath in the bay . . . That indefatigable getter-abouter, Tony Muto, local manager for Fox Movietone News, is—or was—pursuing his intellectual researches in Tijuana, Mexico, although they used to call it Tia Juana when I was there . . . His contribution to this department's spiritual uplift is an inspiring postagecard scene from a Mexican cockpit . . . When the Washington Players present "A Midsummer Night's Dream," in the National Sylvan Theater tonight, Lansing Hall will play Titania for the fourth time; Hugh C. Smith will be Puck for the second time and Doris McWhirt will be the first feminine Oberon in the history of the local productions . . . Margaret Wycherly, the incomparable Mother York in "Sergeant York," now on view at both the Earle and Ambassador theaters, has been presented with an honorary Gold Star by the Gold Star Mothers of America . . . Her performance rates it.

Walk-Up-a-Mile-and-Save-a-Dollar Note

The weatherman certainly must be making it tough for the Turkish bath establishments these days!

Two Likely Gems of the Ocean

MARTHA RAYE AND ANN SHERIDAN doing a little heel-and-toeing in the Warner Brothers' forthcoming production of "Navy Blues." Just why the Navy should be blue is anybody's guess. Oakie and Haley are the two Jacks in the goings-on

HEDDA HOPPER

Fox Feathers Nest

Hollywood, Calif, Aug. 5.—Few people know that Twentieth Century has a large chicken ranch right on their home lot. Seems when you rent chickens for pictures it costs the studio $1 per week per chicken, so they've acquired 500 of their own with prop men detailed to train them to the camera. Their eggs are used in the studio commissary, so they're the only actors on the lot who earn their keep. As a matter of fact, those Fox chickens (the feathered ones) are the only screen actors in Hollywood who can lay an egg and not raise a beef in the front office!

JOAN CRAWFORD

Joan Crawford and Greer Garson have been rehearsing to sing "Iche Liebe Dich," in "When Ladies Meet," because "Mrs. Chips" made up her mind Joan wasn't going to out-sing her. On the day of the take, Joan's daughter, Christina, was there, so Assistant Director Red Golden was put in charge of keeping her quiet. But in the midst of the take, it was Red Golden's sneeze that spoiled it.

Jack Carson tells this on himself. He was playing in his home town, Milwaukee, and booked for three weeks. During first week, business was good. Second, it was terrible, so Jack got a license from the city, rented a flat wagon and two horses, put a large coffin on the wagon with a sign above it reading, "I died laughing at Jack Carson." Business improved so that he was held over a fourth week.

When Cecil De Mille went before the camera for an exterior scene in "Glamour Boy," the sun actually went behind a cloud. He had four lines of dialogue and used one of them to plug his "Reap the Wild Wind." That's also showmanship.

There'll be lots of grand talent in "The Corsican Brothers." Cast contains William Farnum, H. B. Warner, Henry Wilcoxon, John Emery, J. Carroll Naish and Akim Tamiroff. How's that for a full house?

Actor Owes All To 'Horse' Sense

Chill Willis is one man who owes his life to good, common horse sense—that a horse had.

"More than once a quick-witted horse has jumped out of trouble and saved my life," admits the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer actor on the set of "Honky-Tonk."

"The first time it was Tony, jr., Tom Mix's horse. I was riding him for a motion picture called 'Timber Stampede,' when he saw a log hurtling down the mountainside. Tony spurted forward just as the log crashed by, unquestionably saving my life.

"Then Zipper saved my life in a stampede which had gotten out of control in 'The Westerner.' Zipper zigzagged through that bunch of hysterical steers and all I could do was to hang on for dear life. How we got through it, I'll never know; but, thanks to Zipper, we did."

The twang-voiced actor remembers when Blue Duck leaped over his head when he fell off him in "Belle Starr," and recalls another time when his own horse, Tony, jr., jumped an unexpected stream when they were galloping over strange country.

"Yep," drawls Willis, "don't know where I'd be today if it weren't for horse sense. I'm sure glad the horses had it."

Musical Celebration

Jackie Searl celebrated his twentieth birthday recently by appearing in his first screen musical scene with Jackie Cooper and Susanna Foster in Paramount's "Glamour Boy." Searl has been granted a leave of absence from his job as a riveter at the Lockheed Airplane plant to do the role.

Two Comedies Enliven New Theater Week

"CHARLEY'S AUNT." Jack Benny has the title role in the screen's third version of the Brandon Thomas farce opening tomorrow morning at the Palace Theater. Playing the role of the Oxford student who masquerades as a wealthy old lady from Brazil to chaperone two couples, Benny has one of the finest opportunities of his laugh-provoking career. Kay Francis, Arleen Whelan, Anne Baxter, James Ellison and Richard Haydn and Edmund Gwenn top the supporting cast.

Capitol

"WHISTLING IN THE DARK." Red Skelton has his first starring role as the harmless writer of gory mysteries forced to commit murder to save his own life and those of his two-girl friends, played by Ann Rutherford and Virginia Grey. The comedy's setting is a weird old house, center of a fake cult promoted by Conrad Veidt and his crew of villains. On the stage, Tony Pastor will lead his band of radio favorites in a parade of juke-box hits. Virginia Austin, Bobby Pine, Ruth Foster and Vince 'Blues' Mondi are others in the stage portion of the bill. Opens tomorrow morning.

Earle

"SERGEANT YORK." The autobiographical film of the World War hero continues into a second week, with Gary Cooper in the title role. Critically praised from coast-to-coast, the film features Walter Brennan, Joan Leslie and Margaret Wycherly. Showings are on a continuous basis, with morning and matinee seats for 75 cents and evening performances at $1.10.

RKO-Keith's

"TOM, DICK AND HARRY." The Ginger Rogers comedy, with its interludes of dream-fantasy continues into a second week at the Fifteenth Street house. Ginger plays a telephone operator who can't decide among her suitors. George Murphy, Burgess Meredith and Alan Marshall form the marriage-bent trio. Also on the bill are a new "Donald Duck" and an "Information Please."

Metropolitan

"THE BRIDE CAME C. O. D." Bette Davis and James Cagney co-star in this comedy of an impoverished aviator who kidnaps an heiress at the instigation of her father. Continues on F Street after an earlier two-week run at the Earle.

Columbia

"THEY MET IN BOMBAY." Clark Gable and Rosalind Russell play a duo of double-crossing jewel thieves in this comedy combining "The Star of Asia" with the "Victoria Cross." Jesse Ralph, Peter Lorre and Reginald Owen are featured. Opens tomorrow morning.

Little

"GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS." The Robert Donat triumph, adapted from James Hilton's story of the lovable schoolmaster, opens its final return engagement this morning. Greer Garson's role of the radiant Mrs. Chips introduced her to American audiences and Donat won the Academy Award for his playing of the English master.

THE MEN IN UNIFORM seem to be taking advantage of the amusement park's special rate for their swimming pool admission. All that's asked of the service men for this privilege is that they arrive in uniform. Paul Kain's orchestra plays for dancing week nights in the Spanish Garden ballroom, with Adele Van doing the vocals.

Potomac Line

RED NORVO and his orchestra will provide the dance music for this Saturday's twin moonlight cruises down the Potomac. The S. S. Potomac is the steamer, sailing at 8:45 p. m. and 12:30 a. m. (Sunday) from the Seventh Street wharves. There are also Wednesday and Sunday family cruises sailing at 9 a. m., returning at 7:30 p. m.

Wilson Line

SUNSET CRUISES, sailing each afternoon, except Mondays and Tuesdays, 5:30 o'clock, are featured by the S. S. Mount Vernon, of the Wilson Line. The steamer also offers trips down the river at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m., with stops at Mount Vernon and Marshall Hall Park. The evening trips are nightly, except Mondays, at 8:30. All sailings are from the Seventh Street wharves.

Roadside

"TO DIE AT DAWN." Monday evening the Roadsiders will revive their most successful revival. A melodrama of the great tradition, it was written by A. Lawrence Lee and in the leading role will be Harold Siepler, star of the 1935 revival. Others in the cast include Betty Brunstetter, Dick Sykes, Lucy Clagett, Ralf Nicholson, Edna Evans and Ted Tiller. There will be an entr'acte: "Your Place Is in the Meadows."

Sylvan

"A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM." The Washington Players will present the Shakespearean comedy tonight at the Sylvan Theater on the Monument Grounds at 8:15 as the final offering of the summer festival program. Maurice Jarvis, Thomas M. Cahill, Christine Irish, Ralph Wiener, Eugene Kressin and William M. McGhee head the cast under the direction of Denis E. Connell.

Catholic University

"HOTEL UNIVERSE." With Julie Haydon of the stage and screen in the leading role, the Speech and Drama Department of Catholic University presents the Philip Barry play as the final offering of the summer season in the University Theater on the campus. Continues through Saturday evening. Curtain at 8:30.

'The Male Animal' Guards Lair Riotously in Cross Roads Barn

By Richard L. Coe

Once more drawing on a comedy whose original production figures are scarcely dry—and very much in the black they are, too—the Cross Roads Theater socks the Virginia cowbell with "The Male Animal." The James Thurber-Elliott Nugent success is one of the "most produced" stock plays this summer and it's easy to discover why. The Cross Roaders are better than they've been all season and altogether the evening's one of bright, titivating banter.

It would be presumptuous to describe "The Male Animal" to a theatergoer of these Fantastic Forties. The characters are all Thurber drawings come to as much life as they can away from the pages of The New Yorker. This wise fable, you'll recall, concerns the university professor who plans to read a letter of Vanzetti to his class. Football, an old friend of his wife, a super-Babbitt of a trustee, an appeasing dean, a "radical" student and a stray half-dozen other recognizable citizens come close to splitting up his home, but animal instincts, even if crushed to earth in an educated form, mercifully rise again.

The Cross Roads production, up to a point over which we'll glide later, is the finest the Virginians have offered since the summer got under way. In the professor and his wife the casting is particularly fine. Leroy Gaintner is excellent in the role coauthor Nugent created, with intonations and gestures combining for a well-knit whole. He underplays shrewdly, setting the only proper key for the Thurber wit. Betty Honicon, too, is fine as his solely-tried wife.

Outstanding, also, are Grace Pearson, playing the absolutely typical sorority girl, vexed by the brain-or-brawn struggle; Forney Reese, as the dean whose duty is to keep the peace—and a swell part it is, too; W. Julian Hatcher, as the ex-grid hero, and Jack Dees, as the gum-chewing young halfback. Sidney Bassler sputters well as the tortured trustee until in Act III he just sputters. A complete breakdown almost ruined the climactic moments last evening and the cast betrayed a serious weakness in not picking up the lost lines. But probably this debacle will not be repeated, which is why we mention it here: it's too funny to be forgotten.

But since Actors' Amnesia only appears toward the end, you'll have a wonderful time laughing at "The Male Animal." Its humor is sharp, pointed, like Ed's reply when Joe remarks that the situation "is bigger than stadiums and coaches." Says Ed: "Nothing's bigger than the new stadium."

The balance of director Howard Wentworth's cast includes Florence Woodward, Gordon Gray (whose mugging mars the drinking scene), Edith Aymer, Irma Gordon, Tommy Brent and John Shaw. Learn more about "The Male Animal" yourself.

Electrifying Dance

The strangest dance ever done in an animated cartoon will be the "Neon Number" of Hoppity, the grasshopper hero of "Mr. Bug Goes to Town," the one-million-dollar Technicolor cartoon which Fleischer Studio in Miami, Fla., is producing for Paramount release this winter. Shocked by a live wire, the grasshopper goes into a high-voltage routine in a manner new to animated cartooning.

Burton Offers 2-Year Limit On Draft Term

It would defer from selective service men who were 28 or older last July 1 or have reached the age of 28 on any subsequent July 1 without having been inducted. Men 28 or older now in the Army would be released "as soon as practicable and when not in conflict with the interests of national defense."

National Guardsmen who had reached the new age limit at the time of their induction will be released on the same basis as selectees, according to a War Department letter read to the Senate by Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland.

Calls for Voice Vote

Senator Thomas gave the impression that the Burton amendment, calling for a 12-month extension of military service, was being offered with his consent. He said the difference between an 18-month extension, or a total of 30 months, as provided in the original committee amendment, and a 12-month extension was not "a matter of principle" and proposed an immediate voice vote to determine "whether sentiment of the Senate had crystallized on one of the proposals."

Barkley replied that the difference between a 12-month extension and one of six months, as provided in the defeated Taft amendment "is also just a matter of months—and as a matter of policy may involve a tremendous difference."

He pointed out that the bill originally requested by the War Department included no time limit and that the department had not "recommended or desired" the committee amendment calling for a maximum total of 30 months' service. "They merely said they could operate under it," he told the Senate.

He said the "mad ambitions" of Hitler were well known to Congress and that in recent days "we have seen Japan crawling out to the south like a dragon . . . No one can foresee the extent or duration of this emergency."

"My only son is in the Army," he said, "and I don't want him kept there any longer than necessary, or any other father's son. But I would rather do a little more than is necessary to protect ourselves from the aggressors than find out later that we did too little."

Lee Sees "Appeasement"

Senator Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, a member of the Military Affairs Committee, said he had consented to but never completely approved of the committee's amendment limiting service to 30 months. He called the amendment "an effort at appeasement to get a few votes" and said he was going to make a fight for restoration of the bill originally requested by the War Department.

If the Burton amendment were passed, he declared, "we would be right back here 12 months from now splitting the country wide open with another bitter debate."

"Either there is no emergency, and we shouldn't keep these soldiers a day longer," he declared, "or there is a real emergency—and none of us knows when it will end."

Extension of service "for as much as one day" was opposed by Senator O'Daniel (Democrat), of Texas, who announced in a half-hour maiden speech that he "didn't come to Washington to be a yes-man or rubber stamp."

The former Texas Governor, taking the floor only a day after he had been sworn in as Senator, said he "wants the world to know" that President Roosevelt, in his capacity as commander in chief, "will have the 100 per cent support of the junior Senator from Texas."

He added, however, that Congress "would be breaking faith with the soldier boys" if it extended the service period for selectees now in the Army, since they believed at the time of their induction they were to serve only for a year. He recommended that "after a certain date all men inducted should be inducted for the duration."

Senator Tunnell (Democrat), of Delaware, said an 18-month extention of service might cause serious resentment in the camps and "create a very dissatisfied element who would disturb American political and social life for years."

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, announced after defeat of the Taft amendment, for which he had voted, that "the only democratic thing to do now is vote against the bill."

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, yesterday appointed a subcommittee of that group to consider a resolution calling for a Congressional investigation of "war propaganda" by the radio and motion picture industry. The investigation was demanded by Senators Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, and Clark (Democrat), of Missouri.

Senator Clark (Democrat), of Idaho, was appointed chairman of the subcommittee. Other members are Senators Bone (Democrat), of Washington; McFarland (Democrat), of Arizona; Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, and Brooks (Republican), of Illinois. All except McFarland are foes of Administration foreign policy.

Inter-American Affairs Aides Appointed

Nelson A. Rockefeller, coordinator of inter-American affairs, announced yesterday the appointments of Wallace K. Harrison, of Yale University, as director of the Cultural Relations Division, and Shelley Tracy, former advertising executive, as assistant director of the Communications Division of the Coordinator's Office.

Cudahy Denies Hitler Covets This Hemisphere

Los Angeles, Aug. 5 (INS).—Former United States Ambassador John D. Cudahy today scoffed at the idea that Germany has designs on the Western Hemisphere.

He drew heavily from his recent private interview with Adolf Hitler to conclude that German ambition "does not extend beyond what the Nazis regard as their hemisphere, Europe and Africa."

"The German people yearn for peace," he said. "They fight not in the hope of victory, but in the fear of a peace of vengeance—a peace worse than Versailles, and they will fight on and eat stones before they will lose."

Of the current German campaign in Russia, he said:

"The only American who really knows anything about it is Col. Fayonville, our military attache at Moscow for seven or eight years. He told me that while the Russian army had no power of attack it would give a great account of itself on defense. Its power of resistance, he said, would astonish the world."

FALSE TEETH

Played "hob" with Daniel Dobb—
But this is how he saved his job

From door to door trudged Daniel Dobb,
His sample case in hand;
Yet all day long he made no sales,
No orders could he land.
Alas! his dingy, foul false teeth
Were more than folks could stand.

A dentist said: "Try POLIDENT, The modern thing to do.
Although you neither rub nor scrub Your teeth will 'look like new';
It brightens smiles; checks Denture Breath; Is inexpensive too."

Dobb did! And now his order file Is simply overflowing;
His pay-checks, too, are lush and fat; His bank account is growing;
The lesson? POLIDENT can keep Your plates clean, sweet and glowing!

Cleans, Purifies Without Brushing
Do this every day: Add a little POLIDENT Powder to half a glass of water. Stir. Put in plate or bridge 10 to 15 minutes. Rinse, and it's ready to use.

Colonel's Wife, Fearing Loss Of Sight, Kills Self and Child

By International News Service

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 5.—A mother's fear of blindness was blamed tonight for the murder and suicide which took the lives of the wife and daughter of Lieut. Col. L. R. Wolfe, of Fort Francis E. Warren.

The bodies of the pair, Mrs. Louise Wolfe and her 11-year-old daughter, Lamareaux, were found today in the Wolfe automobile on a lonely road 5 miles west of the Army Reservation. The Wolfes came to Wyoming from Washington, D. C., a few months ago.

Mrs. Wolfe shot and killed the girl and then killed herself, according to Coroner Paul H. Worland.

The girl's body, with three bullet holes in the center of her back, was found in the front seat of the automobile. Mrs. Wolfe's body, with a bullet through the left temple, was found in the back seat, together with a .45-caliber revolver.

Family friends said they believed despondency over ill health prompted Mrs. Wolfe to take the life of her daughter and herself.

They said she had been sick for several months and feared she might lose her eyesight.

Lieut. Col. Wolfe, plans and training officer of the Quartermaster Replacement Training Center at Fort Warren, was reported prostrated.

[The Wolfes, who came to Washington from Philadelphia in 1938, lived at 3908 Jocelyn Street Northwest, until last March. Lieut. Col. Wolfe had been stationed in the Quartermaster Corps here.—Editor's note.]

Eight Million Letters To Explain Tax Notes

The Treasury Department will mail eight million letters soon, explaining the new tax-anticipation notes throughout the Nation, it was learned yesterday. The notes are designed to ease the burden of next year's taxes.

Henry Morgenthau, jr., Secretary of the Treasury, approved the mass-education campaign, as a means of letting every taxpayer know how he can buy a new Government security to pay next year's taxes and receive interest on the principal. Corporations are already taking advantage of the plan.

EDDY DUCHIN'S Topsy-Turvy Meat Pie

1 cup chopped onion	1 tablespoon Lea & Perrins Sauce
2 tablespoons shortening	1 can tomato soup (condensed)
1 pound ground beef	1 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt	2 cups biscuit mix

Brown onion in hot fat. Add beef, cook until brown and crumbly, but not hard. Add salt, Lea & Perrins Sauce, tomato soup, and cook until thick. Combine milk and biscuit mix, spread over meat. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) for 20 minutes. Invert on serving plate. Cut in wedges and serve hot. This makes 6 servings.

Politics As Usual

At a time when the Nation is in peril, when billions are being spent for national defense, when Congress is engaged in passing a staggering tax bill which, drastic though it is, will cover only part of the Government's extraordinary expenses, when Congress and the Administration are beginning to wrestle with the threatening problem of inflation—at a critical time like this the President has found it necessary to rebuke Congress for dipping into the pork barrel. The rebuke is contained in a message vetoing the so-called defense highway bill. It is none the less stinging because it is couched in formal language. In effect the President tells Congress that it has played politics—pork-barrel politics—with national defense. And Congress can make no convincing reply to the charge. The evidence of its voracious appetite for vote-getting highway appropriations, even in the face of a national emergency, is contained in the vetoed bill. The Administration had asked for 25 million dollars to correct "critical deficiencies" in strategic highways. Congress raised the sum to 125 million dollars, and provided for its apportionment among the States in accord with the best pork-barrel tradition. If that act were allowed to stand, a hundred million dollars would be needlessly spent, and the Army would probably still lack some of the highway and bridge improvements it so urgently needs. Some other valid objections to the bill were raised by the President, but this single item should be sufficient to win hearty applause for his veto. The people expect something more of their legislators in this emergency than an irresponsible policy of politics as usual. The least the Senate can do is to sustain the veto, despite the recommendation of the Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads that it be overridden, and put its pork barrel in storage for the duration.

A Russo-Japanese Clash?

While Japanese troops continue to pour into Indo-China, and are beginning to concentrate along the frontiers of Thailand (which promises to be the next victim of Japanese imperialism), unconfirmed reports from Shanghai tell of large-scale fighting along the Amur River frontier separating Manchukuo from Siberia. These reports are categorically denied by a Japanese army spokesman at Tokyo. A clash of that kind, he is quoted as saying, was "impossible in present circumstances." That sounds logical. Until the outcome of the titanic German-Russian struggle in Europe becomes clearer the Japanese would seem to have every reason to hold their fire in Northeastern Asia. For there appears to be no evidence that, in spite of the German thrust, the Moscow government has found it necessary to reduce Red army garrisons in Siberia to the point where that region becomes vulnerable to a Japanese attack.

For years, in fact, Russian strategy has taken account of the possibility of a war on two frontiers. The result is that the Red forces in the region east of Baikal have been given a wholly autonomous status, depending for their supplies on industrial areas in Siberia itself. Thus the Japanese, who have not forgotten how their troops were cut to pieces by the Russians in the Battle of Changkufeng some years ago, would be taking very great risks by embarking on an invasion of Russian soil at this time. Particularly would such an attack be dangerous in view of the fact that, following the occupation of Indo-China, Japan has incurred the hostility and is now subject to the economic reprisals of the United States, Great Britain and the Netherlands.

On the other hand, the longer Japan delays settling accounts with Russia the less likelihood there is this year of Japanese action in Siberia. This is a region where winter sets in early and is extremely severe in its nature. It may be, therefore, that the Kwantung army, the force which Japan has long maintained in Manchuria and which has enjoyed almost complete freedom of action, has decided at this time to test out Russian defenses. Perhaps they wish to discover whether the Red army in Siberia has been weakened to the point where a Japanese thrust in the direction of Vladivostok would have chances of success. That would be particularly true if the Japanese high command decided that the gains of further southward moves are certain to be offset by the losses Japan would incur through American, British and Dutch economic action.

Japan's dilemma has not eased as a result of the occupation of Indo-China. If anything, it has become sharper. For now the area of maneuver hitherto enjoyed by Japan has been reduced to the vanishing point. Only a few moves are left to her—a drive across Burma, an attack on Singapore and the Dutch East Indies and an invasion of Siberia—and every one of these moves may lead to war involving a major power.

Joint Returns

Those who take issue with the Ways and Means Committee proposal, which was taken out of the new defense tax bill Monday, for joint income tax declarations for husband and wife lay great stress upon the alleged constitutional objections to compulsory joint returns. They cite the case of Hoeper vs. Tax Commission of Wisconsin in support of their position. In that case the State tried to tax the husband upon the wife's income under a State law requiring the tax to be computed "on the combined average taxable income." A majority of the members of the United States Supreme Court held that "any attempt by a State to measure the tax on one person's property or income by reference to the property or income of another is contrary to due process of law as guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment."

However, a dissenting opinion written by the late Justice Holmes, in which Justice Stone (now Chief Justice) and Justice Brandeis concurred, averred that "So far as the Constitution of the United States is concerned, the Legislature (of the State) has power to determine what the consequences of marriage shall be, and as it may provide that the husband shall or shall not have certain rights in his wife's property, and shall or shall not be liable for his wife's debts, it may enact that he shall be liable for taxes on an income that in every probability will make his life easier and help pay his bills." A lot of water has passed over the dam since the majority opinion was written. Since then the Court has been virtually reconstituted. Moreover, Federal legislation providing for compulsory joint tax returns might plausibly be sustained on the ground that it is a means of preventing evasion of taxation by married persons. Such an argument might sound dubious to those who believe it would be antisocial to inquire into reasons for marriage. Yet quite recent decisions of the Court in cases concerning gifts and assignment of earnings by a taxpayer to members of his family are cited by supporters of joint returns in support of their supposition that the Supreme Court would sustain them.

Great concern has also been expressed over the injustice of forcing joint returns upon families in which wives have had property transferred to them by husbands who have paid gift taxes on the transfer. These objectors ignore the fact that many such gifts were made for the purpose of enabling the husband and wife to escape the higher surtax rates of the joint tax declaration. To set up a system whereby people in the higher income groups (and no others are affected) would have to pay as much as the family man whose wife does not earn a salary or enjoy a funded income, would entail no earth-shaking overthrow of established institutions. It would not interfere with State laws guaranteeing women's property rights and enabling them to control their own earnings. Indeed, the taxes payable under the joint declaration would be prorated between husband and wife according to their individual incomes.

Many families living in States with community property laws in which husband and wife are entitled to make separate tax returns on income from such property now enjoy an advantage over families living in the 39 other States. That advantage will be greatly increased under the higher surtax rates in contemplation unless action is taken to compel joint returns for all States. It is significant that Oklahoma, the last State to join the list of those with community property laws, makes utilization of the community property arrangement optional. That means, of course, that it will be availed of if it provides a means of reducing income taxes. These cases are cited to show that the legal arguments on this issue are by no means the black and white variety that they are represented to be, but, like all the arguments pro and con on the issue, bristle with complications which set the country by the ears sufficiently to make the House take the unusual course of voting separately upon it.

Small Loans Bill

Representative Dirksen pointed out in committee last Monday that the present District small loans law is inadequate because the interest rate—1 per cent per month—is too low to permit companies to operate profitably. His point is well made, for the percentage of company losses in this type of business is fairly high. At the same time it should be recognized that some private agencies in the District have been reaping handsome—indeed exorbitant—overall profits from their small loans business. This has largely been made possible by superimposing upon the 1 per cent interest rate various fixed charges which may be perfectly legal but which increase enormously the total interest which the customer must pay. Since there is no legal limit to the amount of these charges, the hard-pressed customer is virtually at the mercy of loan agencies, some of which have been collecting fantastically high percentages on an annual basis on their principal. This state of affairs, bluntly speaking, is a disgrace to the District, and clearly calls for remedial action.

From time to time new small loans bills, designed to curb the profits of loan sharks, have been offered but they have never gotten anywhere. In fact, one of these bills is now before the District Committee. On loans of $500 or less it would permit a 2 per cent monthly interest rate, which would cover all charges to the customer. If such a bill were passed, it would obviously put an end to existing abuses. Yet curiously scrambled objections to it have developed in the District Committee. On the one hand it is claimed that 2 per cent a month does not allow enough of a profit margin for loan agencies; on the other, that such a rate on an annual basis mulcts the poor man of 24 cents out of every dollar. All of the objections miss the main issue. This is or should be the elimination or drastic reduction of charges over and above the fixed interest rate. A rate of 3 or even 4 per cent, providing such interest covered all charges, would be a decided improvement, for it would end loan shark usury, allow the financing agencies a comfortable profit, and give customers a fairer break. These are the considerations which should govern the committee's eventual decision on the new bill.

Timing Auto Cuts

The automobile manufacturers are marking time—not knowing whether or when the 50 per cent production cut recently proposed by OPACS will become effective. Nobody within or without the industry is protesting against any curtailment program, however drastic, that may be necessary for defense purposes. But there are grave differences of opinion as to the length of time that should be allowed for making the adjustments required by a 50 per cent reduction in output. Informed opinion inclines to the view that from eight months to a year would be required to enable the industry to convert released equipment to production of defense goods, and provide employment for the automobile workers displaced by a 50 per cent cut. If a cut of such magnitude should be decreed within the next few months it is estimated that from 275,000 to 300,000 men would be made idle for long periods of time.

R. J. Thomas, head of the United Automobile Workers, asserts that there would be no available work on defense orders for these men. He also says that Washington warned the union that plants would have to shut down and some large automobile centers might become "ghost towns." The prospect is not only alarming but bewildering. For if automobile factories are to be shut down and trained workers turned out on the streets, how will the defense program be aided? It doesn't seem sensible at first glance to permit trained tools of labor, certain to be needed later for defense work, to be scattered, some workers, perhaps, going on relief. But there is a reason—and a very cogent one—why OPACS is seeking to cut automobile production more radidly. This is the necessity of conserving defense materials—especially steel—of which the automobile industry is a heavy user. But for material shortages, there could be no question as to the wisdom of a gradual adjustment of the industry to changed conditions, with a view of minimizing unemployment. Here, too, differences of opinion arise as to the seriousness of anticipated material shortages.

It may be that, in view of the threatened dislocation, the industry will be allowed more leeway for adjustment purposes than OPACS thinks wise. In any case something ought to be done at once to enable the automobile industry to shake off the paralyzing uncertainty that results from the lack of a definite program. There is machinery waiting to be converted to defense uses. But until defense orders are placed, nobody knows what kind of changes have to be made. There is, in short, a crying need for a long-range adjustment plan involving close cooperation between the Government and the industry, if the threat of "ghost towns" is to be averted. And these plans call also for immediate training of labor to operate adjusted machinery and to run the new plants constructed by the automobile companies for manufacture of defense equipment.

PORTRAIT OF JUNE

Her curls can give us back the sunshine
In the dullest weather.
Glowing beside a yellow lock,
The deep and deeper ringlets mock—
Like seven and eight and nine o'clock
All tangled up together,
And sweetly taciturn is she—.
So much to learn and she but three
Has made her grave as three may be.

A Veteran Speaks

What do you mean by "another lost cause," Levine? Was it a lost cause for myself and millions of others to help save this country in 1918 or 1898 or 1860 or 1776, so that the likes of you should have the privilege of being businessmen.

What a pity that you and a few others like you were dragged away from your business to serve your country. It's just too bad your forefathers didn't migrate to Germany, or France, or Spain or any other European country save England. Had they done so, you probably would now be in a nice concentration camp, with I am sure all the comforts of life in reverie. As for writing smart aleck letters to newspapers, you would be lucky if you had the strength to lift your hand to your face, after eating some of those meals you would be served there. After six months of a European concentration camp, you would be tickled to death to eat the meals prepared by dishwashers, let alone short order cooks.

No one has asked you to be prepared to die. All you are asked to do is to prepare yourself to keep from having to die in a war.

I consider that I have the right to answer you in this manner because in 1918, at the age of 19, and before I was in the draft, I gave up a position I had striven to obtain for two years in order to enlist in the United States Navy, and I served nine months overseas. I therefore feel that it is partly through my efforts that you are now able to live in a free country. So, again, I say, get wise to yourself, and be thankful that your forebears were permitted to enter a country that now offers you a "stinking barracks," as you call it, to live in, instead of a filthy concentration camp in Europe. Naturalized Citizens

Columnist Pegler is doing a good job when he muckrakes "would be dictators," but in his intolerance for Americans of foreign birth, he is bigoted.

There cannot be such a distinction as a "B" citizen for you are either a citizen or you are not (otherwise there would be an un-American dictated caste system).

"Man is the victim of circumstance" and because America is composed of such men they have made the U. S. A. the unique country it is. America in its broadest sense stands for freedom—freedom from oppression of any sort.

Most naturalized citizens made this land their home because it was better than the mother country; because it was the land of opportunity. Men are born equal in ability but unfortunately not in environment. If a man wanted to better his condition, he came to the United States where, if he could prove himself capable, he could raise his standard of living.

Because some leadership would retain some of the Old World in the New World does not necessarily mean that these minorities are making America less rich in culture and ideas. You cannot expect a man to change his lifetime habits on immediate notice. There is a tendency to hold back; it is the law of natural progression.

Youth brought up in American institutions are thoroughly assimulated. There are a few dominated by an opposition party fighting for ideals; which principle is democratic, even though the ideals may not be.

If people are proven aliens by evidence of their activities, public opinion is strong enough to deport such undesirable characters.

Vivisection

What reasonable objection can there be to supervision of the practice of vivisection? Our great country gives safety and freedom to us because it has laws which control and supervise. Why not supervision of a practice which, unregulated, inflicts so much needless pain and suffering?

I believe that Washington, the focus of all the world today, is a city of dog lovers. From the number of well-cared-for dogs, groomed to be clean and beautiful, having dog hospitals, even a dog cemetery, and in every way cherished, taken on the leash for safety by masters who are important personages—really the dog leading the man without complaint from the master—isn't it reasonable to suppose if such a public could be aroused by actual information proven to be authentic, this cruel practice could be abolished once and for all?

I have taken the trouble to investigate the conditions under which animals are used for so-called "research" in our Nation's Capital, and I wish to raise my voice for the pet, lost, strayed or stolen, and I put particular emphasis on stolen and delivered to the vivisection laboratories to be the victim of cruel and useless experiments.

The law should regulate the flow of living animals to the laboratories, for it has been proven over and over that the experiments on dogs and cats are entirely foreign to the reactions of man, so it seems that this cruelty is of no help to science for the good of man after all.

I believe that instead of being irksome, the discussion taking place now in the newspapers will enlighten the public and bring to them a realization of the horrors of fear and suffering that these sensitive creatures, God's creation as much as man, have to endure.

"Swift Justice"

I have always admired your editorials, but I take exception to the one entitled "Swift Justice" in The Post of July 31. Swift justice is the Southern way, get a man guilty or not guilty.

"Electrocution for criminals of the worst type" is probably all right. But the defendant referred to in "Swift Justice" was not a criminal He did not have a police record. And some witnesses gave him a good character slate. No amount of prosecution will have any effect, if innocent people are rushed to their death. AMERICAN PARENT.

Washington, July 31.

I wish to compliment the jury, also your editorial. I only hope they have the right man. Why didn't your paper print an editorial on the sniper's case, the most ruthless crime that ever happened, shooting poor innocent victims in their backs. But your editor failed to take note of that case. I hope your paper will print editorials on all crimes like this one above, including all rape cases. I also wish justice will give all such crimes the same penalty regardless of race, creed or color.

Our Position

At last we, the United States, have taken a definite position, as regards the Germans and Japanese. Now, a state of "national emergency" should be declared by the Congress.

A declaration of war is an afterthought with the Axis powers. If our program has been decided in the Far East, why shouldn't we take the aggressive? As regards a naval blockade of Japan, and a careful systematized bombing of her industries, from Manila, Vladivostok, and other Russian bases. This could be or has been worked out with the Russians.

It is apparent from the top-heavy admiralty cabinet Japan has just formed, and the admirals at St. James and Washington, that hers is to be a naval effort at first.

Twenty-four hours should be enough time for her to agree to split her fleet and agree to coordinate with America and Britain, or else. After that time limit a general onslaught should be planned, and executed.

The Primary A Failure?

The direct primary method of nominating political candidates has been fully tried and has proved to be inferior to the normal plan of nominations by party conventions. When candidates nominate themselves the selection is apt to be based upon judgment which is prejudiced and unreliable. When nominations are made by accredited delegates there is far greater probability that a wise choice will be made. Political parties should be responsible for the candidates who are nominated. They cannot be responsible under the direct primary system. The office should seek the man, not the man the office. When the change was made it was supposed it would put an end to corrupt practices in the selection of candidates together with the influence of political bosses but this expectation has not been realized, while the only important difference to be noted is a decidedly lower average ability in national, State and local officials. The party convention system should be reestablished as quickly as possible.

HENRY WARE ALLEN.

Wichita, Kans., July 29.

The Gasoline Ban

The draft, the necessity of forcing folks from their homes to make room for British offices, and the ban on gasoline and oil, were these for national emergency (inasmuch as we are not at war), or for England? Quite frankly, I believe they were for Merrie Old England, and, quite, frankly, I believe America is becoming too British to be American.

As for Mr. Ickes and his ban on gasoline and oil, Mr. Ickes lives on a farm; has a car furnished him by the Government, if I am not mistaken, and plenty of money, so that it isn't necessary to depend on a car for transportation. Most of the middle class can't afford a farm and haven't much money, but most of them do have a car and so can escape the heat of the city for a short while in the evening. Also they can afford a little vacation because car travel is the cheapest. But Mr. Ickes says no pleasure driving. While Mr. Ickes and the "others" are comfortable do you think he worries unduly about the little fellow? I'm afraid not.

So, if our sacrifices are for England, do you think, in view of past performances on her part, our effort is worth it?

The Post Impressionist

House Hunt

The Government had asked the head of the house to come to Washington and help defend America. I parked the boys in camp and arrived in Washington last week to find us a place to live.

We scanned the morning paper as we drank a hurried cup of coffee. Much more alarming to me than the Nazi advance into Russia was front page news about high rents and the housing shortage. The few houses advertised for rent and their prices confirmed the front page story. I tried not to think of the roomy old Victorian house surrounded by a garden, my two tiled baths and mimosa tree, all of which we rented for the incredible sum of $45.

I picked at random a Chevy Chase real estate firm from the 'phone directory and spent my first nickel. I was invited cordially to come right out. I thought of those agents in Boston and Detroit who showed you their many "desirable properties," picked you up at your hotel, delivered you there again at the end of a house hunting tour. Here, I gathered, you bought a map, escorted yourself to unfamiliar addresses in a hot perspiring city. Forward, then, alone by cab and bus through hottest Washington. I come from pioneer stock.

The cab I engaged to take me to Chevy Chase was driven by a unique individual. Did I want to spend a dollar to go so far? Maybe I would like to be taken to a bus line.

To one filled with such friendly concern for my purse, I told my errand and for 25 cents was delivered at the biggest real estate firm in Washington. I had to wait to find out that they had no houses to rent. Nor had three or four more firms nearby. I got the distinct feeling that my inquiries were taking up every one's time unnecessarily. The morning was going fast. Hadn't I told the man in Chevy Chase to expect me? I took a cab and it did cost me more than a dollar and when I got there, he said he had misunderstood me on the 'phone. Didn't I want to buy a place?

I located another dealer. The firm had nothing to rent, but I was invited to sit down and use their 'phone. A sympathetic young secretary marked several realtors in the 'phone book for me to call. Voices successively told me no.

Our family would like the atmosphere of a college town so I called College Park. Distracted, annoyed or sympathetic voices told me in turn the same thing. Hyattsville, my map informed me, was near College Park so I tried a dealer there. He had a house, eight rooms, two baths, to be newly decorated—all for $55.

"I'll be right out," I assured the dealer wondering what could be wrong with it, hoping that perhaps it was only an unfashionable neighborhood. There was plenty. Plaster crumbled from the walls. The filthy bath was so odious I did not regret the agent's "mistake" in telling me there were two. A stained and frowsy kitchen rustled with roaches. I've done social work. I know a slum when I see one, but I never saw one renting for $55 before. I walked back to the street where the bus line had deposited me in the rain. It began to rain much harder. A delicatessen store offered shelter for the price of a coke.

A gentle-faced couple was in charge, the woman surprisingly lovely, the kind of superbly modeled head which could wear a tiara and not look ridiculous. I consulted a paper, and showed them a particular ad. What did they know of this section? It was a respectable neighborhood and if I were willing, "Papa" would drive me there, as it was on his way home.

We found the house and he waited until I should look it over because he had remembered another he would take me to. I might be leaving comfort and beauty and a cheap rent, but I was not leaving neighborly kindness.

"I never dreamed it would be like this," said the young wife who admitted me to the house. "My 'phone doesn't stop ringing once. There it goes again. I can't get the baby to sleep. There must be a terrible shortage. Today is the first time I've advertised it."

Between rings, we toured the little six-room clean house, an inside house of a row. It rented for $65 and our family could squeeze in. I told her to hold it until my husband could come with me to see it. It was then 4:30. We were there before 7, but another man had come and taken it. He had been looking for a place for more than two months.

The next day I decided not even to leave the hotel until I heard of something promising. I was that annoying woman in Hotel A last week who monopolized the booth most of the morning.

Finally one agent described a house in a Virginia town, renting for $75, an old nine-room house with lots of space inside and out. I got on the bus, rode 45 minutes. As soon as I saw the shady street, I heaved a breath, "Peace, it's wonderful." I smelled the perfume of mimosa trees. A handsome flicker greeted me with a flash of wings. Some one in a house I passed was playing the piano—a real person on a real piano. (Raucous radios and row houses had been something to dread.) Big yards surrounded nice old houses that looked as if they had been there, lived in by nice people, since the turn of the century.

"Our" house was just as pleasant as the ones I passed. There would be room enough for us and for our souls and for our furniture. There was a fireplace, and fruit trees and a big, shady yard, a playroom in the basement and a screened porch for rainy day games, a little room for my husband's study.

I could not wait till after office hours to show it triumphantly to the head of the house. My quest had ended—I thought. We talked to the agent with check in hand for the first month's rent. We learned: Before we could move in, the present tenant must vacate and that he had a lease. He wanted to move soon, but just when he would move the agent could not say. My husband and I looked at each other.

I think I asked him for an answer.

Drafting Tax Bills

By Ernest Lindley

Economic Policy Agency Needed

THE EXCHANGE of letters on taxes between the President and Chairman Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee underlines a chronic defect in the Administration. This is the lack of an agency to formulate economic policies.

LINDLEY

The New Dealers used to be called, often derisively, economic planners. Many of them, of course, are advocates of economic planning in one sense or another. But their disagreements among themselves often are wide and deep. To a close observer, the absence of coordinate economic policies has been a persistent weakness during the Roosevelt Administration. Nowhere has this weakness been more latent than in tax policy.

In his letter to Doughton, the President requested three changes in the pending tax bill. One, in the excess profits tax, had been urged by the Treasury for two years. A second had been given belated approval by the Treasury. A third had been opposed by the Treasury.

In his reply, rejecting all three, Doughton expressed surprise that the President should advance views "so antagonistic to those expressed so emphatically by the Treasury as the representative of the Administration."

HE ADDED that his committee "at times found it impossible during the course of its hearings to reconcile the testimony of different officials representing the Administration."

Nor could anyone else reconcile them. Leon Henderson, chief of OPACS, differs sharply from the Treasury at several points. So does Marriner S. Eccles, Federal Reserve Chairman.

Henderson is the official primarily charged with averting inflation during the war period. All experts agree that taxation is the most powerful instrument that can be used to prevent inflation; indeed, that if it is not used courageously all other measures are doomed to failure. Henderson did not feel that the proposals of either the Treasury or the experts of Doughton's committee were adequate tax brakes on inflation. (Henderson's testimony, however, revealed a confusion of purpose between check inflation and increasing low incomes.)

CHAIRMAN ECCLES has responsibility for keeping our economic system on an even keel. For seven years he has been clear and consistent, as even those who disagree with him admit. Eccles often has differed with the Treasury, and the relations between him and Morgenthau are such that he is seldom consulted on fiscal policy.

Eccles warns that civilian purchasing power must be reduced if inflation is to be prevented. He advocates lowering income tax exemptions, as a superior alternative to a sales tax. The Treasury has strenuously opposed both. Like Henderson, Eccles favors high excise taxes on durable consumers goods, such as automobiles and refrigerators. This again is not part of the Treasury program.

THE PRESIDENT now proposes a lowering of income tax exemptions. However, he asked for a cut of only $50—from $800 to $750—in the exemption for a single person, as against $500—from $2,000 to $1,500—for married persons. He said he was against a multiplication of "nuisance taxes," implying opposition to the Eccles-Henderson excise taxes.

Many Government officials and experts sympathize with the confusion in which Doughton finds himself as to the Administration's policy.

ONE SOURCE of difficulty is the jealousy with which the Treasury guards its privilege to make tax recommendations. Other agencies, often better fitted to weigh the economic effects of taxes, are not consulted.

The House and Senate Committees also are jealous of their prerogatives and they have sometimes botched the Treasury's better-thought-out proposals. But until the Administration itself drafts consistent tax programs with a view to their economic consequences which the Treasury alone is capable of doing—it is not in a position to bring pressure on Congress.

Communist Tolerance

IT should not be necessary for Americans to view with the cold eye of the fly-cop any action or attitude by the American Government, but a combination of past performances and present circumstances makes it advisable to watch more closely now than ever before the relationship between this Administration and the Communists and their fellow-travelers. Never hostile to Muscovites, the Roosevelt Presidency has even fought for them at home to the extent of attempting to discredit the Dies Committee in its persistent if sometimes bungle-some revelations, and the wife of the President has flatly declared a tolerance for their mischievous younger set, at least, which Harold Ickes certainly would forbid if the brats were Hitlerites, instead.

But it has been not only the noisy adolescents, schooled in the perfidy of the Kremlin and practiced in the arts of obstreperous political and social action, who have encountered sympathy and understanding in Washington and in the web of Federal outposts which the New Deal has woven through the country. Adult bolos have crept into the Federal employ in the guise of liberals in such numbers and positions as would bring Mr. Ickes shrieking to his microphones if they were Nazis, and it cannot be forgotten that each disclosure of individual taint has been denounced as reaction, red-baiting and servility to the money-changers of Wall Street.

THAT established condition was bad enough and seemed likely to be abated if not wholly cured when the Moscow dictatorship threw in with Hitler in a treaty which was the actual signal of the start of the present war. Some American Party members and fellow travelers lost their balance and fell off the sled as it whipped around this abrupt turn in the party line and, for the first time since Comrade Stalin gave his solemn and worthless promise not to mess in the internal business of this Nation, in return for recognition by the American Government, the national Administration seemed disillusioned.

The Communists at last appeared to be the low and callous crooks that our red-baiters had always said they were and Robert Jackson, waiting for a vacancy on the Supreme Court, issued from the office of the Attorney General two denunciations of Muscovite activity in the U. S. A. which must have pained him as much as them.

But since Hitler attacked Russia and we have found ourselves on the same squad, so to speak, the United States being not yet a full member of the varsity in the game against Adolf, there has been a sharp change. By the generous permission of the Communists, we are to be spared further Communist interference with defense construction and production—a decision taken in the interests of Russia primarily and only incidentally in the interests of the American Republic.

THE same anti-Americans who were sabotaging the defense of the United States, none of whom, incidentally, has been or ever will be punished for this treason, instantly perceived that this was no longer an important war on Britain's behalf, but democracy's own struggle to exist and the motto "The Yanks Are Not Coming" was amended to read "The Yanks Are Not Coming Too Late."

This new situation obviously takes much heat off the Communists and, remembering how very welcome they had been before the slight chill that set in with the start of the war, it must be suspected that they will now be more welcome than they ever were. It is idle to hope that with so many Communists and sympathizers with communism already employed in agencies of the Federal Government, and with cooperating warming into something like alliance between Washington and Moscow, there will be a housecleaning or delousing.

But the resistance should be maintained out in the country and the Dies Committee's disclosures, however sensational they may be, should not be ignored or discounted on the mere ground that they are sensational. This committee is, after all, a committee of Congress, and the Administration's opposition to the inquiry must be regarded as its reaction to the committee's prodding in sensitive areas.

IT surely will have been noticed that there has been no hostility to the committee's revelations of Nazi and Fascist activity which, on the contrary, have been exploited as cause for anger and alarm, as indeed they are.

A sensible rule would be to consider whether Mr. Ickes, for instance, denounces Communist infiltration and Mrs. Roosevelt's association with Communists and fellow travelers as furiously as he loathes Hitlerism and Charles Lindbergh's popularity with American Nazis and Fascists.

That is a reliable way to call the turn on Ickes and the Administration. It is unfortunate that such skepticism must exist and unity suffers from it, but the fault is not in the skepticism. The fault is in the facts, the policy and the sympathy which make them skeptical.

How To Pronounce Russian Names On Battle Front

County Firemen To Open Session At Myersville

Myersville, Md., Aug. 5 (AP).—The role of volunteer firemen in defense will be reviewed at the seventh annual convention of the Frederick County Volunteer Firemen's Association Thursday and Friday.

Capt. T. Lester Smith, county coordinator of the defense program for firemen, is expected to name coordinators for each of the 13 county companies. Defense plans will be reviewed at a business meeting Thursday night.

A feature of the convention will be a parade Friday night, with delegations from each county unit and from neighboring counties participating.

'K Island' Claimed by Reds Would Lie Behind Nazi Lines

The Soviet army's practice of using initials to designate places in accounts of battles is sometimes revealing, sometimes evasive. A recent report, for example, claimed that fast Russian motorboats operating at the mouth of the Danube had captured the mysterious "Island of K."

"The largest 'K Island' at the Danube's mouth is the uninhabited Rumanian island of Kubanskoi," says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society. "It lies on the seaward fringe of the vast swampy delta through which the Danube frays out into the Black Sea, in the section built by silt from the northernmost of the three main mouths of the giant river. This island would bring the Russians to within seven miles of the chief Danube shipping channel through the river's Sulina mouth to the south.

Islands Behind German Lines

"Kubanskoi is a low, swampy oval a mile and a half long, rising high enough above water level in spots to support the typical delta forest growth of lush willow and tamarisk trees. For two miles on its Black Sea side the shallow waters are not more than four feet deep. The island has no permanent settlement of any size. It is visited only by fishermen, hunters and scientists studying the birds and other wild creatures living undisturbed in this swampy wilderness.

"Bessarabia, occupied by Russian forces before the German invasion began, adjoins the Danube delta on the north. All islands in the delta, therefore, would lie behind the German lines, and would bring the Russians considerably nearer the German army's vital Danube supply line.

"Kuchucurt, Karaorman and Kedrilles are other place names which 'K' might indicate in the marshy delta.

River Has 400 Tributaries

"Identifying a single island is a complex problem where the 'blue' Danube empties into the Black Sea. With the silt and water from the 400 tributaries of its 300,000 square-mile basin, the river has built up along Rumania's seacoast a vast flat delta more than 1,000 square miles in area. The entire marshy delta, with a coast line measuring 50 miles from north to south, consists of a maze of shifting muddy islands, shoals and bars, through which the Danube's sluggish brown waters reach the sea by 11 sizable mouths and numerous smaller ones.

"Winding across this deltaic patchwork of islands through the main navigable artery, the Sulina mouth, goes the sea-borne commerce which sails up the Danube to provision German-held countries of the Balkans and southeastern Europe. Through the same Sulina channel flows Rumanian oil and grain and other supplies which can reach German forces in the Balkans most readily via Black Sea routes."

Off The Record — By Ed Reed

Erratum

In Mr. Lippmann's article yesterday our omission of a "not" destroyed the sense of a whole paragraph. The full paragraph should have read:

"THERE are obviously Frenchmen who have staked everything on a Hitler victory. A man like Laval could hardly expect to survive and prosper in a liberated France; as a matter of fact he knows and says that his own life is forfeit if Hitler is defeated. Men in this position have not been in full control in Vichy. The surrender of Africa would place them in full control and all Frenchmen who participated in the surrender—the whole Vichy regime—would thereafter have as much reason to fear a Nazi defeat as Hitler, Goebbels or Himmler themselves. For in the eyes of true Frenchmen and of all the free peoples they would have committed an unpardonable act of treachery.

Thus they would force France first into war against the Allies and friends of France, and then as the Nazi occupation begins to crumble under the impact of the world-wide coalition that has now been formed their treachery would inexorably provoke a civil war within France. For the liberation of France would then require not merely the expulsion of the Germans but also the total destruction of the Vichy regime."

The italicized "not" is the word that was inadvertently left out of yesterday's article.

Triple-A Unworkable

By Mark Sullivan

Agency May Buy But Not Sell

TRIPLE-A (or the Commodity Credit Corporation) owns a lot of cotton. It wants to sell this cotton. But the Senate says Triple-A must not sell. This, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau says, is "just wicked."

SULLIVAN

It is wicked, in the economic sense. But it is not an economic sin just standing alone. It is the latest development in a long course of economic error. It is a chicken come home to roost. The whole process should be understood. It contains a portentous lesson—if we are willing to learn it.

Eight years ago, Triple-A set out to increase the price of cotton (and other crops). It was October 22, 1933, that President Roosevelt said about prices of all farm crops: "If we cannot do this [raise prices] one way, we will do it another; do it we will."

They tried a lot of ways. For increasing the price of cotton, some half-dozen devices were practiced. The best-known has been cash payments to farmers for reducing their acreage. Whenever one device turned out not to raise the price as far as Triple-A wanted, another device was added. Most of the devices have been practiced simultaneously, and are still in effect.

AMONG the devices has been a system of loans by Triple-A (Commodity Credit Corporation) to cotton raisers, upon their crops. The theory was that if farmers threw their cotton on the market, the price would go down. So Triple-A made loans to the farmers, with the crop as security.

While the loans were called "loans," they were in many cases actually gifts. For it was provided that if cotton did not sell in the market at a price sufficient to pay off the loan, then the farmer did not need to repay. In such cases Triple-A just took the loss and kept the cotton.

By this process, in the course of some seven years, Triple-A acquired an immense quantity of cotton. It has on hand some six million bales which go back to the crop-years 1934 and '35.

RECENTLY the price of cotton on the general market has gone quite high, up to some 16 cents a pound. At this price, Triple-A could sell off its accumulation of cotton without loss.

Triple-A was about to sell. This came to the ears of cotton raisers. They, and others interested, appealed to their members of Congress. Last week Senator Smith, of South Carolina, procured adoption by the Senate of a provision forbidding Triple-A to sell its cotton. This is what Secretary Morgenthau says is "just wicked."

Let us look at this situation from both sides.

FIRST, from the side of Secretary Morgenthau and Triple-A. From their point of view, they have a right to sell that cotton. To sell it is the only way they have of getting back the money the Treasury put into it. When they first made the loans, six and seven years ago, everybody understood that some day they would sell the cotton. When cotton was selling at a very low price, say 10 cents a pound or less, and Triple-A loaned a farmer more than the market value of it—in that situation the cotton raiser undoubtedly was more than willing that the Government should sell the cotton whenever, and if ever, the price should go up to where it now is, some 16 cents a pound. What the cotton raiser wanted out of the transaction, and what he got out of it, was an increased price for his then current crop, in the year of the original transaction, say 1935.

But look at the present situation from the point of view of the farmer, and the Congressmen who reflect him. Undoubtedly, if Triple-A sells that cotton, the price of all cotton in the general market will go down somewhat. The mere fact that the Government may sell it, the mere fact that this Government cotton is "hanging over the market," depresses the price, below what it otherwise would be.

AS BETWEEN Triple-A and Congress, probably Congress will prevail. For it is not the cotton Congressmen alone who are interested. Triple-A has also great quantities of wheat and other farm crops, acquired in the same way. The sum of the farm interests opposed to selling is probably a majority of Congress.

What the whole situation proves is a portentous lesson. This country cannot have, at one and the same time, Triple-A and Congressional government. Triple-A must also have power to sell. It must be free to buy when it wants to buy, free to sell when it wants to sell. And this degree of power, Triple-A cannot have under a Congressional form of government.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The Music Master

(After seeing the newsreel pictures of Mayor LaGuardia, of New York, directing the National Symphony Orchestra at Washington.)

The philharmonic players sit—
They're restless, hot and drear;
There's something missing, and they ask,
"Why isn't that man here?"

They know he's scheduled to appear
To lead the boys this night.
But he leads such a hectic life
They fear he may not light.

* * * *

But bark! An airplane's roar is heard
And then a throttled hum . . .
They heave a sigh because they know
LaGuardia has come!

He lands as if by parachute
And leaps upon the stage;
Such versatility belongs
Back in another age.

Now does he grasp the little wand—
It sputters like a wire—
He shows the gusto that he shows
When going to a fire.

He makes the cymbals loudly crash—
The drums do deeds quite new;
When Fiorello leads, the boys
Don't have to ask "Guess who?"

The saxophones do battle with Their owner, as they strive
To get real hot and jammy with
This leader so alive.

Each instrument goes gaga as
It feels the maestro's power;
(The players can't restrain 'em when They see the Little Flower.)

A cello in the rear explodes . . .
Hark! What's that painful wheeze?
A great bull fiddle falls apart—
It tried too hard to please!

A cornet breaks its holder's grip—
It's free now from his clutch;
(That old steam shovel gesture was
A little bit too much.)

Two grand pianos stand on end
And scream "Now let 'er rip! . . .
"He's dedicating some new bridge
"Or christening a ship!"

* * * *

The audience now wildly cheers—
Goes nuts upon the spot;
It never in its life has seen
A mayor quite so hot.

The picture men now grind away
As flashlights blaze and pop
(And only when they're finished will
This wondrous music stop.)

The Gallup Poll

By Dr. George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

51% Favor Extending Selectees' Training While 45% Approve Release After One Year

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 5.—Four sections of the country—New England, Middle Atlantic, South and Far West—vote in favor of extending the draft training period for longer than one year, while two sections—the East Central and West Central—vote against it in the final returns of the Institute's survey of public opinion on the issue.

With action in Congress expected this week on the draft extension, the Institute reported last Wednesday the preliminary returns of its survey, showing a national vote of 51 per cent in favor, 45 per cent opposed, and 4 per cent no opinion.

Final returns, with all 48 States represented, show the following:

"Do you think drafted men should be kept in active service for longer than one year, or should they be released at the end of one year?"

FINAL RETURNS

Should be kept	50%
Should be released	45
No opinion	5

If the "no opinion" vote is eliminated, the division of sentiment among those with opinions on the issue is 53 per cent for keeping the draftees, 47 per cent for releasing them.

Sectional Sentiment

The returns by geographical sections show sentiment divided as follows:

	Keep	Release	No Opinion
New England and Mid-Atlantic	51%	44%	5%
East Central	39	56	5
West Central	44	52	4
South	63	32	5
Far West	57	36	7

Such opposition as exists to the draft extension does not arise from any lack of public support for the draft system itself.

On the contrary, Institute surveys have shown that more than 90 per cent of the American voters approve the way the draft is being handled. In fact, the public was in favor of conscription many months before the Draft Act was passed by Congress.

Opposition to the draft extension stems from the fact that many people throughout the country interpreted the Draft Act to mean a promise by the Government that the men would be drafted for only one year, even though the measure did outline certain circumstances under which the training could be extended for a longer period.

Promise Is Cited

The chief reason given by voters who oppose keeping the draftees is that "the Government should not go back on its promise."

The Army has asked Congress for legislation to permit drafted men to be sent outside the Western Hemisphere. That issue was temporarily set aside pending action in Congress on the draft extension measure. But observers believe that, sooner or later, it will come to a vote in Congress, especially since the United States has taken over bases in Iceland.

A poll completed last week on the issue of sending draftees outside the Western Hemisphere indicated a majority opposed to such action at the time the survey was made. Because the issue is still in the discussion stage, the Institute plans to continue polling on it in order to report any trends of sentiment that may develop.

The Military Balance Shifts

IT WAS JUST a year ago this week that Hitler launched what many Germans were encouraged by Dr. Goebbels to believe would be the final battle of the war. That was the Battle of Britain, and it began on August 8, 1940, with a violent attack by the Luftwaffe on the ports and airdromes of eastern and southeastern England. Great Britain was then all that stood between Hitler and a total victory. Poland had been crushed 11 months earlier; Denmark, Norway and the Low Countries had been speedily overrun in the spring, and the men who, in the final stages of the Battle of France, controlled the destinies of the republic were so convinced of the inevitability of a German victory that they had made a separate peace with Hitler rather than continue the war from North Africa or elsewhere.

NOVER

THE BATTLE of Britain lasted from August 8 to October 31. As the official British air ministry account of the struggle has it: "It did not cease dramatically. It died gradually away; but the British victory was nonetheless certain and complete."

Now, a year later, it is not London which is being subjected to heavy aerial bombardment but Berlin, not British ports and airdromes and factories but the ports and airdromes and factories of German-occupied Europe which are being attacked. The immediate reason for this immunity enjoyed by Great Britain from visits of the Luftwaffe is, of course, the Russian war. But the German attack on Russia, like the earlier attack on Yugoslavia and Greece, stems from Hitler's failure to win the Battle of Britain.

Those German victories in the Balkans were not decisive. Their only value was that they provided the German war machine with advance bases for an attack on British positions in the Eastern Mediterranean, locked the door to a possible British attack on the German rear, and provided ammunition for the defeatist elements in the United States and elsewhere.

Nor, under existing circumstances, would a German victory in Russia be decisive. It would mean the elimination of the largest enemy military force on the continent. It would make possible an ultimate assault on England without fear that such action would lead to war on two fronts. And it would tend to revive the now battered myth of German invincibility which has been one of Hitler's most potent weapons. But these negative gains would have been achieved at a tremendous price in men and material even if the war on the Eastern Front ends soon. If the struggle continues into the winter the most that Hitler could get out of his Russian venture would only be a deferment of defeat.

RUSSIA'S successful resistance in the period since June 22 has already had extremely disturbing consequences for Germany and her allies. Throughout occupied Europe Hitler's failure to repeat in the East the spectacular triumphs he won a year ago in the West has given renewed hope of salvation to the millions living in subjection.

The conquered peoples are stirring with a ferment that bodes ill for the conquerors. Even those, like the men in control of the Vichy government, who had agreed to accept the "new order" and make their country part of it are beginning to have second thoughts regarding the wisdom of their choice.

In South America the shifting balance of military power, the doubts that have developed regarding German invincibility have given encouraged governments to deal vigorously with Fifth Column elements within their borders. And there can be no doubt that had it not been for the vigor of the Russian defense against the Nazi attack, the United States, Great Britain and the Netherlands might have hesitated before taking the strong stand they have taken in opposition to Japan's latest aggressions.

SO FAR Great Britain has taken advantage of German preoccupation in the East by increasing and intensifying the aerial attacks on German and German-held cities. The war is being brought home to the Germans as never before. That these attacks are having an effect in lowering the morale of the "master race" cannot be doubted. The diet of victory upon which Hitler has fed them has not increased but weakened their stamina. You cannot build cloud castles on shattered hopes. Nor are the communiques issued by the high command and edited by the Fuehrer an effective substitute for real victories.

As the flights lengthen over Europe the raids of the R. A. F. are certain to increase in volume and range. But it can be taken for granted that, if the Russians hold out, the British, with our aid increasing, will not be content with air raids on Germany alone.

Should the Germans continue to be bogged down in Russia when seasonable weather returns to North Africa, there is every reason to believe that a new effort to drive the Axis out of Libya will take place. In the meantime, we can anticipate increasing British pressure on Italy. The naval raids on Sardinia this week, the constant pounding to which Bengazi is being subjected, the strengthening of Malta by reinforcements of men and supplies sent through the Mediterranean and the assistance sent to the besieged garrison at Tobruk are all straws in the wind.

In the six weeks that have elapsed since Hitler began his war on Russia the military situation has undergone a far-reaching change. It is still too early to assume that the worst is over. Perhaps it is. But it would be fatal either for Great Britain or this country to rest on its oars. Hard and difficult days are still ahead. But when we contrast the state of affairs a year ago with the situation today there is undoubtedly reason for real encouragement.

Navy Equipment Rental Fees Draw Fire of Truman

By the United Press

Chairman Harry S. Truman (Democrat), of Missouri, of the Senate Committee Investigating Defense, charged yesterday during hearings on the Navy Department's equipment rental practices that the Navy, "in many cases," has paid 200 to 300 times the value of equipment.

Noting that similar instances had been found in the Army, Truman said: "We thought the Army was rotton, but the Navy goes them better than that." He added that the Navy should have had more experience in that line since it has been renting equipment for some 40 years.

His statement was made during testimony of Lieut. Comdr. A. A. Ort, chief of the equipment rental section. Ort said he considered it "dangerous to draw extensive conclusions on individual cases."

Meanwhile Chairman Carl Vinson (Democrat), of Georgia, of the House Naval Affairs Committee, said he expected to introduce legislation soon which would place a "flat, overall profit limitation" on all Government work.

A Neutrality Patrol Flight

President May See Similar Action

By Pat McGrady

New York, Aug. 5.—The big, twin-engined Hall seaplane lumbered down the ramp and entered the water, where it swayed slightly with the tide.

Within a minute or two the beaching crew had unfastened the landing gear. In another minute the plane was clear of its land trappings.

"Stand by to start the engines," Lieut. W. I. Swanston called into his small microphone. From each of the five compartments came an "aye, aye, sir." The crew-co-pilot, flight engineer and his assistant, first and second radio operators—were ready.

With a bang the starboard engine started. The port engine coughed and burst into a roar. The ship nosed into the wind and, with ever-growing thunder and speed, parted the sea before it and took to the air.

This was the start of a daily neutrality patrol flight by the United States Coast Guard's aviation wing.

As the plane rose over Floyd Bennett Field, where the Coast Guard and Navy maintain their air bases, Swanston leaned over to shout above the engines' din and the clatter of a thousand wires, cables and conduits that lined the ship's interior:

"Nothing much happens on these flights, but, for your sake, I hope there's a story."

The field below and the air above us are alive with aircraft. Yellow, hornet-like Navy trainers circle high and low. Four great Navy patrol bombers ride in tandem like large black whales against the horizon.

Directly beneath us a score of bombers are being dismantled for crating and shipment to Britain. They already bear British markings and are camouflaged.

Quickly the plane glides over Ambrose Channel through which motley fleets of tired old ships still limp to and from war-ridden waters.

These derelicts, which long ago should have been scrapped out of respect to their age, seem to outnumber ten to one the really seaworthy craft that pass beneath the protecting guns of forts that encircle this important gate to America.

Just beyond Ambrose lightship, traffic is heavy. Ships of all sizes and descriptions converge from the south and east. One in particular attracts Swanston's attention—a gray-black vessel with armament fore and aft.

We swoop low and circle the ship until Swanston is satisfied it is British. All markings, of course, have been painted over.

Off Asbury Park, N. J., we come upon pleasure craft well out to sea. Swanston looks them over carefully, for they are a chronic headache to the Coast Guard.

Fresh from their desks in the city and as steeped and skilled in navigation lore as correspondence schools can make them, many of these hardy vacationers head into all sorts of trouble, and the Coast Guard gets them out—9,249 of them last year.

A few miles off Atlantic City, N. J., we come down upon a foreign freighter, New York-bound. The crew wave as we speed 50 feet over her. There are no guns on deck and her name is in white letters. She does not ply in European waters now.

A Navy patrol blimp hovers off the New Jersey coast, a gleaming silver bag against the shore.

High over Barnegat lightship we run into fog and go downstairs to an altitude of about 100 feet. Almost before we see it, we are over another gray ghost of the seas, outward bound. We circle low around her twice. She, like all other suspicious-looking vessels, is reported by radio immediately in code.

Far out from land the ocean becomes to us a huge crater with steam rising from the perimeter. Against this false horizon, ships look like large airplanes.

Out of the mists we sight an old hulk. A man and dog emerge from the cabin, satisfying Swanston it is not a derelict which the Coast Guard must destroy.

Now, except for a rare tanker, there is nothing but sea and sky; and sometimes it is difficult to tell which is which. After an hour of this we suddenly come upon a large American warship steaming rapidly. She salutes with heliograph, we with wings.

Now we are approaching Nantucket light, and we watch more closely than ever.

We see four ships, dark gray and heavily armed, outward bound . . . probably to join a convoy. A few miles beyond them, bound for Boston, we come upon a large naval crane-ship being towed by a blackened supply ship whose decks bristle with antiaircraft and other cannon.

Swanston swoops down upon fishing yawls and scrutinizes them carefully. They might be something the Coast Guard continually hunts down—raiders or smugglers. They turn out to be fishermen.

We swing in a wide circle to the north and east. An unexploded mine had drifted near this area a short time ago and the Coast Guard destroyed it.

After eight hours' patrolling, the plane slides smoothly across the surface and comes to a stop before the Coast Guard air base in Salem, Mass.

Swanston shuts off the engines and, as a crew beaches the ship, says, "Too bad it was such a dull day."

Cotton and Lisle Hose Will 'Sub' Successfully for Silk Varieties

Models Developed by Department of Agriculture Are Well Fitting, Sheer And Graceful; Mesh Styles Included

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor.

Bare legs or cotton hose? Sooner or later women are going to have to choose between these alternatives. And just one glance around the hosiery counters of local stores and the prediction is that the issue will take shape "sooner."

If women come to cotton hose, what may they expect? Some of the stores have on hand samples of very sheer lisle hose that may be sold in a variety of colors. They also come in mesh weaves—some so fine they are scarcely distinguishable from plain knit hose. Some, too, are equally fine in comparison.

The Department of Agriculture has also been working on the hosiery problem. It now has available to the hosiery industry more than 150 different cotton stocking designs. Several of these designs are in production and more will be soon. There are plain and mesh styles in every kind from cobweb mesh to service weight with fancy or plain toes and heels.

Buying Rush Deplored

Extravagant buying of dozens of pairs of silk stockings which hosiery buyers dub "plain silly," seems to hinge on the following questions:

Is the present supply of hose in the shops sufficient to permit the buying of a reasonable number of pairs to tide over until a satisfactory substitute is found?

Is the price of hosiery going to rise "sky-high?"

Are shops going to limit the sale of hosiery per customer?

These questions, asked of the Post fashion editor, were put to various hosiery authorities in the city. Most of them felt that no definite conclusions could be drawn at present. They do agree, however, that a woman is foolish to buy a great quantity of hose.

In the first place, with Japan supplying 81 per cent of the silk, and the cessation of trade with that nation, a substitute is necessary.

In the second place, authorities say it is difficult to tell about rising prices at this early date. Right now hosiery prices are remaining fairly constant. Nylon hose, as much in demand as silk, are remaining the same.

New Styles Predicted

And in the third place, unless a citywide ruling is made, it is up to each store individually whether or not it will limit the sale of hose per customer. At present a few have limited the sale from three to six pairs. Many still permit the sale of as many hose as the customer desires.

Authorities believe it is up to the woman to be rational in the purchase of hose. They point out two facts as food for thought: With many pairs of stockings stored away in a dresser drawer, there is a good chance of deterioration before they are worn. Even though a woman washes her hose according to the most specific directions, experts say they might not last long enough.

The most important item brought out—and one buyer uttered "vanity of vanities" under her breath—was the fashion angle. If the decree suddenly were to go out that a new kind of hosiery had been discovered, women would want that particular kind and no other. Those who had bought quantities of silk or nylon would be stranded—so "let's be rational about this thing."

For wear with tailored clothes the Department of Agriculture has created the novelty mesh cotton stockings (right). They are full-fashioned and fit the legs trimly—just one of the 150 designs created and now available to the hosiery industry

Camera Jitters Exercises Ease For Film Actors

Hollywood, Calif. — Like a football player, who limbers up before going into action, most screen players, especially the younger ones who are still apt to "freeze" at the word "action," find they do their best scenes if they first eliminate tenseness through exercise.

The exercises may take the simple form of whistling, stretching, drawing ten deep breaths, or, as in James Cagney's case, cracking a joke before stepping into a scene. Jimmy especially relies on this "light touch," which he occasionally augments with a bit of front of the sound stage until called for a scene.

Olivia de Havilland calms her soft shoe dancing.

Bette Davis walks briskly in camera jitters by rhythmic breathing while she lies full length on her dressing room couch.

But it's the "rag doll' exercise that seems to work wonders with the majority of the players. It's the one advocated by Sophie Rosenstein, the Warner studio dramatic coach, when she teaches new actors the technique of their art. Many of the girls do it several times a day just for beauty's sake.

Mary Haworth's Mail

In Two Years' Marriage, Woman Has Been Struck, Kicked and Vilified Almost Constantly by Husband; Unable to Appease His Rages, She Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband and I are in our latter twenties. We have been married two years, and during that time, my body has never been free of bruises inflicted by him. He kicks me, strikes me and pulls my hair. Because of his very quick temper and exceedingly unpleasant disposition, he is continually fussing, nagging and sneering at me and calling me insulting names. He goes into his violent rages about once a week; sometimes oftener. But he is always very sorry afterward, promising to do better—although he never does.

I let him have his way in everything—trying to keep from being knocked around. I do everything in my power to try to please him, without success. He gets angry over trifles that cannot be helped. He is always planning trips, and goes into a rage if I suggest we don't go. He is always talking about having a good time, and seems to live for his "day off"—into which he tries to cram too many activities.

He fusses because I have a job. He wants me to stay home and have a child. But he acted no better before I went to work, so I am sure it wouldn't improve his disposition if I stayed home. Also, I don't want to give up my job, because I am beginning to believe I may need it to support me in future. But often I go to work so upset that I can hardly be civil to the people I work with.

My husband's quarrelsome disposition is a family trait, I have learned since marrying him. This discourages me, as I feel his temper must have been born and bred in him. He admits that his mother wasn't happy unless she was fussing at someone, and it seems the same is true of her son. And I want peace and harmony. Must I leave him in order to find it? Or do you think he will ever change? Is there anything I can do to change him into a more agreeable person?

When I got married, I intended to stay married, and I have prayed for patience. But I am sure nobody I know would live with a man who acts as my husband does. My family doesn't know how he behaves, except my sister, who told me that I am a fool to live with him. However, I forgive him readily when he is repentant, as he is very sweet then; and I want to believe that he will do better. But I am beginning to think he never will. And I know I am not to blame for his rages. What do you advise me to do? I am on the verge of leaving him, but I don't want to make a mistake. CORALIE.

Tryants Thrive On 'Appeasement'

DEAR CORALIE: On reading your letter, one immediately thinks of at least three reasons why you should leave your husband. Firstly, so long as he finds you willing to tolerate his abuse, he will never change. Secondly, his lack of self control and savage mistreatment of you show him to be—at this stage of his development—unfit to live with. And, thirdly, you have a moral obligation to take such steps as are necessary to protect your own mind and soul against the coarsening influence of his brutal usage and obscene vilification. Remember Tennyson's words. "As the husband is, the wife is; thou art mated with a clown and the grossness of his nature shall have weight to drag thee down."

The worst aspect of your husband's misbehavior is the fact that he could control himself if he would. There is no such thing as an inherited bad temper. A disposition to throw tantrums is an acquired characteristic—usually the result of wrong training and vicious example. And the adult who habitually seeks to gain his way by "going into a rage" is psychologically on a par with a howling spoiled brat of kindergarten age.

Ostracism from the company of reasonable persons is the disciplinary measure best suited to the offense. Anyone who tries to appease the chronic "scene maker" by giving in to his demands, or showing fear of his anger, is selling himself short and doing his tormenter a disservice. The thing to do is to walk out on him—leaving him entirely alone to reflect on the error of his ways.

This may or may not (in the case of the adult miscreant) induce a change for the better. But at least it will shut him up. A raging tyrant (whether wearing diapers or long pants) must have a sense of lording it over (and throwing a scare into) a familiar audience or hypnotized victim, if he is to derive any satisfaction from his performance. He quickly huffs to a halt when nobody is listening who gives a tinker's dam.

So my advice to you is to clear out of this situation as quickly as possible, leaving your husband to either stew in the juices of his frustrated hysteria, or promote a cure, just as he chooses. That move may be the indirect means of reclaiming him from his inexcusably wayward course; but in any event, it will bring you one step nearer that "peace and harmony" in your home life which you have the good sense to desire; and which you can never know while you continue to live with him on the terms he has thus far imposed. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

The Gentler Sex

How to Have Ancestors

Q—What is the first social duty of every true democratic American woman?

A—To establish a family tree dating back to a lord or king.

Q—But what if she is not descended from a lord or king?

A—All Americans are descended from either aristocracy or royalty, according to the latest public opinion polls.

Mrs. Puf'er-Swagg

Q—To whom, specifically, should the American of noble blood "go back."

Q—Why Charlemagne?

A.—Because everybody's doing it, and also because Charlemagne is understood to have traced his lineage back to Adam.

Q—To whom else would the embryo blueblood "go back?"

A—To William the Conqueror, or at least one of the Norman nobles who accompanied him to England.

Q—Didn't William the Conqueror have any common soldiers? Yes, but apparently they all died childless.

Q—But what if the would-be aristocrat is of Irish descent?

A—Then she unquestionably comes from one of the Irish kings.

Q—What if she is Scottish?

A—Then she is a descendant of a highland chief, and is closely connected with the present head of some noted Scotch clan.

Q—Does the American blueblood have to be of English, Scotch or Irish descent?

A—Oh, no. She may come down from the Spanish dons or from a Van Somebody or other of the Dutch nobility, or from the French nobility who came to this country with Lafayette.

Q—If of British descent, whom should she number among her ancestors?

A—Several—Possibly half a dozen—barons of Runnymede.

Q—Why so many?

A—Because virtually everyone can boast of at least one ancestor at Runnymede.

Q—How should the American blueblood's ancestors have gotten to this country?

A—On the Mayflower, the Ark or the Dove, or on one of the early ships that pulled into Jamestown.

Q—What if she can't dig up anybody on the Mayflower?

A—She can point out that her ancestors came with the better class of English who came AFTER the Mayflower crowd and who were neither religious fanatics, tradesmen nor artisans.

Q—What should her first ancestors to this country have been?

A—Preferably the younger son of a famous noble.

Q—Should he have come alone to this country?

A—No, he was one of three brothers who came over—one going north, one going south and one to the middle colonies.

Q—If the blueblood is from Virginia, whom were her more immediate ancestors?

A—Cavaliers and big slave owners.

Q—If from Maryland, what kind of ancestors did she have?

A—Hard riding, hard drinking, fox hunting aristocrats.

Q—What about the descendants of the indentured servants, convicts, tradesmen, bound girls, etc., who came to the colonies?

A—Presumably they all died childless.

Q—How should the blueblood improve her connections?

A—By establishing kinship with all the more successful persons of her name.

Q—What expression should she always include in her vocabulary?

A—"Background," "very old family," "good connections," "Who was she?" "He married a Doe," etc.

Q—What is the ultimate reward of the successful American blueblood?

A—To be accepted and respected by elderly dowagers, to have entree to all the stuffier social circles and to be absolved from making any individual achievement or service.

Sagging Bust Caused by Fat And Posture Rather Than Age

By Ida Jean Kain

WOMEN ARE fine philosophers. When our figures change, we take stolid comfort in the view that it is part of the ageing process and can't be helped. This is especially true of the bust contour, which has a tendency gradually to lose its firm, high youthful line.

The tendency of the bust to sag is so characteristic of the older figure that you may take it for granted and not even wonder whether it is normal. It isn't! The fact that it happens in the majority of cases doesn't make it inevitable. There are actresses well along in their 50's who have beautiful bosoms, and women in their 30's who don't.

It isn't age. The trouble is with excess fat, lack of good supporting muscles, and slumped posture. The breasts are glands which sit on the pectoral muscles, slung hammock-wise across the chest. As excess fat is taken on it may tend to concentrate in this area, and the extra weight drags the contour down. If the muscles are flabby, the tendency to sag is increased.

Glands Are Factor

The size of the breast depends on your weight and on your glands. You may have normally a full, well-developed bust, irrespective of your weight. The contour is determined by muscle and skin tone and posture as well as weight. And it isn't just the muscle and skin tone in this particular region that counts—it's the tone of the entire body. So, in trying to improve this measurement it is better to work on your entire figure rather than a single factor.

If you are overweight generally, your big problem is weight and you shoud start by cutting down the calories. As your weight is lowered, there will be a reduction of the excess fat through the bust.

But you must exercise along with your dieting. Although exercise does not help to any great extent in the actual reduction, it is needed to tone muscles and skin as the weight is reduced by diet. Exercises for this purpose also markedly improve the posture and a more erect carriage gives a lift to the bust contour.

Bust Exercises

The best exercises are those which work the entire shoulder girdle. Make backward circles, reaching up with the arms as you circle up, around and down. Circle arms alternately or together—it's good exercise either way. Stretching bar exercises—or any exercises in which you get a good upward stretch—are very effective, and so are those in which you toss a medicine ball overhead.

The stimulation to your circulation through exercise improves both muscle and skin tone, but it is good beauty practice to dash cold water over throat, chest and bust.

As a finishing touch, be sure that your brassiere is correctly fitted. The designers have taken every type problem into consideration and your brassiere should be exactly right for you.

MRS. JOANNE SHAW PARKER

Woman Widely Known Here and in Boston Will Become Bride of Herbert Elliston At Peterborough, N. H., on Saturday

Of wide interest in Washington and Boston is the news that Mrs. Joanne Shaw Parker, of this city and Petersborough, N. H., will be married on Saturday to Herbert Elfiston, associate editor of The Washington Post.

The wedding will take place on Saturday afternoon at 4 at the bride's home, Knight's Hill, in Peterborough. Only relatives and intimate friends of the couple will attend. After a honeymoon they will return to Washington and will make their home, beginning in the fall, in Mrs. Parker's home, 1313 Twenty-eighth Street, Georgetown.

The prospective bride, the former Joanne Shaw, is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Louis Aggassiz Shaw, of Boston, and a granddaughter of Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, of East Walpole, Mass. Her first marriage to Louis Dabney Parker, of Dover, Mass., ended in divorce. Mrs. Parker came to Washington three years ago and has been making her home here during winters.

The Rev. Vivian Pomeroy, of the Unitarian Church in Milton, Mass., will officiate at her wedding, which will be followed by a small reception. Later the couple will go to Dorset, Vt., where they will spend a brief honeymoon at the home of Mrs. Shaw McKane, cousin of the bride.

Marshall Fields To Entertain

Mr. Elliston will go to Peterborough on Friday and that evening the couple will be honor guests at a steak fry to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Field 3d. Mrs. Field, the former Joanne Bass, is a cousin of Mrs. Parker. The day of the wedding Robert Perkins Bass, uncle of the bride and former Governor of New Hampshire, will entertain at a luncheon in their honor at Orchard Hill Farm, his Peterborough home.

Mr. Elliston is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Elliston, of Sherwood Forest, Nottinghamshire, England, and of the late Frederick T. Elliston, of Yorkshire, England. He has had varied experience in journalism, both at home and abroad. He formerly was editorial writer for the New York Herald and later served as financial editor of the Christian Science Monitor.

At the outbreak of the war, the Monitor sent Mr. Elliston on a European tour of investigation and he was not only the first correspondent of an American newspaper to arrive on the scene of operations when war broke out between Finland and Russia, but he was also the first to broadcast a connected account of the Russian onslaught. He then wrote "Finland Fights," which appeared before the Finnish war came to an end and was the first book to come out of World War II.

Mr. Elliston also has served as correspondent for the Manchester Guardian and the London Observer. At one time, from 1923 to 1927, he was economic adviser to the Chinese government. He frequently contributes to magazines and his articles on economics and world affairs have appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, the Atlantic Monthly and other magazines. At the time of his appointment last November to The Washington Post he was acting advisory editor of the Atlantic Monthly, for which magazine he also wrote a monthly column, as well as financial editor and columnist for the Christian Science Monitor.

W. H. Mallory To Be Best Man

Mr. Elliston was first married to Mildred Foster, daughter of the late Representative David J. Foster, of Vermont, who was chairman of the House Foreign Relations Committee in the Taft Administration. He has one son, Stephen Foster Elliston, who is a student at Phillips Exeter Academy in Exeter, N. H.

Mrs. Parker has two little English refugees staying with her, a girl and a boy, and they will be present at the wedding on Saturday. She will dispense with attendants at the ceremony. Mr. Elliston will have as his best man, Walter H. Mallory, executive director of the Council of Foreign Relations, New York City.

Among the guests at the wedding from Washington will be David H. Wills, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. William Yandell Elliott, Col. and Mrs. Thomas Betts, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Barber and Mr. and Mrs. Philip L. Graham.

Party Honors Gen. Holcomb

Counting the 21 green candles on his birthday cake, guests clustered around the commandant of the Marine Corps, Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, last evening to congratulate him on "coming of age" and to wish him a long and successful future.

The large, white pink-iced cake and dishes of luscious peach ice cream culminated a merry birthday party given in her husband's honor by Mrs. Holcomb at their quarters at the Marine Barracks. Guests included Brig. Gen. and Mrs. A. A. Vandegrift, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Ralph Keyser, Mrs. William Capers James and Col. and Mrs. DeWitt Peck.

Gen. and Mrs. Holcomb will leave Washington Saturday for a week's vacation. They will motor down to their new estate, Rosecroft, to supervise remodeling of the home.

Chicago Publisher Will Be Honored

William B. Ziff will be honored at a reception at the Mayflower Friday between 5 and 7 o'clock, when Senator Patrick McCarran will confer on him the diploma d'honeur given by the International League of Aviators.

Over 300 guests, including officers, aviation figures, technical experts and members of official and residential society are expected at the affair for the Chicago publisher. Mr. Ziff has been working with national defense in an unofficial capacity. In September a special issue of his magazine, Flying and Popular Aviation, will appear which will explain to the public the structure of the air force.

Many Escape Heat At Eagles Mere

One of the most popular of nearby summer resorts is Eagles Mere, Pa., where many Washingtonians are escaping the Capital's succession of heat waves.

Among those vacationing there are Mr. and Mrs. R. Jondrean, of Chevy Chase, Md.; Robert McWhirter, Owen B. French and Miss Beatrice Sabell.

Staying at the Forest Inn at the mountain resort are Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Costenbader and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon D. Houck, of Towson, Md.

The vacationers are expected to turn out in full force for the British War Relief Ball which will be held at the Forest Inn Casino August 30. Mrs. Isaac H. Clothier 3d is chairman of the event.

Clinton Hesters Sojourn in N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Hester are spending several days in New York en route back to their apartment at the Shoreham after a week-end in Atlantic City, N. J.

Also in New York are Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Lourie, who are staying at the Waldorf-Astoria. They are returning to Washington after an extended motor trip through the New England States.

Mrs. Roosevelt Expects to See Cousin Married

Mrs. Roosevelt is expected to attend the wedding of her cousin, Miss Sarah Alden Derby, to Robert Tileston Gannet 2d on August 16 at Christ Episcopal Church in Oyster Bay, Long Island. Invitations have been issued by Miss Derby's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Derby, of Oyster Bay.

Miss Derby, who worked in Washington last winter as secretary to Representative Joseph Baldwin, and lived with her aunt, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, is a granddaughter of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt and the late President Roosevelt. She has chosen her sister, Miss Judith Quentin Derby, as her maid of honor. Her other attendants will be Mrs. T. Ridgeway Macy, jr., of Cincinnati, sister of Mr. Gannett, and the Misses Martha Addison, of New York; Harriet L. Bundy, of Boston; Patricia Cutler, of New York; Audrey Iselin, of Westbury, Long Island; Katharine Ladd, of Milton, Mass., and Joan Sanger, of New York.

Mr. Gannett's step-brother, Sergt. Devens Hamlen, of Camp Edwards, Mass., will be best man. The ushers will include three brothers of the bridegroom-elect, William B. and Thomas B. Gannett, of Wayland, and John D. Gannett, of Hopedale, Mass., and another step-brother, Nathaniel Hamlen, of Wayland.

Other ushers will be Mr. Macy, Ensign Elliot C. Bacon, of Westbury, Long Island; Lloyd W. Bowers, of New York; Schuyler Hollingsworth, of Boston; Alder B. Howe, of Philadelphia; Ensign Oliver Iselin, jr., of Westbury; Charles Meyer, of Boston; Peter H. Nicholas, of Syosset, Long Island; Edward P. Roberts, of Boston, and Ensign Henry E. Russell, of Dedham, Mass.

After the ceremony a reception will be held at the Derby home.

Childs Dinner Honors Butlers

The Counselor of the British Embassy and Mrs. S. L. Childs entertained at an informal dinner at their home on Massachusetts Avenue last evening in honor of the British Minister and Mrs. Nevile Butler. Among the guests were Sir Wilmott Lewis and members of the embassy staff.

Monday night the Butlers were honored at a dinner given by the Minister of Australia and Mrs. Richard G. Casey at the legation, and tonight the British Ambassador and Lady Halifax will entertain at a dinner in their honor at the embassy.

Nevile Butler will leave Thursday for New York, where he will be joined in several days by Mrs. Butler. They will then await orders to sail to London.

Mrs. William Beale And Daughter Off On Trip to Canada

Mrs. William Beale, of Tracy Place, and her daughters, Mrs. William T. Mann and Miss Barbara Beale, left yesterday by motor for a vacation in Canada. They will visit Quebec, Toronto, and other places of interest and will be gone for several weeks. Miss Barbara Beale was one of the debutantes of last season and is a student at Smith College.

Mrs. Beale's sister, Mrs. Sims Snow, and her attractive daughter, Miss Clare Snow, expect to be off on a trip Friday. They have not yet decided on a destination, but will be gone about a month.

Dr. and Mrs. John S. Burlew announce the birth of a son, David Schum Burlew, on Monday in Doctors' Hospital. Dr. Burlew, son of Ebert K. Burlew, First Assistant Secretary of the Interior, is a member of the research staff of the geophysical laboratory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

Mrs. Burlew, daughter of the Rev. George F. Schum, of Lancaster, Pa., is corresponding secretary of the board of directors of the Y. W. C. A. Both parents are active in the affairs of the Potomac Trail Club and they are the joint authors of a chapter on Shenandoah National Park in the third edition of "Guide to Paths in the Blue Ridge," which that organization is publishing next month.

Miss Royal Named Warship's Sponsor

The Navy has announced that Secretary Knox had designated Miss Elizabeth Harwood Royal as sponsor for the destroyer, Knight, named in honor of her grandfather, the late Rear Admiral Austin Melvin Knight.

She is the daughter of Capt. Forrest B. Royal, who is on duty in the office of Naval Operations here, and Mrs. Royal, of Arlington Ridge, Va.

The Knight is scheduled to be launched at the Boston Navy Yard September 1.

Miss Shapiro Engaged To Chester Goldberg

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shapiro announce the engagement of their daughter, Marilyn, to Chester Goldberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Goldberg, of Washington and New York.

Miss Shapiro attended the Marjorie Webster School of Speech and is known to the radio audience as Lynn Morrow.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Fahnestocks Plan Newport Dance For Vivian Stokes

Col. and Mrs. Snowden A. Fahnestock will give a dance in Newport August 30 in honor of his niece, Miss Vivian Stokes, daughter of Mrs. Henry Drummond Wolff. Miss Stokes is one of the debutantes of the Newport season. Mrs. Wolff, the former Margaret Fahnestock, of Washington, is Col. Fahnestock's sister.

The debutante is the sister of Mrs. Robert Montgomerie-Cherrington, of England, the former Miss Marsyl Stokes, who was presented to society at Newport several years ago. Col. and Mrs. Fahnestock decided not to open their home at the resort this summer, but are staying at a hotel there after a trip to Canada.

The Meems to Vacation At Colorado Springs

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grant Meem will leave tomorrow for Colorado Springs, where they will spend the month of August at the Broadmoor Hotel. Their daughter, Miss Eleanor Meem, who will accompany them, will stay with her sister, Mrs. E. B. McLean, jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Meem and their daughter will return to Washington after Labor Day.

W. C. Armstrong Joins Family at Va. Hot Springs

W. Campbell Armstrong, of 3812 Brandywine Street, has joined Mrs. Armstrong and their family at The Homestead, Virginia Hot Springs, for a stay of several days.

Miss Rhode E. Armstrong, their oldest daughter, will join them for the horseshow at the end of this week. A graduate of Georgetown Visitation Convent, she will be one of the debutantes next season.

Mr. Armstrong will remain only a short time at the resort as he is doing legal work for the War Department during the national emergency.

Clarence Hewes Back In Capital for Week

Clarence Hewes has returned to Washington for a stay of about a week after a trip by motor to New England. He visited Bar Harbor and Newport and attended the wedding last Saturday in New Bedford, Mass., of Miss Angelica Lloyd and Peter Madonald.

Mr. Hewes will be joined the end of the week by his nephew, Robert Flowerree, of New Orleans.

Canning Jar Drive to Start Next Week

The city-wide drive for collection of glass jars for canning surplus commodities for the WPA school lunch program will start early next week, it was decided yesterday at a meeting of representatives of cooperating women's organizations.

Public school officials will be asked to permit use of school buildings as depositories, to which citizens may bring contributions.

Mrs. Lucius Wilmerding, jr., representing the American Women's Voluntary Services, was named chairman of the canning project. Mrs. Lucian Jordan, fifth vice president of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers in charge of its health department, was chosen chairman of the jar-collecting campaign, of which P.-T. A. officials will take charge.

The meeting was held at Mrs. Wilmerding's home, 2623 N Street Northwest.

Fruits and vegetables from the Surplus Marketing Division of the Department of Agriculture are available for the canning project, which will supply the public school lunches served by WPA and will also be distributed through the Public Assistance Division of the Board of Public Welfare.

Mrs. Mary Brundage, chief of welfare services, District WPA, said that if volunteers would assist with the serving of the WPA school lunches at present, WPA workers might be released to go to the canning project. She pointed out that the curtailment in WPA funds affected the number of workers available.

Others attending yesterday's meeting were Mrs. P. C. Ellett, president of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. Sherman Trowbridge, nutrition committee of the Red Cross; Mrs. Edward M. Weld, Mrs. John W. Auchincloss, Mrs. David Norton Yerkes, American Women's Voluntary Services; Mrs. Harry S. Bernton, of the District Defense Council; Mrs. C. D. Lowe, Women's City Club; Mrs. Alice C. Hunter, president of the Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations; J. B. McDonnell, of the District WPA; Mrs. Edward R. Seal, of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Madame Chairman

Linda Lithgow Warren and Sandra Spencer Warren, twin granddaughters of Marvin H. McIntyre, Secretary to President Roosevelt, observed their first birthday yesterday, and as part of the celebration they are posing for color movies this week.

The picture will show them in paradoxical position of giving something away on their birthday—instead of in the act of receiving something.

Miss Etta Mai Russell, executive secretary of the Washington Council of Church Women, arranged to take the movies of them with the dolls which they are giving to the "doll school" project of the council.

Miss Russell will show the movies next winter along with her talks before church groups and clubs to illustrate her point that "no one is too young or too old" to take part in the doll project. She has already made movies of some aged women who dressed 30 dolls to be distributed by the council.

The Warren twins are children of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Warren. Their grandmother, Mrs. McIntyre, arranged for the dolls to be given in their name.

The "doll schools," at which children in congested areas "adopt" dolls and thus learn homemaking principles, have been conducted in numerous church centers in Washington this summer. Such a project opened in Hyattsville also this week.

HEALTH PLANS—Mrs. Mabel White Hubbell, chairman of child hygiene for the District Congress of Parents and Teachers, is busily making plans for autumn activities. One of her hopes is that the Parent-Teacher Association in every school will have a health chairman who will have the duty of making a more thorough check-up on correction of children's defects, after parents' attention is called to them.

As associate child hygiene chairman for several years, Mrs. Hubbell was instrumental in conducting experimental projects at a few schools, with the idea that they may be more widely used in the future. One of the projects, which stressed the essentials of a good diet, was carried on in Kenilworth School, where the children made posters to popularize the idea.

Mathilde Eiker, Author, to Speak On Radio Program

Miss Mathilde Eiker, Washington author, will speak on the "Women Who Achieve" radio program, presented by Miss J. Jeune Carter and Mrs. Edward R. Seal, originators and producers of the series, at 3:30 p. m. today, over WWDC.

Miss Eiker, a native Washingtonian, has a dozen books to her credit, as well as several published short stories. Among her novels are: "Mrs. Mason's Daughters," "The Senator's Lady," "Stranger Fidelities," "Over the Boatside" and "The Brief Seduction of Eva."

Pilot Club Members See Travel Pictures

Miss Effie Mae Hamner was in charge of the program. Mrs. Frances Meilleur made arrangements for the showing of the film.

Foreign Policy Group To Hear Mrs. Dearing

"Foreign Policy of the Founding Fathers" will be discussed by Mrs. Charles Dearing at the meeting of the foreign policy department of the District League of Women Voters at 2 p. m. today at the home of Mrs. M. O. Lorenz, 3510 Porter Street Northwest.

Mrs. Dearing has a doctor of philosophy degree in American history from the University of Wisconsin, where she also was an instructor in history. She has made her home in Washington since her marriage.

Pen Women's Creative Groups Entertained

Mrs. Edward R. Seal, new second vice president of the District Branch, League of American Pen Women, entertained the creative groups' chairmen last night at her home, 3363 Eighteenth Street Northwest, to discuss plans for the coming year and rules for the annual Isabel Anderson contest.

A feature of the evening's entertainment was a series of three-minute "soap box orations" on "pet peeves," by the guests.

Mrs. Seal is in charge of creative groups, which include art, fiction, nonfiction, poetry, music, journalism and radio.

T. M. Walmsley Will Address Legion Women

T. Semmes Walmsley, deputy director, Office of Civilian Defense, will be the principal speaker at the opening session of the convention of the American Legion Auxiliary, Department of the District of Columbia, Friday night, it was announced yesterday.

An oxygen tent will be given by the Auxiliary to Columbia Hospital, with Mrs. Edith Landvoigt, department child welfare chairman, making the presentation to Col. N. L. McDiarmid, superintendent of the hospital.

The convention will open at 8 p. m. Friday in the Department of Commerce Auditorium, with Mrs. Helen M. McCabe, department president, in charge.

Special guests at the banquet, to be held Thursday night at the Mayflower Hotel preceding the convention opening, were announced yesterday. They are Capt. Watson B. Miller, assistant administrator of the Federal Security Agency, and Mrs. Miller; Mrs. Florence V. Taylor, convention soloist, who has served as national executive committeewoman of Colorado; William H. Hargrave, junior past commander of the legion, Department of the District of Columbia, and Mrs. Hargrave; Commander Heywood N. Saunders, Miss Alta Arp, Chef de Gare Passe John E. McCabe, Grand Chef de Gare C. Francis McCarthy, of the Forty and Eight; Mrs. Catherine Crompton, chapeau departmental of the Eight and Forty.

At the convention, which will extend through Saturday, delegates will be elected to the twenty-first national convention of the Legion Auxiliary, to be held September 15-18 in Milwaukee.

Miss Whitney to Fete Kappa Delta Members

Members of Kappa Delta Sorority who are spending the summer in Washington will be entertained by Miss Virginia C. Whitney, president of the Evening Group of the Washington Alumnae Association, at her home, 3023 Rodman Street, at 8 p. m. Friday.

Assisting Miss Whitney will be Mrs. Cornelius D. Angel, president of the association; Mrs. Earl C. Walck, secretary; Mrs. John Cotton, president of the Maryland Group of the association; Miss Ruth McRae, vice president of the group; Mrs. Adrian R. Miller, president of the Afternoon Group; Mrs. Joseph Findley, vice president of the Evening Group, and Miss Betty Griswold, treasurer of the latter group.

FCC Proposes Limit on Radio Ownership

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

The Federal Communications Commission issued a proposed order yesterday which would ban ownership or control by the same person of more than one radio station serving substantially the same area. A public hearing on the order was set for October 6.

The order would go further than two recent rulings directed against alleged monopoly in the radio industry which limit networks to one station in any broadcasting area and direct the National Broadcasting Co. to dispose of one of its two networks. While under these rulings chain broadcasting systems could retain ownership of all their stations by releasing some of them from network operation, the new proposed order would oblige them to dispose of all stations they own beyond the limit of one in each broadcasting area.

100 Stations Affected

The order would also affect non-network stations where two or more stations in the same area are owned by the same company. Approximately 50 such cases are expected to come under the order, affecting more than 100 stations.

The commission's announcement made it clear that the test of ownership within the meaning of the order would be "actual working control in whatever manner exercised," even if it is not based on majority stock ownership.

The proposed order will become section 3.35 of the rules governing standard broadcast stations if it is adopted, and will take effect immediately. Owners will be given six months to comply with the order by selling affected stations.

Points to Television

The commission pointed out that a similar regulation already exists with regard to frequency modulation and television stations.

A bill proposing reorganization of the commission and asking the commission to study the need for further legislative regulation of radio networks was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Jared Y. Sanders, jr. (Democrat), of Louisiana. In its reorganization provisions the bill resembled the proposals introduced in the Senate by Senator Wallace H. White, jr. (Republican), of Maine, but lacked the regulatory provisions of the White bill.

Senator D. Worth Clark (Democrat), of Idaho, was appointed chairman of a Senate Interstate Commerce Subcommittee to consider a resolution calling for an investigation of propaganda in the radio and motion picture industries.

Father Fitzsimon MadeTexas Bishop

The Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, announced yesterday that Pope Pius XII had appointed the Rev. Laurence Julius Fitzsimon as bishop of the Amarillo (Texas) Diocese.

The Amarillo Diocese has lacked a bishop since the Most Rev. Robert E. Lucey was named Archbishop of the San Antonio Diocese last January.

Native of San Antonio, Tex., the bishop-elect attended schools in that State and later the North American College in Rome. He was rector of St. James' Church, Seguin, Tex., from 1932 until early this year, when he was appointed Chancellor of the San Antonio Diocese. He is 46.

Probers Unable To Find Heads Of Sorority

Half a dozen subpenas for national officers and employes of Zeta Beta Chi National Sorority, Inc., went unserved yesterday because Federal marshals could not find them.

The subpenas were issued in connection with a membership drive for the sorority conducted by telephone in Washington a few weeks ago. Several girls complained that the "membership applications" which they signed turned out to be contracts to pay $10 to the sorority and $41.50 to its sponsor, World Caravan Guild, Inc.

Detective Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon, chief investigator for the district attorney, said it appeared that two of the persons for whom subpenas were issued were no longer working for the sorority. The other subpenas, he said, will remain in force and will be served if the persons named come back to Washington.

At the sorority's national headquarters in the Woodward Building, it was said that Miss Eve G. Freeman, national secretary, was in Birmingham, Ala. Requests wired there that she and W. Gordon Jones, listed as president of World Caravan, wire their comments on the situation to The Post went unanswered yesterday.

Also asked to comment was Robert H. Jones, jr., attorney on Atlanta, Ga., where both World Caravan and Zeta Beta Chi are incorporated. Jones, listed as World Caravan's attorney, replied that both groups were splendid organizations and requested further information about the investigation.

Two Churches Ask Lutherans To Join Them

The congregation of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, whose Southwest property soon will be razed to widen Independence Avenue, has been invited to unite with Zion Lutheran Church, New Hampshire Avenue and Buchanan Street Northwest, in Hampshire Heights.

The Rev. J. Luther Frantz, St. Mark's pastor, said yesterday he had received a "personal invitation" for the union from the Rev. Edward Goetz, Zion minister. The Zion congregation has not yet made an official invitation, it was said.

According to Mr. Frantz, members of Incarnation Lutheran Church, Fourteenth and Gallatin Streets Northwest, also have made St. Mark's an invitation to worship with them. The St. Mark's flock will meet Monday at 8 p. m. to map its future.

St. Mark's, with a 52-year-old history, stands at Eighth and Independence Avenue. Two blocks west is Marvin Methodist Church, also affected by the street widening. The Government is buying both sites.

Widow Gets Leach Estate

Under the will of Harry Raymond Leach, of near Bethesda, which was yesterday admitted to probate in the Orphans' Court at Rockville, his entire estate, the value of which is not revealed, goes to his wife, Mrs. Helen Knudsen Leach. The will, drawn May 16, 1922, names Mrs. Leach executrix.

MAYFAIR'S JUNIOR CAVALLARO. "Sounds just like Carmen Cavallaro!" That was the astounded murmur that swept around Mayfair tables when Bill Harrington, of the spot's new Senators, went into a piano solo. In truth, Bill has much of the elusive Cavallaro touch in retarded harmony and lacquered trills . . . Still, that's part of the story about the Senators. They all sing, quartet and singly. They switch instruments constantly to achieve variety in arrangement. At their first session it seemed to us that they were especially effective in Pan-American numbers of subdued torchiness . . . We're sure you'll like the Senators.

The "V" campaign is also on at Glen Echo's Spanish Garden Ballroom. Both the trumpeters and drummer will tap out the "dit dit dit dah," which is code for "V," and dancers will be requested to vocally repeat the victory signal.

SANDE ROSS, topflight pianist with Jimmy Summerville's Four M's at Hi Hat

POLKA DOTTED PUPS. Trainer Betty and her four smart collies at the Lotus are all togged out in polka dot costumes of navy blue, though the clown collie sports red dots. Besides being well dressed these accomplished pooches do waltzes, roll barrels and baby carriages, finally climax their act by walking the tight wire . . . Ben and Jean do an Apache dance in reverse, with Jean using Ben for a floor mop . . . Acrobats Wayne and Marlin display handsome tricks and suntans . . . Jimmy Bright is making a fine emcee in the absence of Bill Strickland, who postcards us from Ocean City that he and cute Missus Margaret are enjoying their twenty-second honeymoon.

COMING-AND-GOING SOLITAIRE. Jane Marlow, the sunny-smiling violinist of Restaurant "823," has a lovely diamond ring as token of her engagement to Laczi, cymbalonist of the Plymouth. But it seems to be missing a couple of days a week. Next thing you know it's flashing on Jane's finger again. What's that adage about true love?

BEST BIRTHDAY PARTIES. Cake and champagne were served with equal lavishness at the nineteenth birthday party of beauteous Chloe MacDonald at the Lounge Riviera. It was something of a combined birthday-goodby party for Chloe is off to Newport and Maine for the balance of the summer. She's the daughter of J. E. MacDonald, administrative assistant to Admiral Byrd on his Antarctic expedition . . . When blondely pretty Mrs. Burt Lopatin, wife of Owner Burt, of the Burt's Trans-Lux, recently had a birthday, she received a couple of gorgeous cakes. They almost warranted two birthday parties instead of one . . . Madrillon's June Sothern blushed prettily when Carr and Don played birthday songs in her honor on Monday night and Peter Borras presented her with an ornate cake.

When Martha Ellyn, who writes "Platter Chatter" for The Post, recently had her fortune told in tea leaves, she was told she would "soon see some beautiful horses." Later that afternoon she was invited to dinner on the Shoreham Terrace where Gautier's Steeplechase is showing. 'Struc!

INTERESTING VISITORS. Edward Stettinius, of OPM, recently entertained his legal staff at dinner in the Pall Mall Room. Among the guests was Judge Munford, brilliant blind legalist, who plays cards with a special Braille pack . . . Visiting the Madrillon lately was Mrs. Lily Santmyer, owner of L'Escargot and a proof that extreme chic does go along with business ability. She was wearing a white straw hat covered with lilies of the valley and brilliant green veiling . . . In the Mayflower Lounge we saw those two notable non-interventionists, Senator D. Worth Clark, of Idaho, and Representative William B. Barry, of New York, with their heads together. Cooking up something, maybe?

HERMAN, THE CANARY. Lady Vine, the charming glad-hander of the Starlight Roof, is rejoicing in a constantly warbling little canary presented to her by two attaches of a South American legation. For some unknown reason the canary has been christened Herman. But Lady usually calls him "Baby."

GUIDO WILL TELL YOU—even if your best friend balks at the task. Guido, psychoanalyst of the Rainbow Room, was recently handed a terrific chore when a young lady came in and asked him how to make the best impression when applying for an important position. But he tackled it relentlessly, telling the lass just what was wrong with her hat, make-up, conversation, dress and mental attitude . . . N. B. She landed the job.

"We Two," Anchor Room's pleasing new pair, live in a trailer (of course they're married!) and devote their spare time to fishing. They're planning some trips to the Eastern Shore on weekends.

AUDIENCE APPROVED. Tommy Johnson's organing of Chapenacas" in the Neptune Room. He does it so contagiously that onlookers start the rhythmic clapping that goes with the number without any suggestion whatever . . . Emcee Bob Preble, of the Casino Royal, devotes most of his energies to boosting other acts, but his own smooth songs please the audience so much that they often practically stop the show . . . Eve Knight, of the King Cole Room is a "musicians' singer" as well as popular with the general public. Practically every musician in town mentions her with enthusiasm.

NEW NIGHTINGALE STAR. Nick Tagg, former pianist with Charlie Spivak, has joined Rodd Raffell's Orchestra at the Nightingale. Nick has the gift of perfect pitch. He will make arrangements and play trumpet as well as piano. As the best indication of his fine musicianship, we must cite the fact that he taught piano to Carmen Cavallaro . . . Don Wilson, the 'Gale's former pianist-arranger, has simultaneously gotten married and gone to New York.

"SUMMERTIME MUSIC" is the new specialty cooked up by George Stein, maestro of River Bend. George has completed a large batch of new arrangements, all done in extra light and breezy style, especially adapted to August evenings. River Bend is one of the pleasantest places hereabouts on hot evenings with Potomac breezes always arriving on P. M. schedule. And the drive down on Mount Vernon Boulevard is completely delightful, no trucks being allowed on that broad highway.

George Kavakos, of the Freres Kavakos Grill, has been enjoying a New York and New England vacation. But getting up to catch the earliest plane out of Washington nearly got him down.

VISTAS. INDOOR AND OUT. That long panorama of catalpa trees stretching away from O'Donnell's Farmhouse contains exactly 120 trees according to the management, who seem to have been perturbed by our recent inability to count them . . . The circus murals at the Harrington Tavern will give you the sensation of the "big top." And the pink lemonade of the circus is not to be compared to Harrington juleps . . . Looking outdoors at Hogate's you get a view of the Potomac and famed landmarks. Looking indoors you get a perfect view of their spotless and shining open kitchen.

Ickes to Leave Aug. 15 For Vacation in West

Senator Walgren (Democrat), of Washington, announced yesterday Senator Ickes would leave here August 15 for a three or four weeks' vacation in the West.

The Senator said he had been notified by the Interior Department of the Secretary's plans, and that he had tentatively accepted an invitation to address the Public Power League of Washington and Oregon at Tacoma on September 3.

Pennsylvania Bank Robbers Take $76,000

By the Associated Press

Stroudsburg, Pa., Aug. 5.—Two bank messengers were robbed of $76,000 today in a street holdup carried out with split-second timing by four gunmen who escaped into the wooded hills of northern New Jersey.

Holding a submachine gun and pistols, three of the men forced the bank employes to give up a pouch containing the currency, then fled in a sedan driven by their companion. Five miles away they changed to a second car after threatening a camper who saw them.

The money, mostly in $5, $10 and $20 bills, was surplus being taken from the First National Bank to the postoffice, a block away, for transfer to Philadelphia and deposit in the Federal Reserve Bank.

Over in a Minute

The holdup occurred shortly after 9 a. m. while the street was virtually deserted and was over in less than a minute.

The man carrying the submachine gun confronted Ralph Rheinfels, 37, the teller, and Lewis Heiney, 65, his guard, and demanded the money. Two others, both with pistols, disarmed the bank employes, the fourth waited at the wheel of the automobile.

All wore glasses but no masks. All were well dressed.

Highways Patrold

Ernest Olschewsky, caretaker for a camp near the bridge, said he saw them get into another car on the New Jersey side. They drove off after warning him away with a gun.

Pennsylvania and New Jersey State troopers established patrols on all highways within 50 miles of Stroudsburg and all Delaware River bridges from Trenton north were guarded.

The abandoned automobile was said to have been stolen. The license plates were upside down. They had been taken from an automobile stolen two weeks ago in Easton, Pa.

Victory Assured, Dr. Benes Cables Czech Minister

Dr. Edouard Benes, head of the Czecho-Slovakian government in exile, declared in a message yesterday to Vladimir Hurban, Czecho-Slovakian Minister here, that "victory is assured."

"The nation at home is jubilant because of all of our successes in July," his message said, "and their reaction is splendid."

President Benes thanked the Minister for his notice that this country had recognized the Benes government in its London exile, and said, "I remember today all your work since March 15, 1939, till today in our common fight."

A DISTINGUISHED BACKGROUND OF SERVICE, PRESTIGE AND PROGRESS
FOR SIXTY-SEVEN YEARS
1874 • 1941

Grant was President, when a handful of far-seeing Washingtonians met to consider the organization of a Building and Loan Association to serve the rapidly growing Southeast.

In spite of the scars left by the panic of 1873, these able citizens visualized the Washington of the future and anticipated the directional trend of its development. From a city of 150,000 to today's Metropolitan area population of 1,143,626, the American Building Association has participated in the growth of the Nation's Capital.

Throughout the 67 years that have passed since the institution was founded, the American has kept in step with progress. The policies of the original founders, based on sound conservative operations still prevail today, and will tomorrow and the years to come.

A Rose by Any Other Name . . .

Detroit, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—That hamburger you eat may soon be known as "Defense Steak."

Butchers attending the fifty-sixth convention of the National Association of Retail Meat Merchants here are considering changing the name of hamburger to give it patriotic flavoring. During World War I hamburger was known as "Liberty Steak."

Too Hot to Sleep Anyhow

A general alarm for Four Corners, Md., brought out five trucks of the Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department shortly after midnight yesterday.

When the firemen arrived at the scene, they found only the red glare of a neon sign which apparently startled a motorist on a nearby road.

The Federal Diary

Agriculture Dept. Willing To Shift More From D. C.

Agriculture, the department that pioneered decentralization by voluntarily moving thousands of its employes to the field during the last half dozen years, is willing to transfer more than 2,000 additional employes out of Washington to make room for expanding defense agencies if Congress is willing to pay the bills. However, the department is emphatically against any plan that would move an entire agency out of Washington.

It has been suggested, for example, that either Farm Credit Administration or Rural Electrification Administration or both be moved out. Instead, the department would move small parts of nearly all its agencies.

It would not be necessary for most of the employes affected to dig up their roots here and move out into the hinterland. The plan is to move from 1,500 to 1,700 employes to nearby Beltsville, Md., and to move roughly 500 employes to regional offices the country over. The department has roughly 12,500 employes here and some of them are willing and anxious to be transferred back near their homes.

The regional office of the Forest Service with its 128 employes will be shifted to Upper Darby, Pa., in the fall. Also scheduled for transfer are seven members of the solicitor's office which has serviced the regional office. Others in line for transfer out of Washington other than Beltsville are: Soil Conservation Service, 7 employes; Farm Security Administration, 76; Farm Credit Administration, 125; local office of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, 20; Forest Service, 25; Surplus Marketing Administration, 75; Office of Personnel, 30; Division of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, 22; Division of Agricultural Chemistry and Engineering, 8, and Agriculture Adjustment Administration, 85.

Beltsville Move

Budget Bureau asked Congress to appropriate funds to construct new buildings at Beltsville where 1,500 to 1,700 employes could be housed. The House refused the appropriation. It is a distinct possibility that the Senate will vote the new Beltsville buildings. If that happens and is approved by the House conferees, most of the Bureau of Plant Industry's 490 will be moved to Beltsville along with many employes of the Bureau of Agricultural Chemistry and Engineering.

Also moving to Beltsville would be Agricultural Adjustment Administration, 550 employes; Extension Service, 35; Soil Conservation Service, 40; Forest Service, 15; Farm Security, 100; Dairy Industry, 100; Office of Information, 25; Commodity Credit Corporation, 50. If all these moves were made, the department would abandon the old Postoffice Building and either the Farm Credit or REA buildings; perhaps all three, and the department would be centralized as much as possible in its two main administrative buildings.

The House yesterday passed a bill that would bring under civil service the jobs of assistants of the General Land Office and the Bureau of Indian Affairs . . . It killed a bill that would have given the FBI authority to call back to active duty some of its retired employes . . . John Carmody, the Federal Works boss, pinch hit on his employe baseball team the other day. He cracked out a hit but he refused to run it out . . . The test for junior fishery marketing specialist will be held on August 14. The junior custodial officer test will be on August 26.

Home Owners Loan Corporation officials will testify today before the Lanham Committee that is investigating decentralization of the Government. The officials are expected to say that none other than President Roosevelt ordered the agency to move to New York City. Meantime, HOLC is supplying its employes with information on hotel and apartment rates in New York. The move will be made within six weeks.

Canary Drops in on Family, Sings for Supper and Home

TINY VISITOR—Charles O. Petrain and his 5-year-old step-daughter, Eva May Crawford, 5, with the canary which came to rest in Eva's lap as they were sitting in a lawn swing

A piece of curtain, some wire fencing, birdseed and water yesterday served as temporary shelter and food for a lost canary with a sweet voice.

While Eva May Crawford, 5, and her stepfather, Charles O. Petrain, were sitting on the swing in their yard at 920 Twenty-second Street Northwest, a little yellow bird glided down on the child's lap.

It showed no inclination to leave, so the family hurriedly constructed a cage out of wire and a piece of curtain and then furnished the tiny visitor with food and drink. After that, the bird burst into song, and made itself quite at home.

Its only identification is a tiny aluminum band around the right leg marked A-40-37275. The Department of Agriculture, owner of several canaries, disclaimed ownership of the bird, and officials said that the number resembled a breeder's mark.

The canary picked the right house, because its host's father was once a canary breeder in Mobile, Ill. Thus, the Petrains are sure they can give the bird a comfortable stay.

Hotel Lease To Be Up for Debate Today

House Committee To Decide Whether To Ask FBI Inquiry On Dupont Circle

Justice Department investigation of the Dupont Circle Hotel sale and the agreement to lease the building for Federal offices will be debated by the House Building and Grounds Committe in an executive session today.

If the committee decides that its own inquiry of the Dupont deal should be carried forward by a Federal agency, the request for an investigation by the department is virtually certain to be coupled with a resolution recommending that Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody order the lease agreement canceled and the building evacuated by those Federal agencies already housed there.

Several members of the committee are known to favor the Department of Justice inquiry. On the subject of the resolution to Carmody, also to be placed before today's session, the committee last night was overwhelmingly favorable.

Interwoven with these developments was the surprise revelation yesterday by Harry L. Newman, president of the new corporate ownership of the hotel, that last April 11 he received from a representative of the then stockholders a telegram stating that the entire hotel stock could be delivered for $368,000 and that "no other proposals will be entertained 60 days, pending your negotiations."

Provides Committee With Copy

Newman made public the telegram within an hour after William E. Furey, secretary of the corporation which held all the stock prior to the sale of July 3, told a committee hearing that Newman "never had authority to deal with the Government."

Newman called Representative Fritz Lanhom (Democrat), of Texas, committee chairman, and informed him he was sending a photostatic copy of the telegram to the committee. Lanham said it would be considered at today's meeting.

The telegram, Newman stated, was "sent to me at Sarasota, Fla., by Mr. Paul Rogers, of the firm of Rogers & Furey, stockholders themselves and attorneys for the stockholders of the Dupont Hotel, Inc., which company owns the Dupont Circle Hotel."

"The telegram speaks for itself," Newman declared in a formal statement. "I exercised and took up the option before it expired, making payment thereon to bind the bargain, and the closing proceedings in the matter then continued until completely consummated July 3. This shows abundantly that no one could have leased or sold the property to the Government or to anyone else without my permission and consent during that time.

Resolution Expected Today

"After having proceeded for some time upon receipt of the option to purchase, to take over the property as a hotel and to make arrangements therefore, I learned that the Government wanted to lease the premises. The negotiations between Government officials and myself finally culminated in the agreement set forth by the Government witness and myself.

Representative McGregor (Republican), of Ohio, and Representative Downs (Democrat), of Connecticut, were convinced the resolution to Carmody would be voted today. With a quorum present in an executive session following yesterday's hearing, a majority favored adoption of the resolution then, but action was deferred at the request of Lanham.

Referring to the fact that the names of Senator Millard Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, and his brother-in-law, Robert Leon Grosjean, former Belgian army lieutenant, have been mentioned in connection with the inquiry, one member of the committee last night said "the heat is being put on some of the boys."

McGregor said he personally favored committee investigation of private property leasing by the Government here. He said he would suggest such an investigation to the committee.

Today's executive session will be at 11:30 p. m., following opening of committee hearings on decentralization of Federal agencies with testimony from officials of the Department of Agriculture and the Home Owners Loan Corporation.

Furey Questioned Closely

Questions in various forms were put to Furey, who represented stockholders in the sale, apparently man had authority to negotiate with the Government, and in each instance the reply was "No." Furey declared there was no written proposal for sale prior to July 3.

"I was assured there was no Government lease," Furey declared. "That was sometime after the 28th of May. Mr. Newman said they did not want to lease to the Government. We were having a profitable operation when the news came out of the rumor of a lease. We had the very distasteful job of telling everyone the Government was going to take over." At this point, Representative Hebert (Democrat), of Louisiana, broke in:

"Mr. Newman misrepresented to the Government; he misrepresented to the owners; he misrepresented to the tenant. He was misrepresenting three ways and riding the middle line to see where there was something in it for Newman."

A Lot of Junk Goes Up in Smoke

SMOKE HIDES CAPITOL—If you couldn't see all this smoke, you could see the Capitol. But if you didn't see the smoke, there wouldn't be a fire. The point is this: fire last night swept through the junk yard, New Jersey Avenue and D Street Northwest, operated by Frank Rubin. In addition to the junk, three billboards which bounded the lot were burned. One alarm was sounded

P. U. C. Gets Taxi Fare Boost Plea

Rising Costs Cited As Cabbies Ask For Minimum 30-Cent Zone Rate

An increase in taxi fares which would boost the price of trips in any one zone to 30 cents was requested of the Public Utilities Commission yesterday by the District Association of Taxicab Owners.

In a petition to the P. U. C., John H. Royer, jr., president of the organization, said the request was made "because of continued complaints and unrest among the drivers of taxicabs by reason of present taxicab rates."

The change in rates would provide a minimum fare of 30 cents for any trip confined to one zone and for any trip extending from one zone to another the fare would be 20 cents for the first zone and an additional 20 cents for each zone entered.

Boyer said his group unanimously indorsed the petition, adding:

"The increase is justified by reason of the increased congestion in the present zone 1, causing greater time for each trip therein and also because of the increased cost of gasoline, tires, taxicabs, parts and equipment and due to the general increase in living expenses."

The association is composed of the following concerns: Premier, Bell, Diamond, Arrow, Yellow, Washington, Blue Light, American, Federal and Checker.

NLRB Plea Holds Laundry In Contempt

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday asked the United States Court of Appeals here to issue a contempt order against the Arcade Sunshine Laundry, its president, Harry Viner, and 12 other officers and employes. Employes of the company are now on strike.

Dr. William Leiserson and Edwin S. Smith, NLRB members, swore to the contempt charges, which recited a series of alleged unfair labor practices in violation of an NLRB order, upheld by the Court of Appeals last December 9.

The petition to the court recited that the decree of December 9 ordered the laundry to cease discriminating against union members and to cease interfering and restraining membership in Local 188-B of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

Contempt Instances Cited

Despite the order, the petition said, the laundry countered a union organizing drive in May and June by discharging five union members, giving raises to discourage joining the union, calling the organizers "yeggmen and Communists" and otherwise carrying on a "systematic campaign to thwart union organization."

The petition also said the laundry disobeyed an order to reemploy a worker named William Jones, whom the court found was dismissed for union activity.

The petition said that when the union members went on strike July 2 the laundry offered bonuses and raises to those who would abandon the strike and go back to work.

Meanwhile, Police Judge John P. McMahon yesterday disposed of the latest of a series of violent incidents which union members have blamed on "scabs," and laundry officials have blamed on strikers.

Striker Found Guilty

Judge McMahon found Robert Burford, striking driver-salesman, guilty of disorderly conduct and indicated he would fine him $10. Burford took pictures of a fight involving strikers, nonstrikers and policemen last Wednesday. He claimed the police seized him and destroyed the film in his camera. Officers said he used improper language.

Judge McMahon said he did not know "whether this thing of taking pictures is a new technique, with the object of intimidating officers. Of course, peaceful picketing is all right and taking pictures may be but there is not a scintilla of doubt in my mind about the defendant's guilt."

Trapp Family Sings Storm Clouds Away

By Ray C. B. Brown

C. C. Cappel and the National Capital Parks Service present the Trapp Family Singers in Meridian Hill Park on Tuesday night. Program of music by Bach, Mozart, Byrd, Fischer, Aichinger, Morley, Gibbons and Brahms, and folk songs from Styria, Carinthia, Tyrol, England and Ireland. Director: Franz Wasner.

"Starlight" was a misnomer for the chamber music concert last evening in Meridian Hill Park, although the elements did not spoil the local debut of the Trapp Family Singers before a large and enthusiastic audience. For a time, with the moon shining at the edge of invading clouds on the right and thunder on the left, the prospect for an uninterrupted program was dubious, but the electrical storm passed far to the west and only sparce drops of rain fell. The worst that could be said of the occasion was expressed by Baroness von Trapp in her quaintly tentative English—it was nervous-making.

BROWN

However apprehensive the auditors may have been of a drenching, they quickly succumbed to the charm of the exiles from Salzburg and not only remained until the end of the concert but lingered to demand and enjoy some extra numbers. The delightful quality of the performance was inherent partly in the informal friendliness of the family group, as though they were entertaining guests in their home, and partly in their genuine musicianship. Whether they were singing a capella or playing old instruments, they radiated a wholesomeness and genial spirit, while disclosing a natural and unaffected artistry.

They began with Bach's "Wie Schoen Leuchtet der Morgenstern," a bit of the old master's music so rarely heard as to be a novelty. Linked with it in religious mood was an "Ave Verum Corpus," by Mozart, and a "Regina Coeli," by Gregor Aichinger (1564-1628), who was organist in the service of Jakob Fugger in Augsburg.

Secular songs immediately following Thomas Morley's "Now Is the Month of Maying;" Orlando Gibbons' "The Silver Swan;" Brahms' "Waldesnacht, du wunderknehle" and a rollicking canon by Mozart, "Freunde, lasset uns beim Zechen."

A full set of recorders (the wooden block flutes of Shakespeare's time, also known in England as fipple flutes), the viola da gamba and virginals were brought into play by the versatile family in a group of instrumental pieces. The anonymous English air, "Under the Green Linden," was followed by William Byrd's "La Volta" and a six-movement suite by K. F. Fischer (1650-1746). Deeply affecting was the sincere fervor in the singing of Bach's "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" with obbligato of alto recorder, soprano viola da gamba and virginals.

4 Boys Quizzed In Strieff and Simon Murders

Hopeful of breaking the unsolved murders of Jessie Elizabeth Strieff and Heinrich Simon, members of the reorganized homicide squad yesterday questioned four 15-year-old boys and a man, who allegedly attempted to assault a young woman Sunday.

Acting Lieut. Jeremiah Flaherty, chief of the homicide unit, and his aides took statements from the four youths following information from an inmate of the Industrial Home School who said Simon had been assaulted by one of the gang. Simon, German refugee musicologist, died May 6 after being attacked in the vicinity of Seventeenth and Church Streets Northwest.

Flaherty, refusing to disclose contents of the statements, said he would turn the information over to the district attorney's office.

Girl Identifies Man

Meanwhile, a 22-year-old man was held at Third Precinct Station after an 18-year-old girl identified him, an employe of the same drug store in which she is employed, as the man who attempted to attack her last Sunday on the Monument Grounds.

Detectives said they would grill the suspect in connection with the Strieff case and other recent sex crimes. Miss Strieff left her apartment, 2110 Nineteenth Street Northwest, during a cloudburst June 15 to buy a stick of butter. Her body was found the following morning.

At the same time, police of the District and nearby States were asked to be on the lookout for a Laurel, Md., man wanted by Maryland State police for the alleged abduction of a 16-year-old Paw Paw (W. Va.) girl from her home July 7. Officer William Hopkins said the girl had been living with the man at his home on Washington-Baltimore Boulevard.

Man Freed at Hagerstown

Hagerstown police, meanwhile, freed a man, 19, who had been held since Sunday and had been questioned in the Strieff killing. The youth who had been arrested on a drunk and disorderly charge had in his possession a map, clipped from a Washington newspaper, showing the Strieff murder area. The youth said he clipped out the map to help him find his way around Washington.

Robert Peck Porter, 47, of 415 B Street Southeast, Negro, was charged with murder at Fifth Precinct Station last night in the death of his brother, John Francis Porter, 49, same address. The latter died at Casualty Hospital late yesterday after he was shot through the chest six hours earlier in the hallway of their home.

Steamer Saves 2 D. C. Men From Potomac

Rescue of two Washington men and one Virginian from the Potomac three and one-half miles off Colonial Beach was reported yesterday in Norfolk upon the arrival of the Norfolk and Washington steamer District of Columbia.

The rescued are E. C. Perkins, of 3113 Twelfth Street Northeast; Lee S. Crockett, of 824 Shepherd Street Northwest, and Jack Dickinson, of Colonial Beach.

Representative Winder R. Harris (Democrat), of Virginia, a passenger, said cries for help were heard Monday night as the steamer was passing Colonial Beach. Capt. E. H. Easton, of Washington, swung his ship about and searchlights were played on the water. The beams picked up the youths clinging to an overturned boat. A life boat put out from the steamer and rescued the trio.

War Building Plan Too High, Woodrum Says

Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, chairman of the subcommittee that piloted the 35 million dollar War Department building appropriation through the House, said last night that he believed the department's original concept of the structure might have been "scaled too high."

For this reason, he added, he would consent to reduction on the building's size below the 4,000,000 square feet of office space projected by the department.

Woodrum expressed the opinion that some compromise could be worked out satisfactory to the department and Federal officials who oppose construction of a huge building across the Potomac River near Arlington National Cemetery.

Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, said last night that the building item probably would not be reached before tomorrow by his appropriations subcommittee. Brig. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, construction quartermaster, will be the chief witness for the Army, Adams said.

Senate Committee To Weigh 2 D. C. Bills

Consideration of bills to create an industrial accident prevention board for the District and to amend the city's child labor laws to permit minors to participate in legitimate stage plays will highlight a meeting of the Senate District Committee at 10 a. m. today.

Knudsen Calls Tank Driver 'Darned Good'

Fort Belvoir, Va., Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Director General William S. Knudsen of the Office of Production Management and a group of other high OPM officials inspected the 8,000 acres of Fort Belvoir today, watching the swift spanning of streams by engineer units and the smashing of road obstructions by a light tank.

Knudsen asked to meet the driver of the tank which careened through heavy obstructions at 30 miles an hour. Sergt. Benjamin W. Griffen, of Fort Knox, Ky., emerged grinning from the machine.

"I'd like to shake your hand," the defense chief told him. "You are a darned good driver."

The Post Displays Indians' Murals

Mural designs by two Oklahoma Indians are displayed this week in The Washington Post art window, on F Street, facing Post Square.

The paintings, "Ponies Grazing" and "Indians at Play" by Woodrow Crumbo, and "Indian Family" by Solomon McCombs, are designs which were submitted in a mural competition of the Okemah post office. This competition was open only to Indian artists.

The paintings will remain in The Post's are window for the rest of the week.

House Group Favors Cent Gas Tax Rise

Four out of five members of a House subcommittee that yesterday closed hearings on legislation to raise the District gasoline tax, favor boosting the levy no more than 1 cent a gallon, an informal poll disclosed last night.

Representative John Hunter (Democrat), of Ohio, subcommittee chairman, declared that a bill carrying a 1-cent increase will be reported to the full District Committee Monday. Originally, members of Congress and District officials proposed a 2-cent rise to finance a $44,500,000 highway improvement program.

A 2-cent increase, Hunter declared, would enable Maryland and Virginia to realize $700,000 additional revenue from gasoline sales in nearby areas. Furthermore, he declared:

"The big oil companies stand to get a Christmas present of more than a million dollars in the form of subsidies they are now paying dealers in Maryland and Virginia who are now charging the lower District prices despite higher gasoline taxes in those States."

Would Delay Program

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District highway director, told the subcommittee that a lower gasoline tax "would not disturb" the highway program, but would postpone its completion from 8 to 12 years.

Asked by legislators about the need for a new Potomac River bridge or tunnel, particularly if an office building for 42,000 War Department employes is built in Arlington County, Whitehurst replied that while the bridge situation is "acute," the main trouble is bottlenecks at bridge approaches.

Ten thousand more cars could be handled on Key Bridge, he said, but for the "atrocious" M Street approach. He said he was opposed to building another bridge or tunnel in the vicinity of the Key or Memorial Bridges, but advocated a new crossing near Alexandria to divert through traffic.

Dirksen Favors Cent Rise

"There is no virtue in levying a tax of 2 cents a gallon if it leaves an indigestible balance at the end of the year," declared Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois. He added that the subcommittee will be on better ground "legislatively" with a 1-cent increase.

Hunter said he was opposed to piling a 2-cent increase on motorists and added: "Secretary Ickes may be putting a lot of gas stations out of business, but we don't want to contribute."

A companion bill to the tax measure, which would relieve abutting property owners of payment of one-half paving costs, is being studied individually by subcommittee members and may be reported to the committee Monday, Hunter stated.

Rotary to Hear Speech About Gas

Washington's "save-gas" program will be outlined to the Rotary Club at 12:30 p. m. today at a luncheon in the Willard Hotel by Washington I. Cleveland, a member of the District petroleum committee's speakers bureau.

The Rotarians will be urged to cooperate in the voluntary curtailment plan and avoid threatened compulsory restrictions on buying and consumption.

Treasury House Speaker Is Boles

Feature of last night's program at the Treasury House, adjacent to Post Square, was a short address by John Boles, movie star. Boles was brought to the Treasury House in a "jeep" car escorted by Sergt. Richard Beatty and Sergt. William Carey.

Treasury House officials reported the largest crowd since the stand has opened.

Auto Crash Kills Anacostia Man

Earl R. Groves, 40, of Route 5, Anacostia, Md., an employe of Cedar Hill Cemetery, was instantly killed last night in an auto accident near Suitland, Md.

Police said the auto of which Groves was the only occupant plunged into a culvert on Morningside Road, a mile from Suitland. The body was taken to Richie Brothers undertakers at Marlboro.

Carrasquel Conquers Yanks for Nats, 4 to 3

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Abandon hope, all ye with any idea that anybody is going to beat the Yankees out of the American League pennant. Clark Griffith, whose hate for the Yankees is exceeded only by his hate for the National League, has conceded that the Yanks are in.

POVICH

When the old gentleman delivered himself of that opinion, first suspicion was that the humidity had caught up with the heat in his Griffith Stadium office and made him incoherent. For years, Mr. Griffith has been president of the Last Man's Club—the last man ever to concede that the Yankees would win a pennant. Until it was mathematically certain, Griffith was a hold-out, a die-hard. But he now concedes.

Furthermore, says Mr. Griffith, this is a better Yankee team than the 1927 Yankees, who are the basic standard for gauging all great ball clubs. That was the Yankee team, you remember, that laughed its way to the pennant by a 19-game margin, set a new league record of 110 victories while losing only 44 games, and won the World Series in four straight from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

More Good Ball Players Now

Those were the Yanks of the Ruthian era, with Bob Meusel and Earl Combs as the Babe's mates in the outfield. Lou Gehrig was at the zenith of his career at first base. Tony Lazzeri was playing second, Frankie Crosetti was the shortstop, Jumping Joe Dugan was the third baseman and Pat Collins the catcher. That '27 pitching staff boasted Waite Hoyt, Herb Pennock, George Pipgras, Joe Bush and Bob Shawkey. It was a swell ball team.

"But, consarn it, this Yankee team is better," Mr. Griffith was saying. "It's got more fire and more good ball players. It hits harder. It runs the bases better. The pitchers may not be so fancy, but they pitch winning ball. I'd have to take this team over that 1927 gang."

Griffith doesn't even concede that the 1927 Yankee outfield, even with Ruth was superior to the current Yankee outfield crop. "How are you going to say that Ruth was a better ball player than DiMaggio?" he asked. "That DiMag can do three things better than Ruth. He can go farther for a ball, he can throw just a little bit better, and he gives you a better job running the bases. Ruth would break up more games for you."

The others of the 1941 Yankee outfield have an edge on Ruth's outfield mates, says Griffith. "I'd have to take Keller and Henrich over Meusel and Combs. Meusel could throw and hit, but Keller can throw, hit, run the bases and go a lot farther for a fly ball. Combs was a good ball player with a bad throwing arm. They can't say that about Henrich. He does everything well, and hits those home runs."

The big pull the '27 Yanks would have is at first base where Gehrig was in his prime and a great ball player on a great club. There is no argument that first base on the current Yanks presents a weakness in weak-hitting Johnny Sturm. "Sure, Gehrig gave those old Yanks a big edge, but they had a weakness, too," Griffith was saying.

Gordon Great Player of Era

"They had a weakness in their catching. Nobody ever could say Pat Collins was a great catcher. Bill Dickey and Buddy Rosar give the Yanks of today the best catching in the league. Dickey, even if he is fading, is far superior to Collins. I'd say the edge we now have behind the bat offsets the edge Gehrig gave those old Yanks at first base.

"Lazzeri was a fine second baseman with those old Yanks, but Gordon is a better one. He's one of the great ball players of our time. The Yanks had a great shortstop in Frankie Crosetti, a better one than that little Rizzuto, but Joe Dugan wasn't as good a third baseman as Red Rolfe at any time in his career.

The comeback of Lefty Gomez, and the amazing durability of Red Ruffing sets the current Yankee pitchers off against the '27 staff very nicely, says Griffith. "Those old Yanks had more important names pitching for 'em like Hoyt and Pennock and Pipgras and Shawkey, but somehow these Yankee pitchers nowadays keep winning all the time. There isn't much choice between the two staffs.

In fact, according to Griff, those 1927 Yankees were not the best Yankee ball team, and neither are the 1941 Yanks. "The best Yankee ball team we ever had was the one in 1938," says the old gentleman. "That was the year when Joe Gordon came up. Gehrig was still a great ball player. DiMaggio was a two-year veteran. Gomez and Ruffing were carrying on in great style. Gehrig was an important link between the '37 team and that '37 team and it was just about the best ball club the Yanks ever had."

And did Griffith think the Yankees would win the pennant again in 1942? Absolutely no. "Ruffing and Gomez can't go on forever. Dickey is at the end of his rope. Rolfe is getting old. Some team is going to come along and knock 'em off." The old gentleman hasn't changed much, after all.

SYMPHONY IN "D" FOR THE DODGERS

New York, Aug. 5.—For the benefit of that section of the baseball public which doesn't get around to the music notices in their newspapers, or which doesn't give a hoot about a toot from an oboe, let it be exposed here that the New York Philharmonic has just rendered "Symphony in D for the Dodgers." Thoughtful music critics, their ears cupped for the tell-tale wheeze of a weak woodwind, are inclined to believe that the symphony succeeded only in putting the Dodgers a little deeper into second place, and that its chances of replacing "Take Me Out To The Ball Game" are remote.

CONSIDINE

Composed by Robert Russell Bennett, a Giant fan, the symphony was to have been first played a week ago at New York's open-air Lewisohn Stadium. But it was called off—either on account of wet brasses, or an epidemic of tennis elbows in the string section. Anyway, it was thumped out Sunday night, with Hans Wilhelm Steinberg, a weight-lifting fan, conducting. The "gate" was disappointing, perhaps because the beloved bums who inspired Composer Bennett were at that moment straggling home to Brooklyn more dead than alive from a nightmarish Western invasion.

The symphony is roughly divided, or divided roughly, into four movements. There is first a movement in sonata form, portraying the bedlam and wonderful nonsense exuded by the citizens of Brooklyn when the beloved bums win one. But Composer Bennett must have been thinking of a split double-header or Luke Hamlin's home-run ball, for the symphony sweeps rapidly into a dirge movement. In fact it must be a prolonged losing streak, judging from the way some of the music lovers were squirming with despair on the hard Lewisohn seats.

The McPhail Angle, Second Movement

Then comes MacPhail, typically in brass. He is in the form of a scherzo, threaded with hunting horn tootles. Seems the guy is out looking for talent to buy. Beneath the hunting horn ta-ra'ing can be heard a scraping sound which could either have been a carpenter working on the foundation of Herr Steinberg's podium or the symbolic sound of the Brooklyn stockholders walking the floor at night, worrying about the way MacPhail is treating O. P. M., which, of course, means other people's money.

MacPhail gets into the dag-dangest session with Alva Bradley, owner of Bobby Feller, that you ever heard emanate from a tuba. But even though MacPhail pleads for Feller through the good offices of 17 clarinets, 14 oboes, 83 bull fiddles and a boat load of refugee French horns, Bradley, the louse, turns him down. "No," Bradley answers with 64 saxaphones, a mouth organ and comb wrapped in tissue paper.

However, Composer Bennett composes Brooklyn into a climatic victory over the Giants, probably feeling that the Dodgers certainly don't need Feller to beat Terry's doughty incompetents. The music zooms back to the happy sonata form. And just when the Dodger fans in the audience were on the verge of unbearable happiness over the way things turn out, out of the wings came Red Barber, the baseball broadcaster whose Crosley rating in Brooklyn is something like 114. Red, giving his chore all the zing and sock-dolager which baseball broadcasters can turn on at the drop of a single flake of Bleaties, gives a play-by-play of the finish of a Dodgers-Giants game. Sunday night the musicians sweated manfully during this finale, sawing away at their gut, blowing triumphant blasts of sweet wind through their reeds, and slugging the kettle drums and cymbals into submission. But Red, undaunted, still got in the last word. And the last word in "Symphony In D For The Dodgers" is that Dolph Camilli hits a home run to win for Brooklyn.

Larry Knows His Symphony

If you don't think MacPhail or Barber know the difference between a bagpipe and an octopus, then you missed a wonderful profile on MacPhail, published recently. It revealed that the ear-splitting president of the Dodgers is a student of symphonic music, and an habitue of Carnegie Hall.

Barber leaned heavily toward the hi-de-ho school of music appreciation when he came to Brooklyn from Cincinnati. But MacPhail drilled a lot of Wagner, Bach, Tchaikovsky, Weber and Beethoven into him, in spare moments. Larry nearly busted the buttons off his checkered dinner jacket vest some time ago at a dinner when Barber compared him to a symphony. "It was wonderful," Larry enthused. "Not one God-blessed soul at the dinner knew what Red was talking about."

Cubs' Olsen Stops Cards' Streak, 6-2

Turns in a Four-Hit Job; Nicholson Paces Bruins' Attack; Birds Lead by One Game

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Vern Olsen and Bill Nicholson pulled the Chicago Cubs out of a five-game losing streak today, sparking a 6-to-2 triumph over the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals.

Olsen's brilliant four-hit mound job and Nicholson's timely hitting accounted for the setback of the Cards, who had won four straight games. The defeat reduced to one game the Cards' margin over the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers, who were idle today.

Southpaw Max Lanier puzzled the Cubs for four innings, but in the fifth Stan Hack singled and the rattled youngster walked Augie Galan and Dominic Dallessandro. Nicholson, who has been in the hitting doldrums, then singled to right field, scoring two runs and kayoing Lanier. Howard Krist replaced him. Babe Dahlgren rapped a double-play ball to third, but Eddie Lake failed to touch second on the force play, throwing out Dahlgren at first while Dallessandro scored on the play. Nicholson counted on Clyde McCullough's single.

Nicholson Delivers

Bob Sturgeon opened the sixth with a single and Olsen bunted him to second. Hack walked, Galan struck out and Dallessandro walked, Krist giving way on the mound to Clyde Shoun. Nicholson again singled with the bases loaded, producing two more runs.

Olsen hurled one-hit shutout ball for five innings, but got into a minor jam in the sixth when Lake walked to start the frame. Terry Moore popped out, but Coaker Triplett singled and Enos Slaughter sent Lake home with a single. St. Louis added its other tally in the seventh on Dallessandro's error on Martin Marion's fly, a walk and Moore's single.

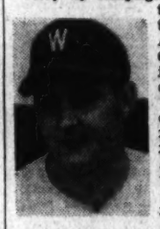
Nats Vs. Macks Here Tonight

Dutch Leonard, boasting a private five-game winning streak, will attempt to locate his sixth straight victory by lamplight tonight when the Nats meet the Philadelphia Athletics at Griffith Stadium in an after-dark contest.



LEONARD

The A's, hovering on the fringe of the first division and definitely a threat to finish among the top four teams this season, are the chief reason why the Nats are in eighth place. Ten times in 11 games this year the A's have beaten the Nats.

That is one of the reasons Manager Bucky Harris has nominated Leonard as his pitcher tonight. The Macks' victories over his team have been very irksome to Harris, and Leonard is the Washington pitcher best calculated to call a halt.

For the Athletics, Bill Beckman will go to the mound.

All seats for tonight's game are reserved, at no change in prices. Griffith Stadium ticket offices will be open throughout the day.

Dodgers Purchase 2 Atlanta Players

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers today announced the purchase of two players from Atlanta of the Southern Association.

The newcomers are Lester Burge, first baseman and the association leader in home runs batted in, and Bob Chipman, left-handed pitcher, whose record shows 13 victories and seven defeats. Six of his victories were shutouts.

Burge and Chipman will report to the Dodgers after the Southern Association playoffs.

Black Raider Takes Headliner; Swabia, Century Note Score

By the Associated Press

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 5. Don Meade, veteran jockey, had one of his best riding days of the season today when he booted home four winners, including Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Black Raider in the featured Saratoga Sales Stakes.

Meade started his campaign with Swabia, a $3.90 for $2 favorite, in the third race. He finished third with Roman Hero in the fourth and out of the money with Seven Hills in the fifth, then he took the last three races, two with favorites.

Following his triumph aboard Black Raider in the day's big race, Don booted home Century Note, a $4.20 choice in the companion piece, the $2,000 Highball Handicap for Class C horses.

His last winner was Russia, which paid $8.40 for $2 in the eighth race. He kept his mount under restraint in the clear until the leaders weakened at the three-quarter mark, then went on to win by three lengths.

Yank Finds the Plate—But Not Ungarded

Bosox Trip Macks, 6-5, Behind Fox

By the Associated Press

Boston, Aug. 5.—After kicking away a three-run lead, the Boston Red Sox bounced back today to take a 6-5 decision from the Philadelphia Athletics and sweep their two-game series with the Mackmen.

Pete Fox, who combed the offerings of Jack Knott and Luman Harris for three solid doubles, showed the way to the Sox batters. One of his doubles in the sixth inning was converted into the winning tally when Manager Joe Cronin followed with a single into the left field corner to chase Pete across the plate.

After spotting the A's a pair of runs in the opening session the Sox came back with a five-run outburst, combining four hits, two walks and a brace of errors by Al Brancato in fashioning the quintet of tallies. The A's nibbled away at the lead and equalized in the fourth when Wally Moses homered into the right field stands after Brancato had singled.

Hambletonian Today Draws 9 Trot Stars

Bill Gallon, Despite Poor Record, Favored at 3-2 in $38,729 Race

By Orlo Robertson

Associated Press Sports Writer

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 5.—It's Hambletonian time again and that means upwards of 25,000 will pour into this village tomorrow to watch nine picked 3-year-old trotters battle over Good Time Park's triangular course in the sixteenth "Corntassel" Derby.

The line-up for the $38,729 race was completed this morning when the owners and trainers of the five colts and four fillies posted the starting fee of $500—final payment of the $960 necessary to qualify a trotter for the richest of all light harness horse racing stakes.

Harry McKenney, starting his first Hambletonian, will get the field away for the first two out of three heats at 2 p. m. (E.S.T.). The weather promises to be fair and the track fast.

Although Bill Gallon has won only one of his five heats in two races this season, the son of Sandy Flash from R. H. Johnston's Charlotte, N. C., stable figures to go postward the 3 to 2 favorite to take the winner's share of the purse, amounting to $20,365. He whipped all of the top 2-year-olds in 1940 in hanging up a record of 2:04. This year he has bowed only to older horses in a handicap event and to Volstadt, a 3-year-old not eligible for the Hambletonian.

Perpetual Ill

Perpetual, winner of the Matron, National and Historic stakes this season, might have pushed Bill Gallon for honors in the probable odds book had he not been taken ill after winning the Historic last Friday at the nearby half-mile track. As it was, his owner-driver, R. H. M. Parshall, of Urbana, Ohio, didn't decide until a few minutes before deadline to start the speedy son of Protector.

Parshall said he hoped to become the first owner to drive a winner of trotting's Kentucky Derby. The Ohio veterinarian won with Lord Jim in 1934 and Peter Astra two years ago, but they carried the silks of other owners.

Parshall said he was not sure if Perpetual would be his best for the supreme test. As the result he was quoted at no better than 12 to 1.

Runner-up honors in pre-race quotations at 3 to 1 went to Bill Strang's His Excellency, a Brooklyn-owned colt who never has won a heat. But he was a consistent second to Bill Gallon in the 1940 Juvenile Stakes and this season has been bidding for the big money almost every time.

To Run as Pair

The only others given serious consideration were Fast Train and Florimel, who will run coupled in the betting. Fast Train is owned by Ebby Gerry, chairman of the New York State Harness Racing Commission; Florimel, by his uncle, E. Roland Harriman.

The outsiders completing the field are Patrick Sullivan's Merwynna from Machias, Me., Lucky Hanover from Lawrence Sheppard's Hanover Shoe Farms, Hanover, Pa.; Hollyrood Anna, who like Perpetual will be driven by his owner, Dunbar Bostwick, of New York, and Double Guy, the surprise entry of Dr. Anderson Arbury, of Midwind, Mich.

The candidates for next year's Hambletonian went on display in the Arthur S. Tompkins Memorial on today's Grand Circuit progam, with the honors going to Cannon Ball, owned by George F. Benham, of Cedarhurst, N. Y.

Driven by Harry Whitney, the son of Guyday, took the first heat in 2:07 and repeated in the second in the same time. Frank Spencer from W. N. Reynold's Barn of Winston-Salem, N. C., came up to make a race of it in the stretch and finished second in both heats. Third went to D. Eugene Frey's Colby Hanover, of York, Pa.

Reds Suffer 5th Straight Loss to Bucs

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Aug. 5.—The Pittsburgh Pirates put together two big innings today to beat the stumbling Cincinnati Reds, 7 to 5, for the world champions' fifth straight defeat.

Vince DiMaggio, who struck out too many times to make the grade with the Reds last year, fanned twice today but also hit his thirteenth homer of the season in the fourth with two men on.

Four singles and a triple by Bob Elliott gave the high-flying Pirates the rest of their runs in the seventh.

The Reds, with their batting order thoroughly shaken up, put on a rally in the eighth, scoring three times, but Bob Klinger came to the rescue of big Max Butcher and stopped them. Ernie Koy's triple in this frame was the Reds' longest hit in many a day.

Tribe Nips Tigers, 2-1, Under Arcs

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Aug. 5.—Southpaw Al Smith outpitched big Buck Newsom here tonight and the Cleveland Indians edged Detroit, 2 to 1, before 30,000 fans. Jeff Heath's triple in the sixth scored the Redskins' two runs after the Bengals had taken a lead in the third on a walk, a sacrifice and Barney McCosky's single.

Newsom struck out five men and gave up only five hits in suffering his fifteenth defeat against eight victories.

Fanning eight batters and carefully scattering six bingles, Smith notched his eighth triumph. He has lost seven times.

Smith started the winning rally himself with a sharp single. He was forced by Lou Boudreau on an attempted sacrifice, but Gerry Walker came through with a single to set the stage for Heath's three-base smash.

The Tiger's only other serious threat came in the first inning when McCosky tripled with one out. Smith then put on the pressure and whiffed Bruce Campbell and Pinky Higgins.

Chalky Wright Knocks Out Villa

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Albert (Chalky) Wright, 126¾, of Los Angeles, knocked out Paco Villa, 129½, of Mexico City, in 1:51 of the sixth round of the main eight-round bout at the Queensboro Arena tonight. Villa gave Wright trouble in the first four rounds, fighting at close range. In the fifth Chalky began to land and early in the sixth smashed Villa down for the count.

In a six-round preliminary, Johnny Cihlar, 174¾, Rockaway Beach, N. Y., outpointed Johnny Aicher, 186¼, Cliffside Park, N. J.

Venezuelan In 1st Start Since April

Excellent Pitching Stops N. Y. Threats In Late Innings; Russo Is Loser

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

The Nats found a pitcher yesterday who could beat the Yankees. They unearthed him from the scrap heap. Alex Carrasquel, in semidisgrace and regarded only as a relief pitcher since early April, was given his first starting job of the season and delivered a 4-3 ball game to the Nats. He was wun'nerful.

The big Venezuelan outpitched Marius Russo and made an early lead stand up nicely, although it was getting skimpy toward the finish. Good Neighbor Carrasquel hung onto the ball game as if it were something sacred after the Yanks cut his lead to one run. He shut 'em out in the last three innings.

They had the tying runs on base against Alex in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings, but they couldn't get 'em home. Carrasquel was sidearming 'em into submission. And it shouldn't have been close. Two of the three Yankee runs were very much tainted and the other one wasn't completely legitimate. With better support he would have had a shut-out victory.

Bunched Hits Count

Alex was at his best in the ninth when the Yanks didn't get anybody on base. But they were threatening to come up with the tying run nevertheless, and the 3,500 customers and 1,500 Camp Meade soldiers in the stands were exceedingly restive. Alex had three balls and no strikes on Johnny Sturm, first man to face him in the ninth and it appeared to be the setting for a typical Yankee uprising. But the Venezuelan hung in there, shoved two strikes past Sturm, disposed of him finally on a ground ball to Vernon, and had no more trouble.

The Yanks collected nine hits to the Nats' eight, but Washington bunched four of its hits against Russo in the first inning to come up with three large runs. That was funny. In the opening game of the season here, Russo held the Nats to four hits in nine innings.

Still Trying, Anyway

The first two men to face Russo—Case and Cramer—rapped him for singles to center and the Nats were off. Lewis hit into a force play that moved Case to third, and Travis got home the first run of the ball game with a single to left. When Selkirk bobbled the ball, Travis raced to second and, like Lewis, was in a position to score when Mickey Vernon socked a single to right, which he did.

Without benefit of a hit, the Nats went out and got what proved to be the winning run in the second inning. Russo walked Al Evans and when Carrasquel laid down a bunt Russo threw it over Shortstop Rizzuto's head in a futile attempt to get Evans at second. The Nats scored on the second error of the inning. On Case's grounder to Rizzuto, Carrasquel was forced at second but the Yankees missed a double play when Sturm dropped Gordon's throw to first and Evans continued to the plate.

Thereafter Russo kept the Yankees in the ball game valiantly. The Nats didn't get another run as Russo pitched three-hit ball for the

Hugh Lynch, Channing Easy Victors

Shenkin's Forehand Gives Leavens Busy Time in 6-2, 6-2 Victory at Edgemoor

By Jack Munhall

Two of the so-called dark horse contenders for Barney Welsh's District tennis title were unseated in quarter-final play yesterday at Edgemoor, with favorites winning almost as they pleased.

William Black, former University of Wisconsin star, was no match for seventh-seeded Charley Channing, who relied on his power for a 6—1, 6—2 victory, while Eddie Miller, the public parks champion, was eliminated by fourth-ranked Hugh Lynch, 6—3, 6—1.

Also advancing, but only to the quarter-finals, was second-seeded Don Leavens who took care of Herb Shenkin, 6—2, 6—2, after the hardest match of the afternoon. Shenkin, who was reported to have bet $5 on himself at odds of 1-3, worried Leavens throughout the match with his looping forehand but Don had too many guns for the baldish veteran. Shenkin's weak backhand cost him more points than his forehand drives and drop shots could earn for him.

Steady Performer

Lynch, one of the true marvels of the local game because of his great success despite his few good strokes, was even steadier than usual in dealing Miller, 19-year-old Maryland sophomore, a convincing licking. Miller, yielding much to his rival in experience and generalship, couldn't find the winning combination. He couldn't match Lynch from the baselines and he couldn't take the net in the face of Hugh's accurate passing shots.

Channing did little more than experiment with his game in overwheming the erratic Back. The big former University of Virginia player had trouble with his service but was hitting his ground strokes well and made efficient use of that ever more popular stroke, the drop shot.

Kiljus On Block

With Black and Miller eliminated, the third and last "outsider" is expected to drop out today at 5 p. m. when unseeded Ed Kiljus, of the University of Pennsylvania, meets Leavens in the quarterfinal round. Kiljus stirred up quite a rumpus among the fans the other afternoon when in quick succession he beat Austin Rice, one of the better second-flight local players, and sixth-seeded Buddy Adair.

Today's other singles match at the same hour will find Champion Welsh meeting fifth-seeded Bill Breese, who can be expected to offer Barney stubborn opposition, but not to seriously extend him.

Welsh made a brief appearance yesterday when he and Lynch wiped up Seay and Williamson, 6—1, 6—1, in second round doubles.

There will be one doubles match today, between Dick Bennion and Bob Underwood and Doyle Royal and DeWitt Smith.

Miss Decker D. C. Net Victor

Little Ens Dellinger's surprise rush in the District Women's Tennis League tournament ended yesterday, but it took the top-seeded player, Charlotte Decker, and plenty of pressure to accomplish the trick in semi-final play on the Reservoir courts. Miss Dellinger, a former New Mexico State champion, bowed out, 6—3, 9—7, after eliminating Dorette Miller and Peggy Keyser Smith.

In yesterday's only other completed tournament match, Mrs. Smith and Frances Rowan gained the doubles semifinals with a 6—2, 3—6, 6—4, victory over Margaret Graham and Peggy Emmons.

Katherine Wassmann defeated Helen Porter, 7—5, 6—3, in the consolation tournament.

Today's schedule brings together unseeded Eleanor Fishburne and fourth-ranked Sara Moor in semi-final singles, and Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Rowan against Betty Zimmerman and Miss Dellinger, both matches starting at 5 p. m.

Bowling Match Set For Benefit of USO

A stellar bowling match for the benefit of the United Service Organizations will be staged by Clarendon Alleys tomorrow night at 8 p. m. Clashing in a 5-game match will be Astor Clarke, Fred Murphy, "Reds" Megaw and E. L. Gieb. Clarendon will increase the collection for the USO by 50 per cent from its own treasury.

Braves Score Six in Seventh, Beat Phils, 10-9

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 5.—The first five men up for the Phillies smashed out three singles and two doubles good for four runs today, but it didn't mean a thing, as the Boston Braves exploded six runs in the seventh to win, 10 to 9.

A home run by Eddie Miller off Tom Hughes with two on was the wallop that climaxed the big seventh that saw the Braves come from behind a 9-4 score to turn defeat into victory.

The Phils threatened in the seventh and eighth, but good relief pitching by Tom Early, the fifth Boston pitcher, prevented any further scoring.

Tom Mangan Wins At Ventnor Net

Ventnor, N. J., Aug. 5 (AP).—Thomas J. Mangan, of Washington, D. C., seeded first, entered the third round of the men's singles in the Middle States Coast Tennis tournament today by defeating Lyon F. Holmes of Atlantic City, 6—3, 6—0.

Martha Benedict, of Lansdowne, Pa., and Peggy Longstreth, of Princeton, N. J., advanced to the final of the women's singles and will play for the title tomorrow. Miss Benedict defeated Mira Noyes, of Washington, D. C., in the semi-finals, and Miss Longstreth eliminated Elizabeth Rockney, of Lansdowne.

Garfield's Homecoming Calls 'Grads'

While our city goes about its business today, supposedly as lacking in sentiment as an undertaker with a headache, Garfield Playground will again make a noble effort to disprove that heartlessness.

It's "homecoming" day at Garfield today! It's the day that, for no reasons except sentimental ones, the Second and F Streets Southeast playground calls in its "old grads."

There will be Garfield veterans from every station in life at the proceedings, starting at 1 p. m. Doctors, lawyers, priests, railroad men, clerks, druggists, scientists—all will show up for a chance to talk over old times and make themselves stiff but happy in assorted athletic contests. Former habitues from as far away as Ohio will be on hand.

There may be those who remember when Garfield was only a vacant lot hangout for the kids of 1898; those who remember the place's first face-lifting in 1902 when the weeds were cut to allow for a baseball diamond. And many will recall the gradual development of Garfield until it ranks as one of the finest playgrounds in the city under the D. C. Department of Playgrounds.

This year's celebration, in particular, will be a happy one. Last year a shadow was thrown over the get-together by the serious illness of Mrs. Evelyn Sheridan, popular director. "Miss Susie," as she is known to all alumni, is now back in perfect health.

The sports card will be featured by a softball game between the Old-Timers and Youngsters. Girls will compete in schlag ball and volley ball games. And topping off the whole affair will be refreshments served by "Miss Susie" herself.

Chicago, Aug. 5 (AP).—Dixiana Stable's Night Glow, carrying only 98 pounds, ran to a photo-finish victory in the Hastings Purse for 3-year-olds at Washington Park today before a crowd of 9,000 and paid $32, $12.80 and $6 across the board.

Beaten in the photo was Mrs. A. M. Creech's Bo Fiddle. F. P. Leteller's Topic was a neck back in third. A claim of foul against the winner was not allowed, the stewards ruling that Bo Fiddle and Night Glow bumped each other slightly in the stretch drive.

The winner, daughter of Pharamond II—Red Sunset, ran the 7 furlongs over a slow track in 1:24 4-5. Apprentice Willie Strickler was up.

Schweitzer Winner in Boys' Tennis

By the Associated Press

Culver, Ind., Aug. 5.—With three rounds of the national boys' and juniors' tournament completed today, 11 of the original 15 seeded players in the juniors' division were still in the running for the round of 16.

All ranking eight boys were among these going into the third rounds of the singles when play gets under way tomorrow.

The doubles tournament opened this afternoon with 96 teams taking over the courts at Culver Military Academy.

Robert Smidl, River Forest, Ill., eighth seeded junior, was in top form as he defeated Arnold Saul, Los Angeles, 6—0, 6—3. Gardner Larned, Chicago, top seeded Midwest threat to the eight-year California hold on the junior title, was hard pressed in his victory over Holmes Cathrall, Scranton, Pa., 6—3, 4—6, 6—3. It was again Larned's power at the net and his great variety of strokes which proved the deciding factor in one of the best matches of the tournament to date.

Although hampered by a sprained leg, Emil Martinez, San Antonio, Tex., fourth ranking player, defeated Ted Hainline, Rock Island, Ill., 6—2, 6—2. The unseeded French player from Dover, Mass., Henri Salaun, defeated Ray Bell, Dayton, Ohio, 6—1, 6—1.

Washington's representation in the two tournaments was cut in half as Bobby Bensinger, former national indoor champion, was eliminated in third-round junior competition, while Britt Schweitzer gained the the third round of boys' play. Schweitzer, teamed with Stuart Spritz, of Baltimore, also advanced in doubles.

Bensinger's conqueror was sixth-seeded Harry Likas, of San Francisco, who won, 6—4, 6—3. In singles Schweitzer defeated Don Bowman, of Ada, Okla., 4—6, 6—3, 6—3, and Spritz bowed to Hubert Rance, of Chicago, 6—8, 6—4, 6—4. Spritz and Schweitzer won their first-round doubles match over Kenneth Culp, Monroe, Mich., and Edwin Schneider jr., Ann Arbor, Mich. The score was 6—4, 6—1.

In singles today Schweitzer will meet Don Harris, of Los Angeles.

Jocky Wright Off Widener Stable List

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 5 (AP).—Wayne Wright, veteran Idaho jockey, and the Joseph E. Widener Stable, for whom Wright has ridden for several years, have come to a parting of the ways, it was learned here this afternoon. It is understood that the split-up is on a perfectly friendly basis. Wright has not been riding the Widener horses of late and the news that he has parted with the establishment therefore comes as no surprise.

Rye Matches Go to Form; Mako Routed

By the Associated Press

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 5.—The second round of the Eastern grass court tennis championships was completed today without a hint of trouble for the favorites. From top-seeded Bobby Riggs, of Clinton, S. C., right down to Arthur Marx, of Hollywood, Calif., a youngster who is making tennis fans forget to refer to him as the movie comedian's son, the players who were expected to win did win—and usually in straight sets.

Riggs gave his strokes a good workout at the expense of Bill Canning, of Hidden Valley, Calif., winning 6—4, 6—3, after running his opponent from baseline to net and back again with a mixture of drop shots and deep-driven backhand placements.

Marx, who will take on National Champion Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, in the third round, knocked off Ronald Edwards, of San Jose, Calif., 7—5, 6—3. McNeill seeded second in this tourney, whipped William Umstaedter, of Millburn, N. J., 6—3, 6—0. Displaying a greatly improved backhand, McNeill out-maneuvered his young opponent with deep-court shots and then came to the net to put away points with decisive volleys.

Other Winners

In between these extremes, Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, Calif., Ted Schroeder, of Glendale, Calif.; Jack Kramer, of Los Angeles, Schroeder's National champion doubles partner; Gardnar Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla.; Billy Talbert, of Cincinnati; Ladislav Hecht, of New York; Charles Olewine, of Santa Monica, Calif.; Sidney Wood, of New York; Ed Mark, of San Francisco, and Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, all came through to complete the round of sixteen.

Frank Parker, of Spring Lake, N. J.; Wayne Sabin, of Reno, Nev., seeded fourth and fifth, and Upsetter Earl Cochell, of Los Angeles, who meets sixth-seeded Schroeder tomorrow, had won their third-round brackets earlier in the tourney.

Favorites in the women's singles, headed by Pauline Betz, of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke, of New York, and including a crew of California stars, Louise Brough, Virginia Wolfenden, Mary Arnold, Dorothy Bundy, Margaret Osborne and Patricia Canning, won their second-round matches about as handily.

What was expected to be the day's feature match turned into a rout as Kovacs whipped Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, former national doubles champion and Davis Cup star, 6—4, 6—4. Kovacs used a perfect backhand drive relentlessly to beat his rival down.

Another former champion, Frank X. Shields, of New York, wilted in the second set and took a 6—4, 6—1 drubbing from Kramer.

St. Paul Woman Leads Western

By International News Service

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Mrs. Hayes Dansingburg, of St. Paul, tonight led the field in the Women's Western 72-hole medal play derby as she reached the halfway mark with a score of 157.

Close behind her at the end of 36 holes was Virginia Ingram, of Sunset Ridge, Ill., with a 161. Mrs. Frank Newell, formerly Betty Hicks, of Long Beach, Calif., who has won the event in the last two years, was in seventh place trailing the leader by 12 strokes with score of 169.

Other golfers up near the top were Eleanor Dudley, of Ridge, Ill., and Phyllis Otto, of Atlantic, Iowa, who each had 163. One stroke behind them was Mary Agnes Wall, of Menominee, Mich., with a 104.

Miss Drullard Star in Softball

A clever little miss from Takoma Playground, Claire Drullard, featured hostilities yesterday as the second round of the Community Center and Playground Department Girls Softball tournament was staged near the Reflecting Pool.

Leading her mates to a 11-3 victory, Claire hurled a three-hit game against Buchanan and slashed out two home runs in four trips to the plate.

In other junior division games Columbia defeated Langley, 18-7; Kenilworth swamped Georgetown, 33-8, and Taft defeated Jefferson, 17-3. One senior division clash saw Langdon outslug Edgewood, 35-20.

Matches today, at 10 a. m., find Lafayette and Georgetown, and Langdon and Rosedale meeting in the senior section and junior battles between Takoma and Columbia, and Kenilworth and Taft.

Tribe Forced to Retrieve Gloves for Night Game

Cleveland, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians came close to playing bare-handed against the Detroit Tigers tonight.

Four boys broke into the locker room today and romped off with all the fielders' gloves and catchers' mitts they could find.

The culprits were spotted by park attendants and police finally cornered them under the grandstand.

"PERFECT SPECIMEN"—Dr. Joseph C. Placek gives Bob Feller's teeth the once over during yesterday's physical examination by draft board doctors at Cleveland. Feller was called a "perfect specimen" by the medicos and awaits induction into the Army in October

Cleveland's Ace Hurler Says He's Ready To Go as Soon as Uncle Sam Calls Him

By the United Press

Cleveland, Aug. 5.—Robert William Feller, the Cleveland Indians' ace pitcher—a "perfect physical specimen" as had long been known by American League batters—passed his Selective Service physical examination today, but it was reported reliably that his local draft board would not be ready to call him for Army service before October.

Feller, to date the only 20-game winner in the major leagues, will be 23 in November. Clad in green sport shirt, slacks of a lighter green and brown-and-white sport oxfords, he exhibited no discomfiture during the examination or facing the battery of cameras and reporters after it.

"He is a perfect physical specimen," said Drs. Michael C. Geraci and Joseph C. Placak, jr. "There's not a thing wrong with him. He's 1-A physically."

Feller still must be examined by a U. S. Army physician and then will be eligible for induction at any time designated by his board.

"I'm ready to go at any time they call me," Feller said.

Betty Jacob Wins at Net In Baltimore

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Aug. 5.—Third-seeded Betty Jacob, of Washington, won her way to the semifinals of the Middle Atlantic Girls' singles tennis championships here today with a straight set triumph over Noreen Haney, 14, of Cumberland, Md., the Dominion and provincial girls' champion of Canada.

Miss Haney battled on even terms through the first set with the favored Miss Jacob, finally losing it. She then dropped the second set as she tired before the experienced play of the Washingtonian. The scores were: 8—6, 6—3.

Top-seeded Helen Harrison, of Baltimore, had little trouble trouncing Frances Warfield, also of Baltimore, 6—2, 6—4.

Other matches today included: Rosalie Bruce won from Marjorie Ellison, 6—1, 6—1.

Ruth Johnson, Washington, D. C., defeated Jean Chatterley, 6—4, 6—0.

Louis, Nova Fight Date Seen as Sept. 17

By the United Press

New York, Aug. 5.—Developments today indicated that Joe Louis and Lou Nova will meet in the heavyweight championship battle at the Polo Grounds on or about September 17.

Despite attractive offers from sportsmen in Boston, Chicago, Detroit and other cities for the fight, Promoter Mike Jacobs apparently has decided to keep it in New York. Jacobs would not comment upon the site or date today.

However, it became known this afternoon that Jacobs and Nova's manager, Ray Carlen, had decided that Nova will not train at Grossinger's Country Club, and that Carlen is negotiating for a camp on Long Island.

The Polo Grounds will be the battle site, instead of larger Yankee Stadium, because Jacobs wants to stage his bout during the week of September 14, when the New York Yankees are playing at home.

Triple Play Marks Portsmouth Victory

Winston-Salem, N. C., Aug. 5 (AP).—The Portsmouth Cubs made it two straight over the Twins by winning tonight's contest, 4-0.

The Cubs in the eighth pulled one of the rarest plays of baseball, turning a grounder into a triple play. Third Baseman Seghi took Hancock's sharp grounder, threw to second to catch Rutner. Curry relayed to first, nipping Hancock and Sidle pegged to catcher Steinecke, catching Murray dashing home from third.

Yanks' Runaway Victory Belies Baseball Pitching Laws

Speaking of the Yanks, they're amazing, not to mention demoralizing, because they've pulled out in front and seem headed for a runaway with only a mediocre assortment of job-lot pitching. This crosses up all the laws which say you can't win a pennant without a 20-game pitcher. Maybe the genius of McCarthy shines here as never before.

Mr. Angus McWheelbase, the dour Scot, dubbed four shots in dismal succession on the Poland Spring links and calmly said to the gathering: "Boys, hand me my caddy. Let me see if I can do any better with it."

Maj. Neyland, the former Tennessee football coach, now commands an Engineers detachment at Norfolk, Va. . . . Chet Gladchuk, the giant Boston College Sugar Bowl center, called up by duty by his draft board, may be turned down by the Army after all, although he's healthy as a horse. His altitude of 6 feet 5 inches is generally considered too tall for this kind of army. It's too much target on the hoof and takes up too much room in jeep cars.

If Louis and Nova are going to fight in September, Uncle Mike Jacobs had better get the fire started. It may be pretty slow cooking . . . Chicago wants it.

Miss Ima Smack, this department's very fresh secretary, wants to know if, speaking of vacations, I heard the one about the woman who missed her husband something terrible—but hoped her aim would be better next time. . . . And while I'm at it, the little girl in our block wanted to bet a nickel I couldn't answer a simple question. After an appropriate lectue upon the evils of wagering I agreed to take a sporting chance, and this was it. "Two girls were walking across a field through 2 feet of snow. What time was it?" Well, go ahead and answer. The correct response, it appears, is, "Winter time." Yep, I contributed.

Varsity Guard Max Morris, of the Auburn football team, was a real-life hero down in Fort Benning recently when he charged to the assistance of a fellow R. O. T. C. student caught on a live wire. Morris was knocked down once, but he came back fighting and freed his friend, although so badly burned himself that he had to be hospitalized. Both came through O. K. after treatment.

I told you Jarrin' John Kimbrough was a cinch for the movi's as soon as the scouts identified that engaging pan of his on those cigaret bill boards. Well, there he is. Bing Crosby's brother, Everett, is handling that end of him. Bing is supposed to be sponsoring Tom Harmon, too. What's the guy doing? Collecting a gallery of living all-America portraits? . . . Harvard has one of the toughest football schedules in years, and, at present, a riddled personnel with which to meet it. Where the Army left off, the professors are understood to have started.

Will McCarney, the veteran New York pugilistic agent and piece man who was in on the Schmeling property when it was active, recently revealed that he had heard regularly from Schmeling once a month until he was reported killed in Crete, but has had no word since. After the Nazis denied Max was dead but instead was hospitalized with a tropical complaint, Prof. McCarney says he dutifully mailed the German all the premature obituaries that appeared in the American press. To be sure they got there, he said, he mailed two batches, one the long way around through Japan and Russia, the other the short way via Portugal and Spain.

If in the mass of printed matter he chanced to include the interview attributed to Jack Dempsey in which Jack was quoted as saying Schmeling told him he personally wanted no part of the Nazis and was revolted by everything they stood for, but that he was going through the motions in order to protect his wife, it's no wonder Prof. McCarney hasn't heard from his old pupil. He probably never will again if the censors got a gander at that one.

Scocca's Riding Features Opening Races at Cumberland

D. C. Jockey Has 6 Mounts In the Money

Single-Handedly Wins $72.20 Double, Also Scores on Welsh Lad In Stretch Drive

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Cumberland Md. Aug. 5.—Jockey Danny Scocca, Washington, D. C., boy, stole the saddle show today as Maryland's half-mile circuit swung into action up here near the headquarters of the Potomac River. The former Eastern High School student, whose first saddle was a gift from Jockey Sonny Workman, rode three winners, a second and two thirds in six tries on the eight-race program.

Included in his accomplishments for the afternoon was a personal daily double triumph. Scocca was aboard Vale Dove, owned by Eddie Johnson, former Maryland U. sports star, in the first race and booted the juvenile to the wire ahead of Lithograph and Chief Teddy. Vale Dove was a $4.10 favorite. Scocca came back in the second race with R. L. Pearson's Gradatim. The Capital boy put up a whale of a ride and brought the 3-year-old colt home in advance of Chainwick and Microplay. Gradatim paid a juicy $27.80 mutuel and put the finishing touches on a $72.20 daily double pay-off.

After finishing third with Hezdrel and Butterman, the little Italian-American boy climbed into the saddle of Gordon Pearce's Welsh Lad. He rode a perfect race to take the consistent son of Prince of Wales around the leaders to wear down Ivy X in the stretch drive. Third money in this field went to Streamer. Welsh Lad paid $8.70.

Scocca's last effort of the card was in the sixth race. He piloted Mrs. A. C. Paul's Tar Miss and barely missed getting the filly up in time. Scocca lost by a nose in a photo to Stockton. Bardy was the third horse in this test.

The top sprint offering of the day went to P. H. Faulconer's Roman Boy. The son of Ha Ha and Roman Girl won by a half length from Dashing Doe, owned by J. I. Hughes. Mrs. N. E. Stanton's Butterman was third. Jockey A. F. Martinez, leading rider at Hagerstown and Bel Air, rode Roman Boy, which returned $8.10.

JACK WILSON	(Shufelt)	121	8	8	8	8	8	8	58.60

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VALE DOVE, $4.10, $3.30, $2.80; LITHOGRAPH, $8.00, $5.40; CHIEF TEDDY, $4.50.

VALE DOVE was sent to the front on the inside soon after the start, responded when challenged on the final turn and drew clear under intermittent punishment. LITHOGRAPH was closest to the winner from the start, made a bold challenge, but was not good enough. CHIEF TEDDY was off sluggishly. PRISON SHIP closed willingly. MR'S TOPS had brief speed.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good for all but DEODO. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:36. Off at 2:38. Winner, R. A. Marion's br. c. (3), by Corensio—Trudger. Trained by J. E. Allison, Jr. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:23⅘.

COURLANDER	(Dufford)	110	8	7	7	8	8	8	8	74.20

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GRADATIM, $27.80, $11.30, $5.60; CHAINWICK, $7.30, $4.90; MICROPLAY, 3.20.

GRADATIM, never far from the leaders, took command when called on in the final quarter and drew clear under pressure. CHAINWICK was taken up in the opening quarter, went to the outside and closed with good courage. MICROPLAY took an early lead, but weakened badly when headed. MISPRINT tired gradually. DEODO had little chance with the break.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:06. Off at 3:06½. Winner, E. Brining's ch. f. (4), by Brandon Mint—Knickers. Trained by E. Brining. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:22⅘.

CHANCER	(Hernandez)	110	5	8	2¹	5²	6²	6²	8	72.20

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARANDAN, $10.10, 5.20, $4.20; SCHLEY GOREE, $19.90, 9.50; HEZDREL, $5.20.

MARANDAN, off in the first flight, raced wide at every turn, was hard ridden and held SCHLEY GOREE safe. The latter was far back for the half, came through on the rail and was going best at the end. HEZDREL took command briefly, but weakened. LITTLE HARPIST saved ground, but lacked racing room. SCOTTIE was shuffled back slightly.

FOURTH RACE—Five furlongs. The F. Brook Whiting. Purse, $600. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:33. Off at 3:34. Winner, P. H. Faulconer's ch. g. (5), by Ha Ha—Roman Girl. Trained by C. H. Fitzgerald. Value to winner, $425; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:55⅕.

LADY BUCK	(Bernhardt)	111	1	4	8	8	8	8	89.95

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROMAN BOY, $8.10, 4.00, $3.00; DASHING DOE, 5.10, $3.20; BUTTERMAN, $4.90.

ROMAN BOY saved ground at the first turn to take command, drew clear, lost ground entering the stretch and held on willingly. DASHING DOE raced on the ouside, improved her position on the backstretch and came gamely at the close. BUTTERMAN was vigorously handled and showed a good effort. HIGH HEDGE was off rather slowly, went to the inside and failed to rally.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:02. Off at 4:03. Winner, Mrs. G. H. Pearce's b. g. (7), by Prince of Wales—Debit. Trained by G. H. Pearce. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:51⅘.

ALLENCAID	(Vessell)	109	7	8	8	8	8	8	8	17.95

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WELSH LAD, $8.70, $4.60, $3.50; IVY X., $8.70, $5.40; STREAMER, $10.10.

WELSH LAD saved ground while in the first flight early, came to the outside of IVY X. and wore down the latter in the final stages. IVY X. set a good pace and closed gamely, but could not resist the winner. STREAMER raced on the inside close up the three-quarters and weakened. BLIND BROOK showed a good effort.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:32. Off at 4:32½. Winner, J. F. Adams, jr.'s ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—STOCKTON, $15.40, $7.10, $4.40; TAR MISS, 5.80, $3.60; BARDY, 3.20.

STOCKTON was in the first flight from the start, came willingly in the closing test and barely lasted to defeat TAR MISS. The latter was bumped at the first turn, came to the inside to improve her position and finished in close quarters on the rail. BARDY moved up to challenge STOCKTON and fought it out with good energy. PENNY ARCADE closed with a rush.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:01. Off at 5:01½. Winner, Mrs. J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—IVORY TIP, $46.60, $11.90, $4.90; CHALOTAUR, $3.60, $2.90; KAMARI, $4.50.

IVORY TIP, brilliantly handled, was a trailer for the half, improved his position between horses, came to the outside boldly and was up in the final strides. CHALOTAUR was outrun by KAMARI and KENNER early, drove to contention in the final quarter, but could not resist the winner. KAMARI saved ground while setting the pace and came again to the close. CURVES made up some ground.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:31. Off at 5:32. Winner, Mrs. M. MAC'S CANTOR, steadied closest to the pace of QUESTRE, took command when asked and held away to the end after being shaken up in the stretch run. PACK SADDLE was in the first flight from thestart, came ou for racing room and was wearing down the winner at the end. WILLIAM V. was hard handled throughout and closed willingly. QUESTRE set the pace and tired when displaced.

Tavern Beats Cameo, 4-2, to Tighten Race

Losers' Lead Cut in Half In Post Loop

Three Runs in Third Decides as James Is Routed; 2 Teams Meet Again Today

Little Tavern nine came a few steps nearer catching Cameo Furniture in the stretch drive of The Washington Post-Industrial League yesterday when it overcame a 2-0 deficit and scored a 4-2 victory on the Ellipse.

Three Tavern runs in the third inning, a rally launched by First Baseman Jack James' error, decided the contest. As a result, Cameo boasts a one-game lead in the second half going into the two teams' second straight meeting today.

Walter James went to the mound for Cameo at the start yesterday, but it apparently wasn't his day. He allowed six hits and two bases on balls before being relieved by Ottie Printz in the third inning with two out. Printz tossed 1-hit ball the remainder of the 7-inning battle.

Meanwhile Little Tavern had sent Wheatley and Jennings to the hill, and between them they worked a creditable 7-hit game. Wheatley, who hurled the last five stanzas, registered seven strikeouts.

Opposing pitchers in today's clash at 5 p. m. will be Frank Deavers, for the leaders, and Jennings for the Tavern.

Fire Softies Bow Despite 9-Run Rally

Yellow Cab tossers last night gave District of Columbia Firemen their second defeat of the season at Washington Softball Stadium, 14-9. "Bump" Simonds shut out the Firemen with three hits for four innings before retiring to permit young Tony Neri to take the mound with the Cabmen in front, 9-0. Neri's wildness permitted the Firemen to score five times and fill the bases and Simonds, summoned from left field, gave up four more runs before retiring the side.

United States Aggies scored eight in the first inning to defeat Lansburgh and remain in the National Night League hot race as the Department Store lads dropped out of title consideration. Todryck hurled the Aggies to an easy triumph.

Tonight at 8 o'clock the Capital City League second-half title hinges on the battle between Kavakos Grill and Fat Boy. A Kavakos victory will clinch the second-half crown, while a Fat Boy triumph will terminate in a three-way tie with Fat Boy, Kavakos and Yellow Cab deadlocked. "Cannonball" Jack Smith and Harold Steffes will oppose on the mound. M. P. M. Market Girls will meet Kenilworth at 9:15 p. m.

Young Monday Added to Mat Card at Arena

"Young" Monday, who at 55 years of age is one of the oldest grapplers in the game, will make his debut on Joe Turner's weekly wrestling show at Turner's Arena tomorrow night. Still brimming with vigor, Monday will test his old school tactics against Joe Davansky, a rugged Polish lad from around Philadelphia.

The card will be headlined by a bout between Pat Frakey, the East Coast Irishman, and Lou Plummer, with the winner to get a featured role on next week's big outdoor program.

Maurice La Chappelle and Ace Freeman will seek their fifth straight two-man team victory in a match against Fred Grobmier and Eddie Cook. In other encounters Tommy Rae will toil with Abie Coleman, and Mike Heller will take on Angelo Leone.

Former Wrestler And Boxer Dies

Minneapolis, Aug. 5 (AP).—Walter (Farmer) Lodge, 48, who turned from wrestling to boxing and met many of boxing's best men a few years back, died today at Veterans' Hospital, victim of complications which followed a fall from a grain stack on his farm near North Branch.

Lodge broke several ribs and later contracted pneumonia. Surviving are his widow and four children.

Fishing with JACK BELL

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

WHO SAID WEAKER SEX?—When Mrs. Maurice Meyer, jr., of Elberson, N. J., landed this tuna she eclipsed all known records for this species in Maine for eithr men or women anglers. The fish weighed 818 pounds and measured slightly under 10 feet. It was taken off Mark Island Gully, near Bailey Island, Me.

Fishing for small-mouth bass on the Potomac River at Point of Rocks, Md., Saturday in company with Jack Nelson, we found the water in very good condition . . . as well as the fishing.

The Potomac at that point can be fished at this time by wading. However, much as we like to wade, we believe fishing off one of those typical square ended flat bottomed boats, poled by a native riverman, is best. More water can be covered, especially some of the deep holes around the big submerged rocks, which are impossible to reach by wading.

JACK BELL

At Point of Rocks there are two men who can really pole a boat in or out of fast water. They are Fred Fulton and his younger brother Robert Fulton. They can be found by driving up the dirt road along the old canal about a mile to a red gate. There you just let out a yell and one or the other will show up.

Boats can be hired, and higher up the river at Lander, Lewis H. Cross has about 18 boats for hire. He also has some boats suitable for outboards.

The river at Point of Rocks, from the bridge up to Catoctin, is excellent for small-mouth, shallow and deep water, with thin riffles or a rushing shoot, sometimes very rocky and many backwater pools. We caught 12, kept eight that averaged a pound and three quarters, fishing with plugs and streamer flies.

Bill Redick and Charles Pettit, both local bass bugs, fished Monday on Broad Run Creek, below Manassas, Va., and caught four very nice large-mouth bass that averaged three pounds. They report that the water there is as clear as crystal and found wading for 'em just right.

Little Cove Point, north of Solomons Island, and Cedar Point, south, produced fair fishing early this week.

At Cove Point trout are schooling and are running somewhat larger in size than those caught over the week end. Trolling with June Bug spinner and a gob of bloodworms turns the trick. Better get your bloodworms here in Washington, and if you want to catch some of those big Norfolk Spot, you better take a good supply along.

At Cedar Point small rock are being caught, however a few fair rock were caught Monday. Trolling or chumming with shore shrimp is about all one can do at this time. We believe some big fellows could be caught by floating soft shell crabs, but they are scarce and when obtained are very expensive bait.

Dave Edmonston, of Washington, is spending his vacation at Ocean City, Md. His first day out he and his party caught two tuna, 30 and 45 pounds, and 45 bonito averaging 2 pounds. He says "Jack, I caught the 30-pounder on bass tackle, and did I have my hands full."

The American Forestry Association's new 1941 Forest Fire Prevention Poster Stamps, designed and painted by Devereux Butcher, are now available. The stamps are arresting reminders to be careful with fire while in the woods. The best way to fight a forest fire is before it happens, and a good way to keep a forest fire from happening is to constantly remind men, women and children of the danger of being careless with matches, cigarettes and campfires in the woods.

You still have a chance to make the National Fishing Rodeo at Solomon's Island tomorrow. See the worthwhile tackle prizes in Garrison's window. Looks like everyone will get some kind of a prize. Tickets can be obtained at your favorite sport store.

Fishing tops all sports in the United States in numbers of fans. Maryland, of course, is a famous fishing State, and anglers and everyone in this section interested in fishing are becoming enthused for their benefit. A new one has just been announced. The sponsors state there are no strings attached to it, and over $1,200 in cash and valuable prizes will be distributed.

Everyone, even those who can only throw a handline over the side of the boat, is eligible to enter the contest.

The contest is divided into four periods, so that each contestant has more than one opportunity of winning a prize. The winners of each period then become eligible for the grand prize.

The contest is being held under the auspices of "Gunther," of Baltimore, in order to stimulate interest in this great sport, and reward those who catch big "ones." Entry blanks can be obtained through us, or your favorite tackle shop.

Man-Eating Trout Story Wins Liar's Prize for Newsman

Livingston, Mont., Aug. 5.—Man-eating trout in Royall's River in Maine got so mad when a Massachusetts fisherman started to fish with a rod and fly instead of a club that they chased him up a tree, then jumped up and down snapping at his heels.

That reads like a lie.

Well, it is. But it won for John Gould, Yarmouth, Maine, newspaperman, the fish story-telling championship of the Liars' Club of the Livingston Trout Derby.

In submitting his tale Gould noted that the prize was a fly rod. For that he has no use "because here in Yarmouth . . . We go down behind the office when we want some fish and we hit them over the head when they come upon the bank to pick blueberries."

If Gould doesn't want the fly rod, the club advised him, he can have a baseball bat to use on the blueberry pickers.

Jannazzo Gets Nod Over Cocoa

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Izzy Jannazzo, who is the world welterweight champion in Baltimore but just another fighter here in his home town, won a close 10-round decision over Cocoa Kid, of New Haven, Conn., tonight in the main bout of a fight show at Ebbets Field. Jannazzo weighed 148¾ and the Kid scaled 144½.

A cozy gathering of 5,446 contributed to a gross gate of $10,098.45 to rattle around in the Dodgers' big ball yard and see the show. Cocoa Kid, otherwise Louis Hardwick Aroya, gave as good as Izzy through the first half of the fight. But Izzy raised a lump on his left eye in the sixth and pegged away at it from there on until he closed it in the eighth. As a result, although Cocoa kept up a battle, he couldn't see right-hand punches coming his way through the last four rounds, and Jannazzo used this advantage to pile up his edge.

Rebels Swamp Foes

Staunton, Va., Aug. 5 (AP).—Petersburg's slugging Rebels found the range against two Staunton hurlers here tonight, blasting out 19 hits to smother the Presidents.

Ice Eagles Reported Hit Hard by War

That he may be forced to rebuild his Eastern Hockey League Champion Washington Eagles from the ground up was predicted by Coach Redvers MacKenzie yesterday as he reported here for a conference with Owner S. G. Loeffler, sr., at East Potomac Park.

Mackenzie disclosed that many players who helped win last year's title will be missing for the 1941-42 season, but added that he has replacements in mind who should make the Eagles a definite threat again next season.

Mackenzie reported here yesterday directly from Montreal, where he is golf professional at the exclusive Elm Ridge Country Club and will remain several days to iron out details for the campaign ahead.

Len Burrage, valuable defenseman, and Frank Mailley, aggressive wingman, both are employed locally and are certain to represent the Eagles again. Les Colvin, youthful goalie, also will be back on the job.

It was learned yesterday, however, that Gordon Hemming, fiery net tender who alternated with Colvin at goal last season, has joined the Canadian army for the duration of the war and will not be available this season. Jimmy McCurry, hard-working defenseman, has accepted a job in Canada and is not expected to rejoin the club.

Ross Knipfel, husky defenseman, and Roy McBride, fast-skating wingman, both are serving four-month hitches in Canadian military training, but will be available for the hockey season. Ross Rossignol, Gordon Franschke, Walter Scherer, Jack MacBeth and Paul Courteau have not been heard from, but Hal Dewey, high-scoring wingman, may reconsider his plan of retirement if a leave of absence can be arranged with the Canadian railroad which employs him.

Seven, possibly eight, teams may comprise the Eastern League this season. The Johnstown, Pa., club has been granted a franchise for 1941-42 and will be directed by Pick Hines, who played a major role in developing Baltimore into an outstanding ice hockey center.

Brooklyn also is building an arena and planning a team, but unless certain materials can be acquired in short order will not enter the league this season. The teams expected to compete in the Eastern League are: Washington, Baltimore, New York, River Vale, Atlantic City, Boston and Johnstown.

Swim Meet To Rosedale

Rosedale Playground's swimming team easily captured the first of a series of playground swimming meets yesterday at its home pool, scoring 130 points. Eastern was second with 9.

Boys at other local pools will compete today, the first three finishers in each event to qualify for the city-wide championships at Tech pool on August 13. At 10 a. m. there will be meets at Anacostia, East Potomac, Tech, Takoma, Banneker, Francis and Dunbar. Georgetown will stage its elimination at 2 p. m.

W.-L. Loses Another Gridder to Service

Richmond, Va., Aug. 5 (AP).—Bert Nelson, 175-pounder, who was slated to see regular service as an end for the Washington and Lee football team this fall, has volunteered for the Navy Air Corps, Riley Smith, the Generals' new head coach, said today.

Nelson, whose home is in Tampa, Fla., would have been a senior. He was called by the draft, but went into the Air Corps instead.

Johnny Ligon, junior tailback, was the first W. and L. gridder to be caught by the draft. Several others, including Fullback Frank Socha, may be called before the season gets under way.

Dundee Boxer Retains British Empire Title

Glasgow, Scotland, Aug. 5 (AP).—Jim Brady, of Dundee, retained his British Empire bantamweight boxing championship tonight by outpointing Glasgow's Jackie Paterson, in a 15-round bout. It was the first defeat in nearly two years for the favored Paterson, who holds the empire flyweight crown.

Jones Leaves $5,000 Personal Property, $500 Real Estate

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Aug. 5.—Howard H. Jones, well-known University of Southern California football coach who died July 27, left an estate listing real estate valued in excess of $5,000 and yielding a $500 yearly income.

A son, Clarke Howard Jones, 24, was bequeathed $1, with the explanation he already had been provided for in a $25,000 insurance policy, said the will filed for probate today.

The residue of the estate, including a $48,000 insurance policy, was bequeathed to a daughter, Carolyn Jones, 14.

No provision was noted for Jones' widow, Mrs. Jane Dean Jones, reported ill in a New Orleans hospital, but the will pointed out that Jones was disposing of only his share of community property of husband and wife.

Truckmen, I. B. M. Score In M.A. Softball

Broad-shouldered Larry Karpook lived up to advance notices when he pitched and batted his Overnight Transportation ten, of Baltimore, to a 4-to-1 victory over Pepco as play in the third annual Midatlantic softball tournament reached the quarter-final round at Ballston Stadium last night. Overnight meets Carr Bros. and Boswell tonight at 8 o'clock in the semifinals.

Karpook fanned 16 to create a new tourney record and allowed only one hit and a single unearned run. The husky hurler also hit a home run and single and scored two of his team's four runs off of Pepco's Kenny Thomas. In one stretch Karpook struck out nine men in a row.

In the first game International Business Machines also gained the semifinal round with a surprise 6-to-1 triumph over Standard Linen. I. B. M. hopped on Benny Rubin for three runs in the second and fifth innings. I. B. M. meets Plaza Wine and Liquor at 9:15 tonight in another semifinals engagement.

Eddie Mayo's Suspension Is Sustained

By the United Press

Durham, N. C., Aug. 5.—President W. G. Bramham of the National Association today sustained a decision of President W. C. Tuttle of the Pacific Coast League suspending Player Eddie Mayo, of the Los Angeles baseball club, for one year.

Mayo was suspended for spitting in the face of Umpire Ray Snyder in a game at Hollywood, July 13.

Following the suspension, Mayo indicated an appeal to Bramham, who requested a more detailed investigation, and Tuttle held an informal hearing a week ago with Mayo and Snyder present.

After the hearing, Tuttle allowed his one-year suspension to stand. A stenographic report of the hearing was forwarded to Bramham with the player's appeal, and after reviewing the case, Bramham upheld Tuttle's decision.

The suspension was the same as that handed to Manager Burleigh Grimes of Grand Rapids in the Michigan State League last year for the same offense.

Mayo has the right to carry a further appeal to the executive committee of the national association.

Cage Coach Named Illinois Sport Boss

Chicago, Aug. 5 (AP).—Douglas R. Mills, basketball coach at the University of Illinois, was named acting athletic director for one year today by the board of trustees.

His selection was by unanimous vote and followed recommendations by R. Arthur C. Willard, president of the university, and the board's athletic committee.

Mills, a former star football and basketball player at the university, will replace Wendell S. Wilson, removed after a controversy of long standing with Head Football Coach Robert C. Zuppke. Wilson last month was retained for a year as athletic director but on a leave of absence basis.

Rock Maker Wins Fairgrounds Race

Carrasquel Shines as Nats Top Yanks, 4-3

next five innings and they were shut out by Johnny Murphy in the ninth. But Carrasquel was in there doing a powerful job on behalf of the Nats.

The Yanks came up with an unearned run in the fourth inning after Rolfe led off with a double to center. He raced to third as Carrasquel threw out Henrich and dashed to the plate on DiMaggio's grounder to Archie. The throw from Archie beat Rolfe to the plate, but Evans dropped the ball and the run scored. DiMaggio raced to second in the excitement at the plate, but with one out the Yanks couldn't get him home.

Carrasquel was in trouble in the fifth when Gordon led off with a double to left, but after Gordon reached third with one out, the Venezuelan took Russo's tap toward the box and under-handed it to Evans, who tagged Gordon in a scoring attempt.

Rallied in 6th

The Yanks got back in the ball game in the sixth inning when they took a two-run chunk out of Carrasquel's 4-1 lead. It wasn't all his fault. Henrich reached base on a wild throw by Vernon and raced to third when DiMaggio singled to right. They held their bases as Dickey grounded out, and both scored on Selkirk's single to right.

That's all they got out of Carrasquel, though. In the seventh, Sturm beat out a bunt with one out and moved to second on Rolfe's single, but Carrasquel pitched a pair of incipient and harmless fly balls to the menacing Henrich and DiMaggio.

Again in the eighth the Yanks had the tying run on base with one out when Selkirk drew a walk. But Carrasquel got rid of Gordon on a fly ball, for the second out. Rizzuto blooped a singled to short right that moved Selkirk to third, and up strode Charley Keller to pinch hit for Russo. It didn't take Alex long. He got rid of Keller on one pitch which Keller fouled to Evans. Alex had a lot of stuff.

Tappett Victor On Abbreviated Lanham Card

Ted Tappett, Manhassett, Long Island, daredevil, won the first and only race on the seven-event card at the midget auto races at West Lanham Speedway last night. Tappett tooled his shiny black Offenhauser No. 12 through the ten-lap race in 2:26.7 and finished just seconds ahead of a torrential downpour, which sent some 2,000 fans scurrying for shelter. The remaining races were called, due to the dangerous condition of the track.

This was the second consecutive week in which Mr. J. Pluvius has put a crimp in the midgets, last week's show having been rained out after the fourth race.

Andy Furci, of Brooklyn, roared into an early lead on the first curve and held it for two laps, with Jimmy Forte, Philadelphia driver, in second place. Tappett, starting from the furthest position away from the pole, slipped by Forte and into second place on the fourth circuit.

Tappett's powerful "Offy" motor, considered tops in the midget racing world, proved too much for Furci's motorcycle-powered racer, and Tappett was out front for the first time going into the fifth lap. From there in he was never seriously threatened and finished some 30 yards ahead of Furci. Jimmy Forte took third, with Harry Harper fourth and Henny Steiger in fifth place. Motor difficulties forced the other two contestants, Len Arnold and Carl Lindberg, out of the money.

Frontier Model Wins in Feature

Salem, N. H., Aug. 5 (AP).—King Ranch's Frontier Model handily won the featured Lyme 6-furlong allowance race at Rockingham Park today, running the distance in 1:11 1-5.

Mrs. A. J. Abel's War Key was second, with J. Read's Taking Ways showing, and Stolen Tryst, the 1 to 2 favorite, fourth.

Frontier Model paid $8, $5.20 and $5, while War Key returned $17.40 and $10.20. Taking Ways paid $6.60.

Two-year-olds went 6 furlongs for the first time in New England today when Mrs. H. G. Good's All White won the second race in 1:14 4-5, with Briar Gal second and Tryandgetit third.

Oden Indicted For Murder Of Sweetheart

Guy Edward Oden, 18-year-old movie usher, was indicted on a charge of first-degree murder yesterday for shooting his 15-year-old sweetheart, Ellen Reid Cannon on July 19.

Should the youth be convicted, the death penalty would be mandatory.

The girl was shot at 114 O Street Southwest after a quarrel. The police said Oden told them he had been jealous and that efforts were made to keep them apart.

Oden was also indicted on a robbery charge. The police said that after being identified he admitted he was the gunman who held up Ida Lee in the Smith Cleaning Co., 725 Third Street Southeast on July 15.

The indictments were among 70 presented yesterday.

Axis Raid on Suez And Nile Delta Kills 90; 106 Hurt

Cairo, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—A heavy Axis air raid on the Suez Canal and the Nile Delta Monday night killed 90 persons, injuring 106 and caused property damage near the waterway, the Egyptian ministry of interior announced today.

The raid came as British patrols operating from besieged Tobruk in Libya carried out further "aggressive activities" against Axis forces surrounding the port.

Another heavy British raid on the Axis-held city of Derna, Libya, Sunday night destroyed two buildings and started a number of fires.

U. S. Destiny Is to the West, Maas Asserts

By the Associated Press

Honolulu, Aug. 5 Representative Maas (Republican), of Minnesota, House Naval Affairs Committee member on active duty as a Marine Corps colonel, said today "we are either going to be an empire or we are going to be part of somebody else's empire."

"We must face facts," he asserted in an address before Honolulu Rotarians, in which he added Americans must be prepared to give at lest 50 cents out of every dollar income to keep their country free.

"The destiny of America is to the west," he declared. "Europe is dead, so far as America's future interest is concerned. I hope we successfully can dispose of any further interest in Europe. If we permit the United States and Great Britain to be driven out of the Pacific now, we are through.

"There's only one defense against modern warfare, and that is to strike first and hardest, otherwise you are licked before you have started.

"The United States retains possession of Hawaii for a sole reason, not for production of pineapples, but because this is a major base in the Pacific and the key to the Pacific is in Hawaii.

"The United States by building the most powerful two-ocean navy and the most powerful air force in the world can maintain the balance of power and order for the next 400 or 500 years.

Maas mentioned the prospects of stiffer taxes in referring to the existing high rents in Honolulu. He said it appeared that Honoluluans were trying to pay for their property in one year.

"Gouge and charge all you want to," he commented. "Congress is going to take most of it away from you anyway."

Then he predicted that Federal taxes soon would take 50 per cent of a person's income and that he would not be surprised if the tax reached 75 per cent.

Va. Student Admits Stabbing Mother In Money Dispute

Pittsburgh, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—A 18-year-old military academy student tonight confessed that he beat his mother on the head with a table lamp in their one-room apartment and then stabbed her in the back twice.

John Richard Eskey told Detective Inspector Walter C. Monaghan that he beat and stabbed his mother, Mrs. Ruth Eskey, 40-year-old hospital technician, after extended arguments over money.

The mother, in the hospital with numerous lacerations of the scalp and two knife wounds in her back, was in serious condition but she was exp

Record Assets Reported by Am. Building

Entering its sixty-eighth year today, the American Building Association of Washington reports record assets of nearly 14 million dollars.

MR. BLANZ

Secretary Wilfred H. Blanz, in reviewing the progress of the second largest building group in Washington, pointed out that resources increased more than four times in the past 21 years. In 1920, he said, resources passed the three million dollar mark; in 1930 assets exceeded $7,500,000 and the present figure of nearly 14 million dollars represents an all-time high.

Officers of the association include Milton H. Prosperi, chairman of the board; Charles H. Kindle, president; Arthur C. Balser, vice president; Howard B. Kramer, treasurer; George A. Brennan, assistant secretary, and R. Lee Baxter, assistant treasurer.

In addition to the officers, directors are John E. Mergner, Chatham M. Towers, Thomas S. Sergeon, Charles A. Rossiter, Dr. William C. Farmer, Bernard J. Coyle and W. Dudley Spicknall.

Offices are at 300 Pennsylvania Avenue, Southeast.

D. C. Auto Sales Up 21 Per Cent

New passenger car sales in Washington totaled 3,612 in June, a gain of 21 per cent over the same month last year, according to the monthly review of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond. Sales of motor cars here in the first six months aggregated 20,262, a gain of 34 per cent over the same 1940 period.

The Federal Reserve district as a whole showed a gain of 48 per cent in new car sales in June and 44 per cent for the first six months.

The Reserve bank also reported that D. C. bank debits were 21 per cent heavier in June than in June, 1940; construction here in May (excluding Government work) totaled $4,934,000, a drop of 52 per cent as compared with the same 1940 month; furniture sales here in June were 45 per cent heavier than last year and 38 per cent heavier for the first six months.

Libby Offering Sold

Oversubscription of the offering of 1,500,000 shares of Libby, McNeill & Libby common stock was reported yesterday by Washington dealers, who said books were closed in the early afternoon. The block, offered at $5.62½ a share, consisted of shares owned by Swift & Co., which divested itself of all Libby holdings. Participating in the offering were the Washington investment houses of Ferris, Exnicios & Co. and Robert C. Jones & Co.

N. Y. Bank Trains 60 Teen-Age Girls To Be Financiers

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Faced with a dearth of young men adaptable as page boys, messengers and runners, the National City Bank has turned to girls and today has a corps of 60 learning to be financiers.

The draft, defense jobs and colleges have skimmed the cream off the crop of employable boy high school graduates, the bank said. Six months ago the bank started hiring girl graduates, 16 to 18 years old, and found the experiment worked.

The girls receive, in addition to salaries, stenographic and business training that will enable them to take on more responsibilities if they stay with the bank.

Officials aren't very optimistic about employment mortality, however. They figure that in ten years 60 per cent of the girls will have quit to marry or take other jobs.

British Treasury Calls U. S. Issues

London, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Treasury today formally ordered British owners to turn over a selected list of 23 issues of United States securities which are to be included in the collateral for the 425 million dollar Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan to Britain.

The owners were notified that the securities are to be released "when no longer required to serve as collateral unless the Treasury should decide it necessary to acquire them outright or in the event of a default on the loan, in which case payment for them would be made in sterling on the basis of the market price at the time."

Among the securities called were certain specified stocks and bonds of the Celanese Corporation of Chicago, Pneumatic Tool, Cities Service, W. R. Grace & Co. and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Gold Imports Gain Slightly in Week

By the Associated Press

Gold imports totaled $6,919,354 in the week ended July 30. The Commerce Department, reporting this figure yesterday, said it was about $2,000,000 more than that of the preceding week, but oply half of the week's before that.

Canada accounted for $5,034,888 of the total. The Philippine Islands were next with $965,779.

Douglas Aircraft Plans To Hire 15,000 More

Santa Monica, Calif., Aug. 5 (AP).—Douglas Aircraft has announced that by January 1 it expects to hire 15,000 additional workers, bringing its personnel to 47,000. Further enlargements at the company's California and Tulsa, Okla., plants are designed to bring the eventual employe list to 65,000, the announcement stated.

Scrap Shortage to Force Shutdown of Steel Plant

Coatesville, Pa., Aug. 5 (AP).—Unless more scrap iron is made available, the Lukens Steel Co. will be forced to halt work on national defense orders within two or three weeks, Hugh Kenworthy, company purchasing agent, declared today.

The Lukens company is working almost exclusively on orders for steel plate for the Navy.

'Miracle Man of Wall Street' To Return to Show Business

Broker George E. Price Wants to Get Back Where There's Money

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 5.—Now that he has permanent possession of the title, "Miracle Man of Wall Street," which he bestowed on himself, George E. Price, stock broker, intends to be known again as Georgie Price, the singer of "Bye Bye, Blackbird."

"Certainly I'm the miracle man of Wall Street," Price said today. "Look, in the last two years I haven't lost any money. Of course, I haven't made any, either. I'm not a super miracle man."

For seven years, now, it has been Price's pleasure to dabble in stocks and bonds and things, pursuing the elusive bull and bear, and vice versa, through the bayous of Wall Street.

His firm, bearing the rather descriptive title of George E. Price & Co., has a seat on the New York Stock Exchange for which George paid $90,000 in 1934. Seats now are selling around $35,000.

"But, gosh," says George, "that's not the right way to look at it. Why, two months after I bought that membership I could have had $165,000 for it. I sure made a lot of money in the good old days, back during the depression."

He made that original $90,000, and a lot more besides, as one of the top song and dance men in the show business—vaudeville, night clubs, Broadway shows and radio in its infancy.

And, yesterday, he signed a flock of contracts which mean he's going back behind the footlights.

"I'm not bored with the 'Big Board,'" he explains. "I just want to get back on the boards again. You know, money."

His brokerage firm will keep right on operating and he'll remain as its senior partner.

"How can I tell," he says. "Somebody's likely to want to trade some stock one of these days, and brokers are important to have around at such a moment. Besides that, it's nice to have a Stock Exchange seat ready for the time when that old rocking chair's got you."

It ought to be fun to have Georgie back on the stage. It was fun back in the teens and twenties and the early thirties. And, with all that history, he's only 41 now.

He hasn't grown any. He's still 5 feet and looks as hard and fit as a jockey.

Week's Oil Output Reported Lower

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—The American Petroleum Institute reported today the Nation's crude oil production for the week ended August 2 averaged 3,695,250 barrels daily, a decrease of 174,700 barrels from the previous week's average. In the comparable week a year ago the daily average output was 3,062,050 barrels.

The institute's reports indicated refineries operated at 89.5 per cent of capacity, averaging 3,845,000 barrels of crude run to stills daily, against 91.4 per cent operation and an average of 3,920,000 barrels daily the week before. A year earlier the total was 3,485,000 barrels daily.

New Steel Works Add 860,000 Tons To U. S. Capacity

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Steel circles heard today that the new pig iron and steel facilities to be installed by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation at the Edgar Thompson Works at Braddock, Pa., would add 860,000 net tons of annual pig iron capacity. Carnegie-Illinois is the principal steel-making subsidiary of United States Steel Corporation.

Construction of the new works is to begin immediately under a contract between the corporation and the Federal Plant Corporation signed last Friday. The Plant Corporation will retain title to the new facilities which will be built with Federal funds and operated under lease by Carnegie-Illinois.

In addition to the two new blast furnaces which will turn out pig iron, the program involves the construction of two new Bessemer converters with an annual steel capacity of 600,000 net tons. These, steel sources said, would be the first Bessemer converters to be built in the United States in many years, since almost all additions to production facilities in the last decade and more have been either open hearth or electric-steel furnaces.

The over-all cost of the proposed construction will be $32,000,000 with completion scheduled for the end of 1942.

Sear's July Sales Jump 41.9 Pct.

Chicago, Aug. 5 (AP).—Sears, Roebuck & Co. today reported that July sales totaled $72,889,575, compared with $51,351,896 a year ago, an increase of 41.9 per cent.

Sales for the six months, February through July, aggregated $428,367,630, compared with $328,749,926 for the corresponding 1940 period, an increase of 30.3 per cent.

Replacement Sales Of Tires Show Jump

The Commerce Department reports replacement sales of automobile tires to consumers in the second quarter of 1941 jumped to 13,078,000—the highest for the period in recent years.

The department said the sales figure was 2,178,000 higher than the similar figure last year, and that two million of the increase was due to "advance buying by operators of fleets of trucks, buses and taxicabs and also by individual private motorists desirous of replacing partly worn by new tires . . . to protect themselves against any possible future shortage of tires."

SEC Orders United Light System Split

By the Associated Press

In its broadest geographic integration order thus far, the Securities Commission instructed the 500 billion dollar United Light & Power Co. yesterday to confine its utility operations to a 240 billion dollar system centered around the Kansas City Power & Light Co.

The new system would operate in Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Illinois, Oklahoma and Nebraska and would exclude properties in Ohio, West Virginia, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan and Texas.

The commission previously had ordered the dissolution of the United Light & Power Co. and one subsidiary, United American Co., a subholding company, under a corporate simplification proceeding.

Compliance with the order would break up the present system into two integrated parts. The principal one would be topped by the United Light & Railways Co., with Continental Gas & Electric Corporation as an immediately underlying subholding company, and the other would be the American Light & Traction Co., with properties in Michigan and Wisconsin.

Earnings Reports

Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., estimated consolidated earnings for the first half of 1941, including Standard-Vacuum Oil Co. equity and reports received from foreign activities, at 1 million dollars, compared with adjusted earnings for the first half of 1940 of 22 million dollars. This indicated first half earnings on the capital stock of 58 cents a share, compared with a 1940 earning of 71 cents a share. Socony-Vavuum in a statement said sales were up 5 per cent during the first six months as compared with the 1940 period, provision for taxes accounting for the difference in earnings.

United Aircraft Corporation reported net income for the first six months of 1941, after provision of $20,800,000 for Federal income and excess profits taxes, of $5,583,350, equal to $2.10 a share, and compared with first half 1940 net profit of $6,228,106, or $2.34 a share.

J. C. Penny Co. reported net profit for the six months ended June 30 of $7,327,984, equal to $2.56 a share on common stock, compared with $6,159,511, or $2.24 a share for the first half of 1940. Gross sales for the 1941 period were shown as $146,727,559, of 17.1 per cent bigger than the $125,305,223 figure in the 1940 half.

The Pure Oil Co. and consolidated subsidiaries reported for the six months ended June 30 earnings of approximately $4,900,000 after all charges, equal to 74 cents a common share, compared with $4,700,000, or 69 cents a share in the like 1940 period.

Mack Trucks, Inc., reported net profit for the June quarter of $848,799, equal to $1.42 a common share, compared with $702,847 or $1.17 a common share in the June quarter last year. The company said provision for Federal income and excess profits taxes was greater than net profit, or $1,118,000.

382,876 Enrolled In Industrial Training Classes

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—The National Association of Manufacturers announced today a survey of 650 defense industries in 23 cities showed an enrollment of 382,876 men, women and youths in plant training courses.

The survey also stated 102,523 men and women were enrolled in summer vocational schools, getting streamlined courses in all branches of skilled labor.

The training within industry division of OPM has placed labor requirements at between 1,200,000 and 1,500,000 skilled and semiskilled workers within the next six months.

Engineering, mechanical drawing, applied mechanics, metallurgical inspection, machine and tool design and ordnance are but a few of the types of training now being offered.

Big Sohio Block Will Be Offered

Cleveland, Aug. 5 (AP).—Nearly 25 per cent of the common (voting) stock of Standard Oil Co. of Ohio soon will be publicly offered by an underwriting group headed by F. S. Moseley & Co., of Boston, and Smith, Barney & Co., and Lee, Higginson Corporation, of New York, a Sohio registration statement filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission office here disclosed today.

The 186,667 shares of Sohio common—representing 24.68 of the concern's voting stock—are owned by Ajax Pipe Line Corporation, in which Sohio has a 30 per cent interest. The statement said Ajax has agreed to apply the entire net proceeds to redemption on October 1 of its outstanding $1,000 shares of $7 preferred and to partial redemption on a pro rata basis of its outstanding 61,429 shares of $7 second preferred. On the basis of Sohio's present holdings in Ajax, this would give Sohio approximately $1,500,000.

Bell Aircraft Plans 600% Output Boost

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 5 (AP).—Deliveries of Airacobra fighter planes will be increased 600 per cent during the remainder of this year, Lawrence D. Bell, president of Bell Aircraft Corporation, disclosed today.

Present production data are restricted by the Army, but the firm is making several planes daily for the United States Army Corps and Great Britain.

Bell reported the concern plans to file a registraton statement with the Securities Exchange Commission covering issuance of an additional 100,000 shares of common stock and is negotiating for a "large expansion" of its Niagara Falls plant.

Foreign Exchange

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Canadian dollar advanced ⅛ of a cent in terms of the United States dollar in foreign exchange trading today to reach the 89 cent mark established June 4 as a high for the year.

The British free pound was off ⅛ cent, and the Hongkong dollar was off a shade. The Argentina free peso was somewhat better, and other major currencies generally were unchanged.

Fractional Losses Mark General List Although Motors Display Buoyancy

New York, Aug. 5.—Motors and an assortment of favorites put up a show of resistance in today's stock market but many leaders backed into losing ground.

The list, a bit uneasy from the start, developed irregularly lower tendencies after midday and, at the close, declines of fractions to a point or so were in the majority. Dealings expanded occasionally although slow intervals were frequent.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues was off .1 of a point at 43.9, making the seventh straight session in which this composite had been unable ot register a plus sign. Of 768 individual stocks traded, 341 were down, 218 up and 207 unchanged. Transfers amounted to 641,720 shares compared with 623,190 Monday.

Refusal by the carriers of the Railway Brotherhoods' demands for a 30 per cent wage boost, brokers said, aroused some speculative nervousness. In addition news from the Far East and Russia was hardly inspiring marketwise. The plea of Administrator Henderson to a House committee for quick passage of a price-control measure to head off disastrous inflation, and increasing worries over the tax outlook served to restrain some potential share buyers.

Automotive stocks were aided by the General Motors $1 dividend which led to the conclusion manufacturers anticipated no sharp reduction in earnings from curtailment of normal output of 1942 models. Steels were up part of the time on hopes the scrap shortage might soon be obviated.

Stocks pointing downward at the finish included Santa Fe, New York Central, Great Northern, Youngstown Sheet, American Telephone, Western Union, Anaconda, Standard Oil (New Jersey), Union Carbide, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, Johns-Manville, United States Steel and American Can.

Consolidated Aircraft got up 1⅞ to a new 1941 high at 36⅜, and Chrysler tacked on an advance of 1⅛ at 56. Holding modest gains were General Motors, Yellow Truck, North American, Pennsylvania, Texas Corporation, Du Pont, Republic Steel, Allied Chemical, Montgomery Ward, Boeing and Westinghouse.

Behind in the curb were Cities Service, American Cyanamid "B," Glen Alden Coal, McWilliams Dredging, Gulf Oil and Pantepec. Up moderately were Electric Bond & Share, Republic Aviation, Humble Oil and American Gas. Volume here approximated 133,000 shares against 140,000 yesterday.

Sharp advances in a group of British Empire bonds stood out in an otherwise quiet and narrow market today.

The general corporate list drifted irregularly lower although a few rail issues attracted follow-up buying that raised prices a point or so. United States Governments were neglected.

United States Governments were down 5/32 of a point to up 3/32 on the Stock Exchange. A similar price pattern prevailed over the counter.

Boll Weevil Damage Heavy In Cotton Belt

By the Associated Press

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 5.—Cotton prices are soaring but Southern farmers' spirits aren't keeping pace because the boll weevil threatens to ruin more of the white than he has since 1922.

It's too early to gauge the full damage, but it's certain the long-nosed little pest already has chewed millions from returns what promised to be the most profitable crop since the depression.

Only in Georgia would an official source hazard a dollars-and-cents estimate, but there R. R. Childs, extension service agronomist, figured the toll would run to 23 million dollars or about 20 per cent of the yield from cotton and cottonseed.

He said the damage would be about double last year's 10 per cent loss in point of staple and seed destroyed, but would be much more in cash because cotton is selling for close to 17 cents a pound now, nearly double the price at this time last year.

In almost every other State officials agreed that infestation was heavy, but pointed out that the next few weeks can greatly change the picture. Except in the Southern portions of the belt, destruction is not complete and a run of hot, dry weather would reduce the damage vastly.

$4,300,000 Issue Awarded by C. & O.

Cleveland, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway today awarded $4,300,000 of equipment trust ceretificates to a group headed by Harris, Hall & Co., Inc., of Chicago, on their high bid of 100.333 for 1⅝ per cent obligations. The interest cost basis to C. & O. is approximately 1.56 per cent.

The certificates, to be dated August 1 and payable in ten equal annual installments, are being issued to finance in part the purchase of 2,000 new freight cars costing approximately $5,454,190. Four other groups also submitted bids.

Commodities Uneven With Cotton Weak

By the Associated Press

Commodity futures markets closed unevenly yesterday with price changes relatively small except in the case of cotton, which lost $1.15 to $1.40 a bale in a continuation of its decline.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson's talk in Washington to the House Banking Committee was understood to have been a depressing influence in some markets.

Cottonseed oil moved down with cotton, losing .05 to .09 of a cent a pound.

Wool tops were .2 to .7 of a cent a pound lower. At Chicago, wheat was about unchanged to ⅛ cent a bushel down, and corn lost ¼ to ⅜ cent a bushel.

Expectations of a price lid on tin knocked ⅛ to ¾ cent a pound off Straits tin futures.

World sugar hit new seasonal highs during the day but profit taking late in the session left it only .01½ to .03½ of a cent a pound higher at the finish, domestic sugar making a smaller gain.

Official Notices

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, July 25, 1941. A public hearing having been held on June 30, 1941, by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia in the matter of closing certain street and alley areas in the District of Columbia, as hereinafter described, and the said Commissioners being satisfied as to the equity, justice and advisability of said closings, and that the same are not detrimental to the public interests nor to the interests of abutting property owners, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the said Commissioners have prepared the following order: "Ordered that pursuant to the provisions of Public Act No. 307, approved December 18, 1922, the street and alley areas as shown in green on plats filed in the office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia, and numbered as Maps 2523 and 2524, are hereby ordered CLOSED, same to take effect on and after AUGUST 25, 1941, the title to the land contained in said areas so closed to revert to the abutting property owners, as shown on said maps; the said areas hereby ordered closed being described as follows: 1. Closing 8th Street between G and H Streets, S.W., and closing H Street between 7th and 9th Streets, S.W. 2. Closing E Street between Minnesota Avenue and 36th Street; closing 34th Street between Minnesota Avenue and E Street; closing Anacostia Road between Ely Place and E Street; and closing of alleys in Square 5441; all in the Southeast section of the District of Columbia." Any and all parties interested must file objections, if any, in writing, to said closings within thirty days after the date of this publication, as shown at the beginning thereof, otherwise said order shall become effective on August 25, 1941, and the street and alley areas, as herein described, shall on and after said date become closed, in accordance with the provisions of said Act. with Glynn

It's to be suspected that a great many people are patriotic because it's easy and convenient and a popular thing to be.

But when a guy interrupts and practically ruins his precious annual two-week vacation in order to do something that he feels will help his country, then it probably can safely be said that his patriotism really is sincere.

And that's the case with Lanny Ross who, when he's not on vacation, is a singer with the Columbia Broadcasting System, to be heard over WJSV every week-day night from 6:15 to 6:30.

For Lanny was happily ensconced in the wilds of Canada, having a fine time fishing, when he received word last week that the U. S. Army Band wanted to record his two latest compositions. One, written for the Army Air Corps, is called appropriately "Keep 'Em Flying." The other, in tune with the times and the aluminum drive, has the homely title "Pots and Pans."

Not only did Lanny stir enough from his peace and comfort to give the permission with alacrity, he boarded a plane and came to Washington and did the solos, to make it the first time any professional singer had recorded with the Army Band.

The records are being distributed to radio stations throughout the country, and soon you'll be hearing them everywhere. In the meantime, Lanny is enjoying the rest of his interrupted vacation in Canada.

Contract Bridge

It takes a deal of playing before we can defend hands as well as this, and certainly it is not expected of beginners. But here are two less difficult problems which new bridge fans would do well to master.

1. Sitting West you hold these cards:

♠ K J 8 2
♡ A Q 3
♣ Q J 10 9

The bidding has gone:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Dble	Redble	1 ♡
1 ♠	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

What is your opening lead?

2. Sitting South as declarer, how do you play this combination?

♠ Q 7 6 2
♠ A 5 4 2

SOUTH

Answers to Beginners' Problems

1. Try to establish the club suit by leading the queen. Do not play hearts, expecting to find partner with the king. Your double forced him to bid, and the jack or ten may be his highest heart. Declarer probably holds the king.

2. There is no use leading the queen toward the ace, as you lack the jack. You should first cash your ace, reducing the opponents' cards to three. Then lead low from your hand toward the queen. If you think West holds the king, you have a chance to catch it by playing low, hoping his original holding was king, small.

YOU KNOW YOUR UNCLE NIELO'S HOLDING THE BOAT, SAY! WHERE IS BACHE?
YOU'LL FIND HIM STUFFED IN THE WOOD-BOX THERE, KING, BUT HE AIN'T GOIN' ON NIELO'S ARCTIC EXPEDITION AND NEITHER ARE YOU!
TIE 'EM UP TIGHT, QUILL. WE'LL JUST LEAVE TH' MOUNTIE AND HIS YOUNG FRIEND WHERE THEY WON'T BE MESSIN' UP OUR PLANS!

4-H a 'Pillar' Of U.S., Session Told at U. Md.

Miss Venia M. Kellar, assistant director of the University of Maryland extension service, yesterday told the twenty-third annual assembly of 4-H Club members meeting at the university that "4-H Club work is one of the strongest pillars in the American way of life."

"I don't know of any organization that is in a better position to teach young people the value of democratic ideals as we enjoy them in America," she said. "Under its guidance our Maryland boys and girls are becoming better citizens of the State and Nation."

Dr. Charles E. Potter, of the United States Department of Agriculture, who also spoke, described the 4-H Clubs as a youth movement with 1,500,000 members from Alaska to Hawaii.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, university president; Miss Ann Mathews, of Cornell University, and Lucinda Holloway, member from Dorchester County, were other speakers.

Features of the week include a course, "Americanism at Work," a social dancing class, formation of a Safe Drivers' Club, and a style revue.

Registration for 4-H Club sessions totaled 609, with girls outnumbering boys 3 to 1. Classes and demonstrations at the twenty-third annual event will continue through Saturday.

Mrs. Persons, Tuberculosis Aide, Is Buried

Mrs. Eugenia Bray Persons, a pioneer in tuberculosis work in the District, was buried yesterday in Rock Creek Cemetery. Secretary of the board of directors of the District Tuberculosis Association, Mrs. Persons died Saturday at her home, 4401 Q Street Northwest.

After her graduation from the University of Michigan in 1906, Mrs. Persons became active in Washington philanthropic organizations and later in tuberculosis prevention. She was secretary of the board of governors of the Washington Club.

In paying tribute to her work, Dr. J. Winthrop Peabody, president of the Tuberculosis Association, said "Those of us who have been associated with her in this work and who well know her tremendous interest and efforts to prevent tuberculosis in the District will miss the valued counsel which she has contributed from her vast experience."

Besides her husband, she leaves two sons, W. Frank Persons, jr., of Elizabeth, N. J., and Edward Bray Persons, of Philadelphia; her mother and father, the Rev. and Mrs. Edward A. Bray, of Trenton, and a brother, John Randolph Bray, of Norwalk, Conn.

The Post Display Indian Murals

Beltsville Cotton Experiments May Solve Hosiery Crisis

American women may be spared the "bare facts" of a future without silk stockings if experiments now being conducted at the Government's research laboratories in Beltsville, Md., result in the development of stylish new cotton hosiery.

Three years of experimentation at Beltsville have brought out 150 styles of hosiery that may be made from cotton. According to the Department of Agriculture, experts are ready to show how they may be manufactured.

These developments have attracted the attention of the hosiery industry, now facing a serious production problem as a result of the stoppage of silk shipments from Japan.

Styles proposed in the cotton hosiery range from cobweb mesh to service weights. Experts say there probably will be little difference in cost compared with silk hosiery.

But, there will be one big advantage—the cotton products will be more serviceable than silk.

"We had no thought when we started of trying to make products that would take the place of silk or other products, but simply to develop styles that we believe had a place in women's wardrobes," David H. Young, director of the experiments, said yesterday. "The present situation has made our work all the more important, and it appears almost a necessity now."

Several designs already are being manufactured commercially and others are expected to follow. The Department of Agriculture has said that 85 per cent of the Nation's hosiery machines can be adapted to the new method of manufacture.

By the end of the year Young and his associates hope to complete one-third of a dictionary to contain 300 new designs styled and with specifications for use of cotton. Developments are made available to the industry as quickly as possible, he said.

Rites in England For Mrs. Marshall

Funeral rites for Mrs. Caroline Gwatkins Marshall, 82, widow of Fielding Lewis Marshall, great grandson of Chief Justice John Marshall, were held Saturday in Wolverhampton, England.

Mrs. Marshall died at Wychbold, the estate of her daughter, Mrs. Mary Amphlett, at Wolverhampton, where she had lived since moving there from Washington in 1935. She had resided here for more than 50 years.

Fielding Lewis Marshall, who was connected with the Treasury Department and later the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, died here in 1932.

Mrs. Marshall was active in the Colonial Dames and the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Funeral Today In Rockville For Carter Clagett

Funeral services for Carter Clagett, 61, clerk in the office of the county treasurer at Rockville, Md., for 13 years, who died at his home in Rockville Monday night, will be at 2:30 p. m. today at the home. The Rev. Raymond P. Black, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Rockville, will officiate and burial will be in the cemetery adjoining the Methodist Church at Potomac. A resolution of regret was drafted yesterday by the Montgomery County commissioners.

Mr. Clagett was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery Clagett and was born near Potomac, Md., where he lived until five years ago, when he moved to Rockville. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Nora Williams Clagett; a son, John W. Claggett, Boston, Mass., and two brothers, Dunbar and Herbert Claggett, both of Arizona.

For many years, Mr. Clagett conducted the farm on which he was born. He was long active in Democratic politics and belonged to the organization wing of his party. He was for a long time a member of Montgomery Lodge of Masons, Rockville.

Court Upholds Gov. O'Conor on Appointments

Prince Frederick, Md., Aug. 5.—Judge William M. Loker today upheld Gov. O'Conor's recess appointment of two Calvert County trial magistrates, denying the demurrer filed by attorneys for State Senator J. Wilmer Johnson (Democrat), of Calvert, who sought to upset the appointments.

Johnson had instituted mandamus proceedings challenging legality of the Governor's appointment of William W. Duke and Dr. Clyde L. West, whose names previously had been rejected by the State Senate.

When arguments on the mandamus action were held before Judge Loker on July 17, attorneys for the State contended that the Governor is not required to submit nominees for recess appointments as trial magistrates to the Senate for confirmation.

Attorney General William C. Walsh and his deputy, Robert C. Clapp, who appeared as friends of the court, supported Duke and West in their contention that the appointments were legal.

The attorney general contended that a section of the constitution dealing with justices of the peace provides that recess appointees to fill vacancies shall hold office for the residue of the term.

Duke and West received recess appointments for the Governor two years ago after the trial magistrate system replaced the justice of the peace system.

Fleas Dressed Like 2 Dolls Win Prize

Two tiny fleas dressed as dolls took first prize for Dorothy Wills, 10, of 101 Grant Avenue, Takoma Park, Md., as the most unusual exhibit at the doll show yesterday afternoon at the Philadelphia Avenue Municipal Playground, Takoma Park.

The pair of dolls, which Dorothy said were real fleas, had to be viewed with a magnifying glass. They were dressed like a boy and a girl.

Largest entry was a 2-foot teddy bear of blue and white plush displayed by Edna Salsbury, 8, 119 Grant Avenue. Mona Francis, 4, 202 Hancock Avenue, received the prize for the prettiest carriage covered with a hand embroidered cover.

The award for the prettiest doll went to Margaret Smith, 11, 406 Holly Avenue, who exhibited a Shirley Temple model dressed in blue and white. Marian Francis, 8, 301 Philadelphia Avenue, won the award for the largest doll carriage.

Judges were Mrs. Fred Dunn, Mrs. Virginia Roberts and Mrs. Leland Glysteen. The show, first of a series sponsored by the playground center, was arranged by Miss Helen Viereck and David Abercrombie, playground instructors, assisted by Miss Ruth Viereck.
